Swift action by Long Beach police nipped an incipient riot Saturday night after a policeman was injured, several fires were set and rocks were thrown at cars, police and store windows.

In a 15-minute sweep, police arrested 27 persons and warned hundreds to get off the streets. Police seemed to have the situation under control by midnight.

Twenty more persons were booked within an hour and more prisoners were being brought to the station.

The entire police force was mobilized early today when men from earlier shifts were held over. All three shifts were at work.

The police operation was characterized by swift, mobile action.

Immediate curfew was declared for a half mile in all directions from Poly High School and public address systems warned that anyone on the streets of the area would be arrested.

Police set up a booking station at Pacific Coast Highway and Alamitos Avenue to handle prisoners, mostly arrested on charges of disorderly conduct and failing to disperse.

The lid was clamped on the Poly district at 11:10 p.m. after five fires had been set in the neighborhood. Firemen quickly extinguished all of them, and there was no major damage.

The fires were in the yard of Poly High School, on a nearby street (California Avenue), in a nearby shed and at a hamburger stand.

LPD Officer James Stewart, 30, of 92 W. 49th St., was hit by a brick while in his patrol car at California Avenue and 16th Street.

He suffered ear lacerations, according to a spokesman at Memorial Hospital where he was taken.

He was released from the hospital an hour later.

Cooler Weather? Forget It For Now

If you're hoping for an immediate let-up in our August heat wave, forget it.

Forecasters say Long Beach temperatures will climb to 87 today, only two degrees cooler than Saturday. Temperatures will fall from one to four degrees today in most parts of the Southland, but the slight cooling trend won't have much immediate effect.

The Long Beach forecast calls for more sun with patchy low clouds and fog along the coast early morning and night hours.

L. A. Rioters Claim Police Lost Battle

By CHARLES SUTTON

Negro demonstrators in riot-torn Los Angeles are claiming victory over that city's police force.

A Negro psychiatrist told The Independent, Press-Telegram Saturday that a feeling of exhilaration over "having beaten" Chief William Parker and his men is sweeping the hard-core riot areas of the blood-stained city.

"They feel good about it," said Dr. J. Alfred Cannon, a resident of Watts and associate director of social and community psychiatry at UCLA's School of Medicine.

Cannon said outnumbered police seemed afraid to move into the hard-core riot areas before the National Guard arrived, and Negro rioters and their sympathizers frankly "felt good about it."

Cannon, who spent long periods in the riot areas, described the mood at that time as "ugly."

"There was an air of festiveness about it. They were pleased at having inflicted a major defeat on the police," he said.

Cannon said the riot has long since departed from its original purpose and become an orgy of wanton destruction. "It is now unleashing a kind of anger that's unhealthy," he said. "There's looting for looting's sake, destruction for destruction's sake."

The National Guard obviously is the only answer, he declared.

Yet Cannon, like a number of other social scientists and psychiatrists, feels the riots were originally the physical expression of festering hates and grievances—an explosion of forces that have been building up in the Negro ghetto for years.

ing mobs of looting, shooting, burning and plundering Negroes.

The death toll in four days of chaos stood at 21, with more than 600 injured, and nearly 1,400 arrested. Hundreds of buildings and homes have been burned and looted.

Acting Gov. Glenn M. Anderson, who Friday activated California National Guard units to quell the disastrous outbreak, announced the limited curfew.

"THIS CURFEW applies only to the area of the riots and fires," Anderson said, "but the curfew can, and will be expanded if necessary."

Meanwhile, President Johnson, taking note of the violent nature of the Los Angeles uprising, offered federal assistance and urged every effort be made to settle differences peacefully.

Even as a 500-man force of National Guardsmen, backed up by a like number of police and sheriff's deputies, moved through the riot area in "Operation Clean Sweep," bands of looters swept ahead of them, keeping tabs on mop-

Close readers of the newspapers, especially those with the knack for reading between the lines, know that President Johnson and Sen. Robert F. WASHINGTON—From now until the election of 1968, and perhaps 1972, "feud watching" could become as exciting as baseball.

When the feud pits the President of the United States against a rich young senator bearing the famous name of Kennedy, when the stake is the White House, and when the action, like a torpedo, moves swiftly below the surface to explode in new and unexpected places, it's a political natural.

Until recently the relations between the President and New York Sen. Robert F. Kennedy were worth about five minutes of political shop talk. Now it's everybody's business.

As a result, one fact is sure to dominate Democratic party strategy in the years ahead:

There's no love lost between Lyndon and Bobby.

Feigning disinterest, the White House watches every Kennedy maneuver with the fascination of a cobra weaving to a snake charmer's pipe.

While Kennedy seems preoccupied with his New York constituency, few question he is quietly using his wealth and political know-how to build a broad national power base for a future strike at the White House.

Will there be an open breach? No one is sure, but if it comes, Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey is almost certain to be riddled in the crossfire and the party split wide open.

For weeks Washington has been in a tizzy over a spate of "inside stories on backroom presidential strategy in 1960 and 1964. The revelations have rubbed salt into sensitive areas and served to spotlight what appears to be a growing Johnson-Kennedy rift.

They purport to tell:

How the late John F. Kennedy offered the 1960 Vice Presidential nomination to Lyndon Johnson, but really didn't mean to;

How brother Robert tried to block the choice, once it was made;

PRESIDENT JOHNSON

L.A.C. Says: Keynesian Theory

One of the most controversial economists of the past 35 years was the late Lord Keynes, the British economist. His theory was that depressions were caused by the people saving too much money and not investing it in productive enterprises, and that the idea of the balanced budget was a fallacy because government spending more than it took in spurred the economy and thereby guaranteed continued prosperity. He was a thorn in the side of President Franklin D. Roosevelt, who approved large spending, but fundamentally believed large deficits would eventually endanger the economy.

Now we find the Keynesian theory being placed in effect to a greater extent than Keynes ever expected. Income taxes have been decreased to place greater purchasing power in the hands of consumers, and greatly increased government spending has been put into effect. Up to the present time, after a year's test, this theory has worked out. The shot in the arm for consumers has increased their buying from which higher corporate and personal income has produced increased tax collections. The federal deficit has been less than was forecast.

On this first year, the supporters of the Keynes theory appear to have been sound prophets. But the fact is, government and consumer debt have soared to all-time levels. The nation has enjoyed its most prosperous year because of the increased amounts in weekly paychecks and the increased taxes collected on a lower rate from individuals and corporations. But there are signs that the "shot in the arm" effect is wearing off. The Keynes theory would mean further tax cuts and greater government spending, which seem to be adopted by the Great Society advocates. No longer is the "pay as you go" theory accepted as sound philosophy.

It is hard to argue with success such as has been achieved by the President's tax cut and numerous spending programs. But it is reasonable to question the long-term effect of encouraging continued spending by government and consumers in excess of their incomes. The New Deal tried it during the depression in an effort to reduce unemployment. But in eight years, it failed to reduce it below 14% of the work force. This was overcome only by the start of World War II and the great production we started for our allies and later for our own war effort.

It seems old fashioned and not progressive to insist that at some point continued spending more than you receive must end in bankruptcy. This applies to individuals, corporations or government. The first two find themselves divested of all they own to pay their debts. Government takes the road to printing more money and thereby devaluing the worth of the existing money. In nation after nation this has occurred and inflation has destroyed the value of all money.

To say this cannot happen again is to be unrealistic. But that is hard to put over to young people who have never lived during a period, only 30 years ago, in most of Europe, when it did happen. It has happened many times in history when theories similar to that of Keynes have been used. Thousands of businessmen and individuals, including this writer, have followed this theory and experienced periods of great seeming prosperity, only to find ourselves broke after the spree was over. It can, and I believe, it will happen again unless the fundamental fact is recognized that you cannot continually spend more than you take in and escape disaster, and that the effect of "shots in the arm" wear off and repeated shots lose their effectiveness.—L.A.C.

Chicago Race Riot Stopped

CHICAGO (UPI)—With 2,000 National Guard troops standing by, police appeared Saturday night to have brought Chicago's worst racial riot in more than a decade under control.

There were no outbreaks of violence in the west side Lawndale district where, for two nights, thousands of Negroes had surged in a brick, bottle and Molotov cocktail-hurling rampage.

The National Guardsmen, ordered to active duty by Gov. Otto Kerner at mid-afternoon to guard against more riots, remained in their seven armories. Their orders were not to move out unless the hundreds of Chicago policemen already assigned to Lawndale could not keep order.

AS THE hot, sultry night wore on, there was no call for help.

Police Lt. Tom Hayes reported "it's very quiet—just like Tuesday night when it's nine below zero."

Illinois guardsmen had not been called out to quell a racial disturbance since 1951, when the late Adlai E. Stevenson, then governor of the state, sent troops into suburban Cicero to put down a riot at bayonet point.

Saturday night the guardsmen, all of them young Chicagoans from four units of the 33rd Guard Division, suited up in their uniforms and waited.

The Chicago area's worst race riot since the Cicero outbreak began late Thursday night. A hook and ladder truck from the all-white fire station at Wilcox Street and Pulaski Road—for a month the object of civil rights demonstrations—rolled out with the tillerman who controls the ponderous rear section missing.

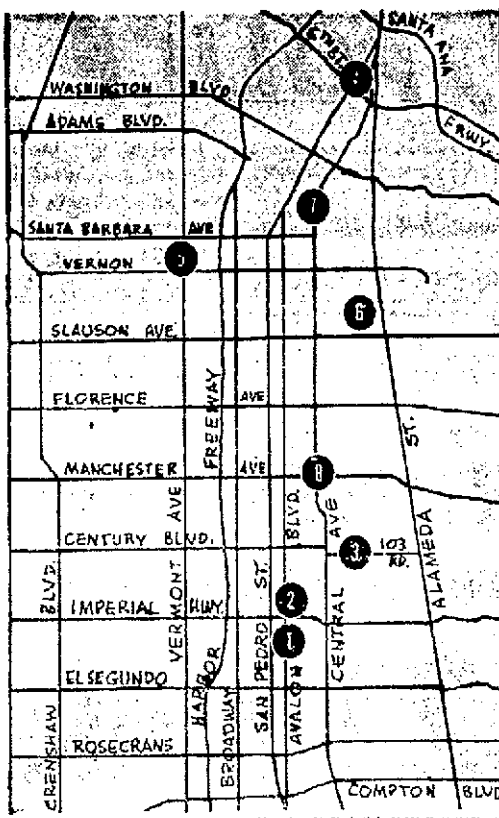

The rear end, out of control, slammed against the fire station door, a fire hydrant, and then a Stop sign which toppled over onto a Negro bystander, Bessie Mae Williams, 23. She was killed and the riot was on.

Dymally Urges Parker Resign

3 Arrested Here as Suspect Receivers of Rioters' Loot

Three Long Beach men were arrested and booked in a case of whisky in the car, Long Beach city jail Saturday morning on suspicion of burglary and suspicion of receiving stolen goods.

Police alleged the trio had quantities of bottled liquor in their car and that the liquor resembled goods looted from stores in the Watts area.

Various reports of merchandise being offered for sale at "rock bottom" prices by visitors from the Watts area, were telephoned to Long Beach police Saturday.

INVESTIGATORS reported, they followed a car to a lot at Atlantic Avenue and Ana-

Rioters Send Jet Off Route

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—A crowded jet airliner changed its course into Los Angeles International Airport Saturday after the pilot told passengers of reports that rioters were shooting at planes.

Delta flight 805 with 127 passengers aboard landed without incident.

The normal flight pattern carried the DCS near the riot area, prompting a word of caution to passengers from Capt. T. S. Bridges of Dallas, Tex., who was in command of the Atlanta to Los Angeles flight.

"We have received reports of small arms firing at aircraft," Bridges said over the intercom.

"If you want to look out, we suggest you look and then get your heads back from the windows."

"We anticipate no problem at all."

About 90 minutes out of Los Angeles, however, Bridges told passengers:

"Well folks, it seems like a new society is sending up smoke signals to Washington. They have now burned out six square blocks of buildings. We will deviate (from) the area on the way in."

L.A.C. Says: Keynesian Theory

One of the most controversial economists of the past 35 years was the late Lord Keynes, the British economist. His theory was that depressions were caused by the people saving too much money and not investing it in productive enterprises, and that the idea of the balanced budget was a fallacy because government spending more than it took in spurred the economy and thereby guaranteed continued prosperity. He was a thorn in the side of President Franklin D. Roosevelt, who approved large spending, but fundamentally believed large deficits would eventually endanger the economy.

Now we find the Keynesian theory being placed in effect to a greater extent than Keynes ever expected. Income taxes have been decreased to place greater purchasing power in the hands of consumers, and greatly increased government spending has been put into effect. Up to the present time, after a year's test, this theory has worked out. The shot in the arm for consumers has increased their buying from which higher corporate and personal income has produced increased tax collections. The federal deficit has been less than was forecast.

On this first year, the supporters of the Keynes theory appear to have been sound prophets. But the fact is, government and consumer debt have soared to all-time levels. The nation has enjoyed its most prosperous year because of the increased amounts in weekly paychecks and the increased taxes collected on a lower rate from individuals and corporations. But there are signs that the "shot in the arm" effect is wearing off. The Keynes theory would mean further tax cuts and greater government spending, which seem to be adopted by the Great Society advocates. No longer is the "pay as you go" theory accepted as sound philosophy.

It is hard to argue with success such as has been achieved by the President's tax cut and numerous spending programs. But it is reasonable to question the long-term effect of encouraging continued spending by government and consumers in excess of their incomes. The New Deal tried it during the depression in an effort to reduce unemployment. But in eight years, it failed to reduce it below 14% of the work force. This was overcome only by the start of World War II and the great production we started for our allies and later for our own war effort.

It seems old fashioned and not progressive to insist that at some point continued spending more than you receive must end in bankruptcy. This applies to individuals, corporations or government. The first two find themselves divested of all they own to pay their debts. Government takes the road to printing more money and thereby devaluing the worth of the existing money. In nation after nation this has occurred and inflation has destroyed the value of all money.

To say this cannot happen again is to be unrealistic. But that is hard to put over to young people who have never lived during a period, only 30 years ago, in most of Europe, when it did happen. It has happened many times in history when theories similar to that of Keynes have been used. Thousands of businessmen and individuals, including this writer, have followed this theory and experienced periods of great seeming prosperity, only to find ourselves broke after the spree was over. It can, and I believe, it will happen again unless the fundamental fact is recognized that you cannot continually spend more than you take in and escape disaster, and that the effect of "shots in the arm" wear off and repeated shots lose their effectiveness.—L.A.C.

Chicago Race Riot Stopped

CHICAGO (UPI)—With 2,000 National Guard troops standing by, police appeared Saturday night to have brought Chicago's worst racial riot in more than a decade under control.

There were no outbreaks of violence in the west side Lawndale district where, for two nights, thousands of Negroes had surged in a brick, bottle and Molotov cocktail-hurling rampage.

The National Guardsmen, ordered to active duty by Gov. Otto Kerner at midday, remained in their seven armories. Their orders were not to move out unless the hundreds of Chicago policemen already assigned to Lawndale could not keep order.

AS THE hot, sultry night wore on, there was no call for help.

Police Lt. Tom Hayes reported "it's very quiet—just like Tuesday night when it's nine below zero."

Illinois guardsmen had not been called out to quell a racial disturbance since 1951, when the late Adlai E. Stevenson, then governor of the state, sent troops into suburban Cicero to put down a riot at bayonet point.

Saturday night the guardsmen, all of them young Chicagoans from four units of the 33rd Guard Division, suited up in their uniforms and waited.

The Chicago area's worst race riot since the Cicero outbreak began late Thursday night. A hook and ladder truck from the all-white fire station at Wilcox Street and Pulaski Road—for a month the object of civil rights demonstrations—rolled out with the tillerman who controls the ponderous rear section missing.

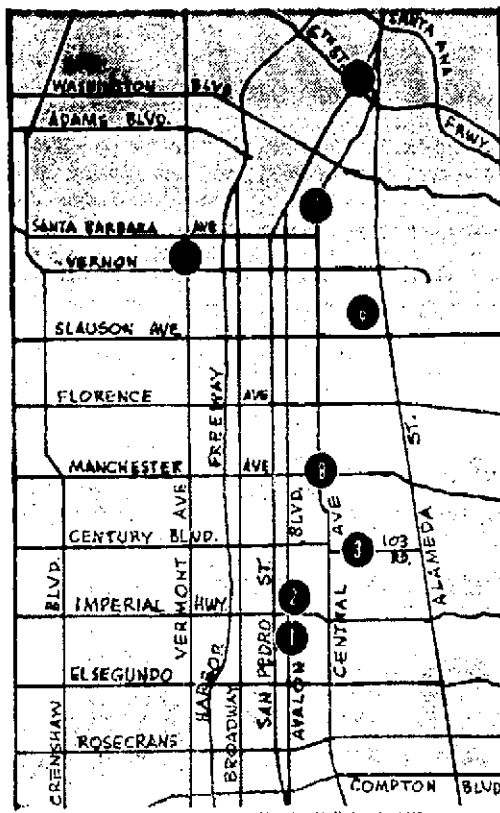

The rear end, out of control, slammed against the fire station door, a fire hydrant, and then a Stop sign which toppled over onto a Negro bystander, Bessie Mae Williams, 23. She was killed and the riot was on.

Dymally Urges Parker Resign

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Negro Assemblyman Mervyn M. Dymally, calling the Los Angeles Police Department a "bed of bigotry," Saturday called for the resignation of Police Chief William H. Parker. Dymally also renewed pleas for creation of a civilian police review board.

YOUTH CLAIMS RETALIATION

LOS ANGELES (AP)—An angry Negro youth, held by police at the scene of a fire Saturday remarked, "The SOB's burned down our churches in Alabama, so we burn down their stores in Los Angeles."

3 Arrested Here as Suspect Receivers of Rioters' Loot

Three Long Beach men were arrested and booked in Long Beach city jail Saturday morning on suspicion of burglary and suspicion of receiving stolen goods.

Police alleged the trio had quantities of bottled liquor in their car and that the liquor resembled goods looted from stores in the Watts rioting.

Various reports of merchandise being offered for sale at "rock bottom" prices, by visitors from the Watts area, were telephoned to Long Beach police Saturday.

INVESTIGATORS reported court order with bail at they followed a car to a lot $1,100, to appear before at Atlantic Avenue and Ann-Judge Charles Smith in Dept.

Rioters Send Jet Off Route

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—A crowded jet airliner changed its course into Los Angeles International Airport Saturday after the pilot told passengers of reports that rioters were shooting at planes.

Delta flight 805 with 127 passengers aboard landed without incident.

The normal flight pattern carried the DC8 near the riot area, prompting a word of caution to passengers from Capt. T. S. Bridges of Dallas, Tex., who was in command of the Atlanta to Los Angeles flight.

"We have received reports of small arms firing at aircraft," Bridges said over the intercom.

"If you want to look out, we suggest you look and then get your heads back from the windows."

"We anticipate no problem at all."

About 90 minutes out of Los Angeles, however, Bridges told passengers:

"Well folks, it seems like a new society is sending up smoke signals to Washington. They have now burned out six square blocks of buildings. We will deviate (from) the area on the way in."

LOS ANGELES — What U.S., state, city and Negro organization leaders are saying about the rioting:

President Johnson: "Killing, rioting and looting are contrary to the best traditions of this country. . . Rights will not be won through violence."

Gov. Brown: "We are involved in a state of insurrection. . . I'm going to restore law and order, period."

Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.: "The full force of the police power (should be used) to quell the situation in Los Angeles. (But) Police power can bring only a temporary halt. . . what is needed is a massive program to help Negroes."

Mayor Samuel Yorty: "We are confronted with lawless criminal elements without leadership, who are bent on destruction of the established order. There is only one answer in the situation, and this is overwhelming force."

Police Chief William Parker: "All these attempts to fasten upon the police the blame for the crime committed by the Negro is a vicious canard. . . I'm not going to meet with any of the leaders. These rioters don't have any leaders."

Woodrow Coleman, a co-chairman of the nonviolent action committee: "What's happening out there is out of Negro leaders' hands."

Rep. Augustus F. Hawkins, D-Los Angeles: "I don't think it's out of the hands of the Negro leadership. All of them are down there doing what they can to restore normalcy. But the rioters won't believe us. They've been misled before. These people are highly charged from years of deprivation. The Negro is now too far separated from the white power structure."

Robert Hall, another NVAC co-chairman, says a Negro's reaction is: "We don't want you to come down there with Dick Gregory or Martin Luther King if you're only going to laugh at us. Baby, if you're going to be one of us. Here's a bottle—throw it."

James Francis Cardinal McIntyre, archbishop of Los Angeles: "The uprising has seemingly been without presentation of grievances for adjudication and settlement. Hence the uprising seems an instigated revolt against the right of neighbors and the preservation of law and order."

Councilman Billy G. Mills: "Public and private relief agencies such as the Red Cross should go into the area and provide food and shelter for persons made homeless and hungry by fire and disorder."

The Rev. M. Merriweather of new Mt. Pleasant Baptist Church, at 105th and Wilmington: "You have been destructive, you have burned, looted and pillaged your community and its businesses and brought everything to a standstill."

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Major department stores here withdrew guns, ammunition and hunting knives from their shelves Saturday as a safety precaution.

"We didn't notice any unusual demand for weapons," said a spokesman for the May Co. stores, "but we decided to be on the safe side and not encourage possible pilferage or riots in the stores."

The Bullock's and Broadway stores have also withdrawn weapons from their shelves.

The May Co. and Broadway Crenshaw stores closed early Saturday afternoon, normally the busiest time in the week, as the riots came increasingly close to the Crenshaw shopping area.

have tended to ignore it. But it was there all the time. "Of course, Watts, with the highest percentage of Negroes in the city, was the hotbed," he declared.

Cannon said some of the riot's causes are primarily racial, others are not. But in the final analysis they seem to add up to an overwhelming sense of alienation from society, a feeling on the part of poor Negroes of having been utterly rejected by the rest of America.

"The anger is fantastic. I saw it. The fury of the riot was unmitigated. These people feel they've been at the bottom of the heap just too long."

Cannon agreed with another Negro psychiatrist, Dr. Alvin Poussaint, who pointed to the element of self-hatred in the riot. Poussaint, southern field director for the Medical Committee on Human Rights in Jackson, Miss., said the disadvantaged Negroes "have been told so often they are no good that they don't think much of themselves, and they resent the fact that they don't."

Cannon said the sense of police persecution felt by Watts' Negroes is quite real, and played a definite part in the disturbances. "It's true the police are often made a whipping boy, but they've contributed their bit," he said.

Whether whites know it or not, or care to believe it or not, police almost systematically harass Negroes in the low income areas, insult their women and "call them every filthy name possible," said Cannon.

BUT POLICE officials emphatically rejected the charge. If anything, Parker told newsmen, the police may have been too kind to Negro suspects in recent years. Police Inspector James Fisk said acts of misconduct by individual policemen are "isolated. The misconduct does not reflect police practice or policy," he asserted.

Moreover, said Fisk, the instances of so-called police brutality have been "minute."

AS THE explanation developed, certain facts emerged which may throw additional light on the causes of the riot.

A confidential Labor Department report, for example, tells of the steady disintegration of Negro family life in America.

In cities, it points out, nearly one fourth of the Negro women who have been married are now divorced or separated. The rate for white women is 7.9%.

Nearly one out of every four Negro babies born today is illegitimate. The Negro illegitimacy rate — 23.6% — compares to 3.07% for whites.

More than half of all Negro children are helped by federal-state aid to dependent children, against 8% for white children.

THIS WAS A FAMILIAR SCENE in Los Angeles as police rounded up looting suspects and searched them. Rioting continued in city despite troops.

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—A fire captain who inspected the riot-disaster area by helicopter Saturday night said all the fire department could hope to do was keep the flames from spreading to adjoining buildings.

"We don't have the manpower to extinguish them," Capt. William Clutterham said. "From the air, I could see them lighting new fires by throwing inflammable liquids against the sides of buildings."

At the fire command headquarters, Chief D. J. Brunetti said more than 200 fire incidents had been reported Saturday alone, "and we're not even halfway through the shift."

HE SAID more than 350 incidents were reported Friday, and tripled the original estimate of damage due to fire alone to at least $30 million. Total loss was estimated at $100 million.

"I have had a report from the field that for an entire 14-block area of Central Avenue no commercial building is standing," he said. "All the big stores in the area have been either destroyed or damaged to some extent."

He said the devastation area designated by police was 30 blocks wide and 100 blocks long.

CAPT. CLUTTERHAM said 8 to 10 fires were in progress at separate locations, some of them involving whole groups of buildings. One blaze at a giant furniture store was visible from the Harbor Freeway.

"Many times, by the time we get there, they have pretty good starts," Capt. Clutterham said. "Our purpose is merely to keep them from spreading to private houses."

ping-up operations with transistor radios.

Damage continued to mount as fires broke out at scattered locations throughout the battle zone — encompassing a quadrangle roughly bordered on the south and north by 120th Street and Adams Boulevard, and on the west and east by Crenshaw Boulevard and Alameda Street.

Officials said the burning and looting loss already had reached at least $100 million, as the rioting and pillaging moved into its fourth night.

Gov. Brown, making an emergency flight home from a vacation in Greece, said he was determined to halt the riot.

"I'm going to restore law and order," Brown said. "We're in a state of insurrection." The governor declined to say if and when he would declare martial law, but said he had ordered Anderson to impose the curfew.

As the governor sped toward Los Angeles, columns of police and guardsmen made sweep after sweep through the ruined riot area. Streets began clearing as guardsmen in jeeps mounting machine guns moved in escorting busloads of officers.

A POLICE officer with a portable loudspeaker moved along with one column warning persons leaning out of second-story windows to "get back inside and pull the blinds."

During daylight hours Saturday, laughing, clowning youths, the unmistakable look of triumph lighting their faces, promised everywhere.

"Tonight's the night, Whitey," Cruising in autos, they screamed out windows at National Guardsmen preparing to move to a new trouble spot. "You better shoot first."

Teen-age Negro girls danced in front of newsmen's cameras wanting to pose in front of a burning Hub Furniture Store at Broadway and 42nd Street.

THROUGHOUT the war-torn area, the word went out from alleys, streets, auto windows, and storefronts that Saturday night would be THE NIGHT.

Throughout the afternoon, hit-and-run looters and rioters ravaged an increasingly wide area.

National Guardsmen and law-enforcement officers moved into the burning 103rd Street area to rescue police in the Watts police station who had been under siege since 11 p.m. Friday. The bodies of four Negro snipers were found outside the bullet-pocked station.

But as troops and officers restored order to one sector of one street, the hit-and-run pillagers would strike a block away.

RIOTERS struck in Compton and Pasadena Friday and caused scores of false calls and confusion, both of police and civilians.

Firestone sheriff's station on Compton Avenue, at noon reported 400 arrests. Looting suspects were crammed in every available space, including the briefing room, deputies reported.

On the station roof, armed guards maintained vigilance in an effort to head off the kind of attacks that put three Los Angeles police stations under siege.

Despite the curfew, which emptied several streets and scattered the looters, the torching and plundering went on. At dusk, fire officials said nearly a dozen major blazes were burning, and others were being started.

However, the number was still fewer than Friday night, when hundreds of fires brightened the darkened skies.

As the rioting continued, reports mounted that there was a hint of organization behind the violence. One group of looters was reported wearing red arm bands for identification.

Marching Soldiers, Police Clear Ways

—north on Avalon Boulevard from Slauson Avenue to Washington Boulevard—counted 17 men arrested in the 2½ hours. A similar number was arrested in a parallel and simultaneous march along Central Avenue.

Reaction of Negroes varied greatly to the sight of 100 marching policemen and guardsmen armed with riot guns, M-1 rifles, carbines and burp guns.

One belligerent Negro woman shouted at a police officer: "You've got the guns. Go ahead and shoot us. I hate every damned one of you."

Another woman standing among a family group shouted angrily at a photographer, "I dare you to take my picture. You wouldn't feel so safe without all these soldiers around."

An older Negro man, standing with his wife in a doorway, said, "Take their pictures (of the looters and Negroes being rousted). They're all dummies."

A Negro man in a car with his wife complained to a reporter, "We drove across Avalon to get our groceries. Now they won't let us drive back across the street to get home. What they're doing now (the looting outside the bullet-pocked station) is not right, either."

His wife added, "I want to get back. The children are at home."

Ambulance Shortage

LOS ANGELES (AP) — An ambulance shortage was reported by one of the city's major hospitals, which said it was receiving calls for ambulances from all over the city.

THE CONTINUING violence caused postponements and cancellations of activities and services. In most of the area there was no mail delivery and no bus service. Burned out power lines were not repaired, because emergency crews refused to enter the areas without police protection.

Citizens were asked to stay away from the trouble spots. A Los Angeles Rams-Dallas Cowboys exhibition football game was postponed because the Memorial Coliseum is in the riot region. Circus performances in the Sports Arenas also were cancelled.

Other events, especially teenage dances and similar gatherings, some far from the violence, were called off.

MEANWHILE, 8,000 additional troops from Northern California's 49th Infantry Division were being convoyed into Los Angeles to support the units of the 40th Armored Division already committed to riot duty.

The 40th, headquartered in Los Angeles, had 5,000 men in the field by late evening, and strength was expected to expand to 12,500 by midnight or early morning.

Saturday's looting and plundering started earlier, and was more vicious than earlier, in some cases the rioting—thieves braved flames to steal television sets and appliances.

Stores with signs reading "Negro owned" or "Brother," often escaped the looting. In other instances, however, race ference to the mobs. Police said they were making only a limited effort to halt the theft rampage, but were primarily interested in protecting lives.

"FOR EVERY call we can answer, there are dozens we can't reach," one officer said. The rioting, which erupted last Wednesday night when two white Highway Patrol officers arrested a Negro on drunken-driving charges, is the worst in Los Angeles history and both cases and nobody was has the highest death toll of any racially inspired outbreak since the 1943 Detroit riots in which 34 died.

Among the dead were a white deputy sheriff, shot in the Watts District, and a white fireman killed in the collapse of a blazing wall. The others were civilians.

In the sweep, dubbed "Operation Iron Fist" by a reporter, the police sergeant would halt his men at each intersection. Looking down Avalon and the side streets, he would proclaim through a portable loudspeaker:

"As a peace officer of the state of California and as a police officer of the city of Los Angeles, I now declare there to be an unlawful assembly. In the name of the people of California, I command you to disperse. Get in your homes and off the streets. All persons remaining in the area will be arrested."

Women and children peeking out upstairs windows were ordered to get back from the windows. Men and children in the yards were ordered into their homes.

CARS approaching Avalon from side streets were stopped by pointed rifles. Police and guardsmen ordered them to reverse their directions.

As the police and guardsmen—marching 100-strong—progressed up Avalon, details of four to six Guardsmen were dropped from trucks at each intersection to maintain the dispersal order.

When the 2½-hour march was completed, guardsmen began letting motorists cross Avalon.

Sporadic fires were breaking out in neighborhoods several blocks from the march, and police and guardsmen began to prepare for the night's activity.

Most died of gunshot wounds. Police Chief William Parker, in a television appearance at the height of the outbreak, ripped into what he called the "demagogic . . . pseudo-leaders of the Negro community, who can't lead at all."

He said the Negroes are trying to blame the police for assaults. In some cases the rioting—"A vicious canard."

He said the Negro leaders are trying to relieve Negro people of the responsibility in this situation," and he added, "we can't overcome their tremendous wave of propaganda."

Mayor Promises To Catch Bombers

BATON ROUGE, La. (UPI) —With the FBI, state police and city police working in the case, Mayor W. W. Dumas vowed Saturday that the bombers of a Negro hotel and motel last Thursday night will be caught.

Civil rights workers were staying at the hotel and driving charges, is the worst in Los Angeles history and both cases and nobody was has the highest death toll of any racially inspired outbreak since the 1943 Detroit riots in which 34 died.

Two Arrests in Springfield Rights Rally

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (UPI) — More than 250 singing, chanting Negroes marched on City Hall Saturday night and police swiftly arrested two of them when they left the main group and approached the steps of the building.

The crowd filed into Court Square Park across from City Hall amid speculation that others would attempt to cross the street to the building's steps.

TWENTY-FIVE civil-rights demonstrators were arrested on the steps Friday night when they refused to end a marathon "camp out" protesting alleged police brutality.

Police warned that anyone who tried to resume the City Hall demonstration this weekend would be arrested.

A Negro minister, Rev. A. L. Gaskill, told the crowd, "We do not want a Los Angeles or a Chicago in Springfield. If you have any kind of weapon on you, get rid of it."

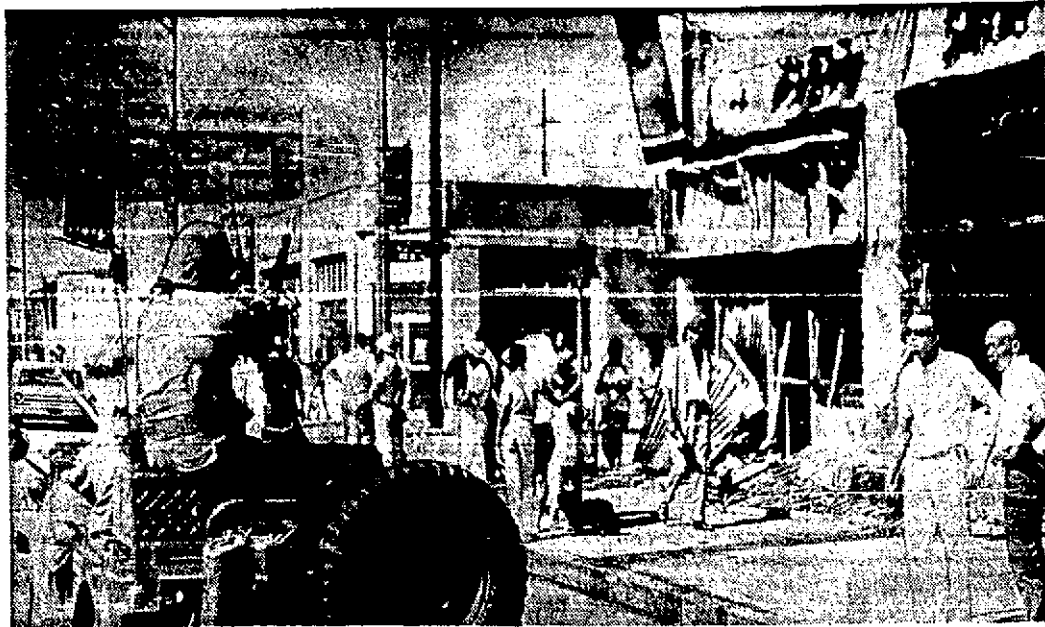

"WE DID NOT come down to fight. If trouble comes, let it come, but from another source, not us."

The two who were arrested were Negroes about 19 years old. Police intercepted them about 50 feet from the City Hall steps and hustled them into a waiting cruiser.

Negroes March In Vote Protest

CRAWFORDVILLE, Ga. (UPI) — About 100 Negroes marched to the courthouse Saturday in a voter registration demonstration, sat down on the steps and vowed to remain there until they are registered.

A local policeman, who declined to identify himself, said the courthouse was closed and there was no way the Negroes could be registered immediately.

MACHINE GUN READY, NATIONAL GUARDSMEN KEEP CROWD OUT OF FIRE AREA

Two Lonely Policemen Halt Mob

By BILL DUNCAN

Los Angeles Times Staff Writer

Two Los Angeles policemen, both white, braved a mob of nearly a thousand Negroes crowded around a city block of burning buildings at 40th Street and Central Avenue Saturday afternoon to stop wholesale looting.

Looters were everywhere and the two officers—with

Curb Racial Acts, Graham Tells Congress

MONTREAT, N.C. (AP) —

Evangelist Billy Graham said Saturday night Congress should take action immediately to curb the violence that is rocking the nation.

Graham said the situation is growing so serious that the nation's lawmakers should drop other legislative considerations immediately and "devise new laws to curb the type of violence that is going on in California, Illinois and Massachusetts."

The noted preacher, who many years ago opened his meetings to all races said in an interview with the Asheville (N.C.) Citizen-Times he believes "sinister forces in the country are trying to set race against race and class against class with the ruthless objective of overthrowing the government."

help 40 blocks to their rear—stood against a swelling mass, actually an angry mob, forcing the looters to drop loads of stolen merchandise.

The only other white men in the area were a hand full of firemen busy battling a fire — sweeping store structures in a block-long business district—and I, P-T photographer Bob Shumway and myself.

We all were literally surrounded.

THE two police officers, ignoring the danger they were in, stood their ground and threatened to shoot the looters if they did not obey the command to "drop" the stolen clothing, furniture, food — anything they could carry.

The loot was in piles in the

Mississippi White Youth Shot in Head

LAUREL, Miss. (UPI) — A white youth was shot in the head and wounded critically while driving through a Negro section in an open convertible, police reported Saturday.

Authorities said the victim, 17-year-old David Parker, was struck about 10 p.m. Friday as the car drove past a Negro high school.

Parker, of nearby Ellisville, was treated at a local hospital and then rushed to Baptist Hospital in Jackson.

POLICE CHIEF L. C. Nix declined comment, except to say, "We believe he was shot by a Negro, and we are conducting an investigation." He said further details would be released when the investigation was completed.

The convertible in which the wounded boy was riding was driven by a cousin, Curtis Parker.

Pickets Protest Police Brutality

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A group of 15-25 pickets marched in front of the police building Friday night carrying signs protesting asserted police brutality in trying to suppress a three-day Negro riot.

Police said all the pickets were white.

Red China Press Plays Up Rioting

By Associated Press

Rioting in Los Angeles has received mixed treatment in foreign newspapers, with some handling the story in a restrained manner and others giving it full front-page display. Several Communist press agencies took the opportunity to criticize the United States.

Communist China's official New China News Agency described the riot as "a general outburst of their Negroes pent-up dissatisfaction."

NCNA in a broadcast monitored in Tokyo said: "It is not a mere coincidence that the Negro struggle against police brutality in Los Angeles has become so fierce."

"Some leaders of the Negro movement have warned that the Negro district was calm only in appearance, for the 330,000 Negroes, or 12% of the population of the city, were always dissatisfied with discrimination in employment, housing, education and in other fields, with abject poverty and savage police persecution."

The East German news agency said: "... Apparently the rioting is not organized, and certainly not by civil rights groups. ... Various observers see in the events a consequence of race politics in the U.S.A."

THE SOVIET news agency Tass said Los Angeles "has literally turned into a battlefield between the Negro population, protesting against racial discrimination, and the police. The police and units of the National Guard have resorted to arms against the demonstrators, but they were unable so far to 'restore law and order' and to make the Negro population knuckle under."

Papers in race-conscious South Africa have splashed the Los Angeles Negro riots in their front-page leads the past two days.

The rioting pushed other stories of page one in London. The Daily Mirror headlined the story "Race Fury—Troops Face 5,000 Rioters." The headline in the reserved Times said: "Los Angeles Calls in Riot Troops; Shots Fired at Police as Looting Spreads."

Two Arrests in Springfield Rights Rally

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (UPI) — More than 250 singing, chanting Negroes marched on City Hall Saturday night and police swiftly arrested two of them when they left the main group and approached the steps of the building.

The crowd filed into Court Square Park across from City Hall amid speculation that others would attempt to cross the street to the building's steps.

TWENTY-FIVE civil-rights demonstrators were arrested on the steps Friday night when they refused to end a "marathon" "camp out" protesting alleged police brutality.

Police warned that anyone who tried to resume the City Hall demonstration this weekend would be arrested.

A Negro minister, Rev. A. L. Gaskill, told the crowd, "We do not want a Los Angeles or a Chicago in Springfield. If you have any kind of weapon on you, get rid of it."

"WE DID NOT come down to fight. If trouble comes, let it come, but from another source, not us."

The two who were arrested were Negroes about 19 years old. Police intercepted them about 50 feet from the City Hall steps and hustled them into a waiting cruiser.

Negroes March in Vote Protest

CRAWFORDVILLE, Ga. (UPI) — About 100 Negroes marched to the courthouse Saturday in a voter registration demonstration, sat down on the steps and vowed to remain there until they are registered.

A local policeman, who declined to identify himself, said the courthouse was closed and there was no way the Negroes could be registered immediately.

MACHINE GUN READY, NATIONAL GUARDSMEN KEEP CROWD OUT OF FIRE AREA

Two Lonely Policemen Halt Mob

By BILL DUNCAN

L. P. T. Staff Writer

Two Los Angeles policemen, both white, braved a mob of nearly a thousand Negroes crowded around a city block of burning buildings at 40th Street and Central Avenue Saturday afternoon to stop wholesale looting.

Looters were everywhere and the two officers—with

Curb Racial Acts, Graham Tells Congress

MONTREAT, N.C. (AP) — Evangelist Billy Graham said Saturday night Congress should take action immediately to curb the violence that is rocking the nation.

Graham said the situation is growing so serious that the nation's lawmakers should drop other legislative considerations immediately and "devise new laws to curb the type of violence that is going on in California, Illinois and Massachusetts."

The noted preacher, who many years ago opened his meetings to all races said in an interview with the Asheville (N.C.) Citizen-Times he believes "sinister forces in the country are trying to set race against race and class against class with the ruthless objective of overthrowing the government."

help 40 blocks to their rear—stood against a swelling mass, actually an angry mob, forcing the looters to drop loads of stolen merchandise.

The only other white men in the area were a hand full of firemen busy battling a fire — sweeping store structures in a block-long business district—and I. P. T. photographer Bob Shumway and myself.

We all were literally surrounded.

THE two police officers, ignoring the danger they were in, stood their ground and threatened to shoot the looters if they did not obey the command to "drop" the stolen clothing, furniture, food — anything they could carry.

The loot was in piles in the

Locked in Loot

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A looting suspect became the victim of his loot. Officers found him carrying a pair of stolen handcuffs, snapped them on him and hauled him off to the sheriff's station.

street in front of the two officers.

The looters were dashing in under the firemen's hoses to snatch the merchandise. Cars clogged Central Avenue — the only escape route out of the area.

Motorists continually ran over firehose in what appeared to be a deliberate attempt to burst them and stop the firemen's valiant effort to stem the sweeping blaze.

It was madness.

ALL THE time you kept thinking, "It is not really happening—not here."

As our car swung out on Central Avenue and poked along in the traffic jam, I suddenly got a sick feeling I was deserting those two brave officers, leaving them to the mercy of an angry mob, seething with more hate than I care to witness in another lifetime.

Before we reached Slauson Avenue, we spotted three police units—six armed officers in each car—speeding to the two men's aid.

Shumway insisted we return under this halo of police protection. Since I was driving — discretion won over valor.

Mississippi White Youth Shot in Head

LAUREL, Miss. (UPI) — A white youth was shot in the head and wounded critically while driving through a Negro section in an open convertible, police reported Saturday.

Authorities said the victim, 17-year-old David Parker, was struck about 10 p.m. Friday as the car drove past a Negro high school.

Parker, of nearby Ellisville, was treated at a local hospital and then rushed to Baptist Hospital in Jackson.

POLICE CHIEF L. C. Nix declined comment, except to say, "We believe he was shot by a Negro, and we are conducting an investigation." He said further details would be released when the investigation was completed.

The convertible in which the wounded boy was riding was driven by a cousin, Curtis Parker.

Pickets Protest Police Brutality

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A group of 15-25 pickets marched in front of the police building Friday night carrying signs protesting alleged police brutality in trying to suppress a three-day Negro riot.

Police said all the pickets were white.

Red China Press Plays Up Rioting

Rioting in Los Angeles has received mixed treatment in foreign newspapers, with some handling the story in a restrained manner and others giving it full front-page display. Several Communist press agencies took the opportunity to criticize the United States.

Communist China's official New China News Agency described the riot as "a general outburst of their Negroes' pent-up dissatisfaction."

NCNA in a broadcast monitored in Tokyo said: "It is not a mere coincidence that the Negro struggle against police brutality in Los Angeles has become so fierce."

"Some leaders of the Negro movement have warned that the Negro district was calm only in appearance, for the 330,000 Negroes, or 12% of the population of the city, were always dissatisfied with discrimination in employment, housing, education and in other fields, with abject poverty and savage police persecution."

The East German news agency said: "... Apparently the rioting is not organized, and certainly not by civil rights groups ... Various observers see in the events a consequence of race politics in the U.S.A."

RENDEZVOUS STUDY FOR GEMINI 5

Spacecraft to Hop Around Satellite

HOUSTON—On the second of 121 orbits in the eight-day Gemini 5 flight, an ungainly, 73-pound satellite will be kicked away from the speeding spacecraft.

This mechanism is the REP or Rendezvous Evaluation Pod. Maneuvering close to it is one of the primary objectives of the flight.

Command pilot Gordon Cooper will turn the spacecraft sideways on the second orbit and a small explosive charge will kick the REP out of the narrow adapter section.

This 20 by 30-inch satellite with flashing lights, antennas, radar equipment and batteries will go into the same orbit as the spacecraft.

Cooper and co-pilot Pete Conrad will then make a series of three maneuvers which will put them above and behind the REP, then below and behind it. During this time the spacecraft will be as far as 45 miles from the pod.

The Astronauts will start their final approach from 12 miles behind and 6 miles below. They hope to get within 20 to 100 feet of the REP and hold that position.

Radar in the spacecraft nose talks electronically with the pod to keep track of its relative position. Answer signals from the pod feed into a computer which tells the Astronauts what maneuvers are needed to bring the two together.

The final approach will be made when the spacecraft is between Antigua and Ascension Islands on the fourth orbit.

Cooper, at the controls, should have the pod in view through a gunsight-like device. He will tilt the spacecraft nose up 28 degrees and apply whatever amount and direction of thrust that the computer tells him.

Radar will keep Cooper advised of the distance to go. Conrad beside him will be punching computer buttons and calculating with pad and pencil. They have the opportunity to make two mid-course corrections, then they will begin braking their movement over Australia.

Rendezvous will be successfully completed when the spacecraft is within 100 feet of the pod with no relative movement between the two.

Rendezvous should occur when Gemini-5 has been aloft five hours and 36 minutes. It will be night over that part of the Earth and the spacecraft will stay in this tandem position until they fly into daylight.

The astronauts then will photograph the pod at various angles and under different lighting and background conditions as part of an experiment to identify space objects.

When they are finished with REP, Cooper will use his thrusters to go into a higher orbit leaving the satellite to burn up in the atmosphere in about three days.

This first attempt at space togetherness will evaluate the guidance and navigation system to be used on later flights.

Becoming skilled at docking two vehicles in space is a vital preliminary for getting men back from the Moon.

Howard Tindall, assistant chief of mission planning and analyses at the Manned Spacecraft Center calls the maneuvers on GT-5 "a scaled-down version of the rendezvous for Gemini 6. Distances will be less, but the flight path and time will be the same."

During the remainder of the flight, some 16 medical, scientific and technological experiments will be conducted.

5 L. B. Fires Set, Jail 27

Civil authorities had watched a rising tide of rowdiness in the city's old Negro district all evening. There were hundreds of rumors and false alarms, which brought out both police and firemen.

A small hamburger shop, at 923 E. Anaheim St., was set afire at 9:45 p.m., but the fire was extinguished only moments later by city firemen.

Police said they found a partly filled can of gasoline near the parking lot.

An almost instant reaction throughout the city followed the erroneous report by a Los Angeles newscaster that a bombing had occurred in a North Long Beach neighborhood.

Long Beach firemen and policemen, and sheriff's deputies, all reported they could find "no trace of any bombing or fire" at the area named in a telephoned tip.

Wary authorities investigated urgent calls, so far as possible, before sending equipment to the areas.

In late evening, police cruisers repeatedly reported acts of rowdiness in the congested residential-business area centering on Anaheim Street and California Avenue. Police reported several windows of businesses were broken.

Guards at the Long Beach Naval Station on Terminal

Island have been increased and supplied with riot guns, according to Rear Adm. C. B. Jones, base commander.

"It's strictly for deterrent and precautionary purposes, in case someone decides to try to damage federal property," he said.

Earlier, Long Beach's top officials issued statements indicating alertness, but confidence that Long Beach would not be subjected to rioting.

Mayor Edwin Wade said, "Long Beach has great confidence in its Negro community, and has always enjoyed a wonderful relationship with its leaders."

"We have, of course," the mayor added "taken precautionary measures against trouble coming to us from the outside. Although we realize the possibility of rioters coming here, we feel secure with our own citizenry." The mayor met earlier Saturday with City Manager John Mansell and Asst. Police Chief William Kummer to lay the groundwork for any emergency procedures needed to handle possible outbreaks of trouble.

POLICE CHIEF William Mooney, vacationing at his home, said:

"I urge everyone to remain calm. Although we have had a number of rumors and threats, we are confident our Negro community is not a party to them."

E. B. Campbell, local president of the NAACP, called for a calm appraisal of the problems facing Long Beach and the surrounding area.

"The looting and rioting which has occurred in Los Angeles will not help resolve the problems that exist," Campbell said. The Negro leader said public officials should make immediate plans to meet with Negro community leaders for a hearing on what Campbell termed "legitimate grievances" such as inadequate recreational facilities, lack of representation in city government, educational planning for minority areas, and others.

5 L. B. Fires Set, Jail 27

Civil authorities had watched a rising tide of rowdiness in the city's old Negro district all evening. There were hundreds of rumors and false alarms, which brought out both police and firemen.

A small hamburger shop, at 923 E. Anaheim St., was set afire at 9:45 p.m., but the fire was extinguished only moments later by city firemen. Police said they found a partly filled can of gasoline near the parking lot.

An almost instant reaction throughout the city followed the erroneous report by a Los Angeles newscaster that a bombing had occurred in a North Long Beach neighborhood.

Long Beach firemen and policemen, and sheriff's deputies, all reported they could find "no trace of any bombing or fire" at the area named in a telephoned tip.

Wary authorities investigated urgent calls, so far as possible, before sending equipment to the areas.

In late evening, police cruisers repeatedly reported acts of rowdiness in the congested residential-business area centering on Anaheim Street and California Avenue. Police reported several windows of businesses were broken.

The traditional bottle of champagne was smashed on the hull at the Newport News Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Co. by Negro singer Marian Anderson.

THE WEEK IN REVIEW

Racial Riots—Death, Fire, Destruction

BY PETE WILSON
Telephone Editor

Racial violence—death, fire and destruction—erupted last week in Los Angeles and two other of the nation's major cities.

Rioters in Los Angeles burned and pillaged stores, threw rocks, bricks, bottles and Molotov cocktails and killed and were killed.

A hospital was attacked and a police station set afire in the riot that was an outgrowth of an incident that occurred when a white California highway patrolman arrested a drunken-driving suspect near the center of the Watts district Wednesday evening.

AFTER TWO nights and a day of open warfare, Los Angeles Police Chief William Parker Friday requested the aid of the National Guard to help police and Los Angeles County deputy sheriffs.

California Lt. Gov. Glenn Anderson activated the 40th Armored Division of the guard and guardsmen with fixed bayonets and loaded rifles moved into the area. Gov. Brown cut short his vacation in Greece because of the riots and flew back to the state Saturday night.

In Chicago, violence began after an underequipped fire engine killed a Negro woman standing near an intersection on the West Side Wednesday night.

Hundreds of Negroes hurling bricks, broken bottles and Molotov cocktails rioted near a West Side fire station. It was the city's worst outbreak since 1952. As in Los Angeles, the rioting grew larger each successive night.

Negro youths in Springfield, Mass., added flaming torches to the other missiles and Molotov cocktails being hurled through the air. The violence there was touched off by the arrest Friday of 23 civil-rights demonstrators on the steps of the City Hall. Fires were started in two white-owned stores in the city.

IN THE Deep South, federal voting examiners last week began registering Negroes under the new Voting Rights Law. The examiners were concentrating on counties in Alabama, Mississippi and Louisiana.

At the same time, the

federal government filed three suits in state and local taxes in Alabama, Virginia and Texas.

In Viet Nam, five U.S. Navy planes were downed Friday during armed reconnaissance flights over North Viet Nam. Three of the Navy pilots were rescued, a fourth was missing and presumed dead and the fifth was listed as missing.

A surface-to-air missile, presumably Soviet-built, downed a Navy plane Thursday in a region of North Viet Nam outside the range of known missile sites around Hanoi. Officials said the missile apparently came from a mobile launcher.

The missile attack came as U.S. and Vietnamese ground forces lifted the 70-day siege of Duc Co in South Viet Nam where 13 Americans had been trapped with their force of hill tribesmen.

North Vietnamese President Ho Chi Minh, in an interview with a Paris newsman, declared there can be no peace talks unless the United States meets all of his demands, including withdrawal of U.S. troops from the country.

However, diplomatic sources said Communist China has tightened its control over North Viet Nam and would not allow the Hanoi regime to engage in peace talks with the United States even if it wanted to.

President Johnson, relaxing and working in Johnson City, Tex., Friday made it known that the United States intends to abide by “humanitarian principles” in treatment of war prisoners, civilians and hospitals in South Viet Nam.

HIS PLEDGE to the International Committee of the Red Cross was, in part, an implied challenge to the Communist forces to pledge humane treatment of prisoners and noncombatants.

In Washington and Berkeley, hundreds of demonstrators protested U.S. policy in Viet Nam. Some were injured, many were arrested.

In other news spheres: —A House subcommittee apparently killed at least for this year the Pentagon's plan to merge Army Reserve units into the National Guard.

—Congress passed and sent to the President a bill to give the military its third military pay raise in two years—a $1,084,029,000 package with a special bonus for U.S. fighting men in Viet Nam.

—The House passed a $3.25-billion public works development bill with some alterations which the Senate is expected to accept without too much argument.

—President Johnson signed into law the $7.5-billion housing bill containing a rent-subsidy plan. He termers it a big step toward the day when every family in the nation will live “in a home of dignity.”

—Three House-passed bills to provide increased benefits for disabled veterans and for children of servicemen were approved by the Senate. Two were sent to the President and one was sent back to the House because of changes.

—The Health Research Facilities Act, which provides $250 million for construction of the facilities, was signed by Johnson.

—The President asked Congress for $1.3 million for reservoirs to store water in the drought-stricken Northeast.

—Luther Terry resigned as U.S. Surgeon General to become vice president of the University of Pennsylvania. A successor is being sought.

—The University of Texas is going to provide a 14-acre site to provide a library to house President Johnson's papers after he leaves office.

—Fifty-three men died in an explosion-fire in a Titan II missile silo near Searcy, Ark. A 30-man Air Force investigation board was probing the tragedy.

—The state of Singapore

left the Federation of Malaysia and announced it planned to adopt a non-aligned foreign policy.

—Greek King Constantine was warned by ousted Premier George Papandreu that the future of the monarchy was in doubt unless he was put back in office or new elections were called. Friday, it appeared that Elias Tsirimokos, a onetime Socialist with a background of Communist ties, was gaining strength in an attempt to form a new government.

—Astronauts L. Gordon Cooper and Charles Conrad will be kept in seclusion 11 days after their forthcoming 8-day space flight. Space officials said previous flights have shown the need for an unbroken period of medical tests and pilot reporting before they are interviewed by the press.

—The United States moved close to a diplomatic break with the Congo Republic by closing down the American Embassy in Brazzaville which adjoins the Congo. Congolese officials then withdrew their personnel from Washington.

—The Beatles flew into New York Friday for a tour of the United States.

—A peace move by the Organization of American states met opposition from both sides in the Dominican Republic.

—Nagasaki, Japan marked the 20th anniversary of the atomic bombing of that city. Hiroshima marked the 20th anniversary of that city's bombing the previous week.

—The fourth anniversary of the erection of the Communist Wall between East and West Berlin was Friday.

THE WEEK IN REVIEW

Racial Riots — Death, Fire, Destruction

BY PETE WILSON
Telegraph Editor

Racial violence — death, fire and destruction — erupted last week in Los Angeles and two other of the nation's major cities.

Rioters in Los Angeles burned and pillaged stores, threw rocks, bricks, bottles and Molotov cocktails and —killed and were killed.

A hospital was attacked and a police station set afire in the riot that was an outgrowth of an incident that occurred when a white California highway patrolman arrested a drunken-driving suspect near the center of the Watts district Wednesday evening.

AFTER TWO nights and a day of open warfare, Los Angeles Police Chief William Parker Friday requested the aid of the National Guard to help police and Los Angeles County deputy sheriffs.

California Lt. Gov. Glenn Anderson activated the 40th Armored Division of the guard and guardsmen with fixed bayonets and loaded rifles moved into the area.

Gov. Brown cut short his vacation in Greece because of the riots and flew back to the state Saturday night.

In Chicago, violence began after an undermanned fire engine killed a Negro woman standing near an intersection on the West Side Wednesday night.

Hundreds of Negroes hurling bricks, broken bottles and Molotov cocktails rioted near a West Side fire station. It was the city's worst outbreak since 1952. As in Los Angeles, the rioting grew larger each successive night.

Negro youths in Springfield, Mass., added flaming torches to the other missiles and Molotov cocktails being hurled through the air. The violence there was touched off by the arrest Friday of 23 civil-rights demonstrators on the steps of the City Hall. Fires were started in two white-owned stores in the city.

IN THE Deep South, federal voting examiners last week began registering Negroes under the new Voting Rights Law. The examiners were concentrating on counties in Alabama, Mississippi and Louisiana.

At the same time, the federal government filed three suits to ban state and local taxes in Alabama, Virginia and Texas.

In Viet Nam, five U.S. Navy planes were downed Friday during armed reconnaissance flights over North Viet Nam. Three of the Navy pilots were rescued, a fourth was missing and presumed dead and the fifth was listed as missing.

A surface-to-air missile, presumably Soviet-built, downed a Navy plane Thursday in a region of North Viet Nam outside the range of known missile sites around Hanoi. Officials said the missile apparently came from a mobile launcher.

The missile attack came as U.S. and Vietnamese ground forces lifted the 70-day siege of Duc Co in South Viet Nam where 13 Americans had been trapped with their force of hill tribesmen.

North Vietnamese President Ho Chi Minh, in an interview with a Paris newsman, declared there can be no peace talks unless the United States meets all of his demands, including withdrawal of U.S. troops from the country.

However, diplomatic sources said Communist China has tightened its control over North Viet Nam and would not allow the Hanoi regime to engage in peace talks with the United States even if it wanted to.

President Johnson, relaxing and working in Johnson City, Tex., Friday made it known that the United States intends to abide by oners, civilians and hospital-als in South Viet Nam.

HIS PLEDGE to the International Committee of the Red Cross was, in part, an implied challenge to the Communist forces to pledge humane treatment of prisoners and noncombatants.

In Washington and Berkeley, hundreds of demonstrators protested U.S. policy in Viet Nam. Some were injured, many were arrested.

In other news spheres:
—A House subcommittee apparently killed at least for this year the Pentagon's plan to merge Army Reserve units into the National Guard.

Congress passed and sent to the President a bill to give the military its third military pay raise in two years—a $1,084,029,000 package with a special bonus for U.S. fighting men in Viet Nam.

The House passed a $3.25-billion public works development bill with some alterations which the Senate is expected to accept without too much argument.

President Johnson signed into law the $7.5-billion housing bill containing a rent-subsidy plan. He termed it a big step toward the day when every family in the nation will live "in a home of dignity."

—Three House-passed bills to provide increased benefits for disabled veterans and for children of servicemen were approved by the Senate. Two were sent to the President and one was sent back to the House because of changes.

—The Health Research Facilities Act, which provides $250 million for construction of the facilities, was signed by Johnson.

—The President asked Congress for $1.3 million for reservoirs to store water in the drought-stricken Northeast.

—Luther Terry resigned as U.S. Surgeon General to become vice president of the University of Pennsylvania. A successor is being sought.

—The University of Texas is going to provide a 14-acre site to provide a library to house President Johnson's papers after he leaves office.

—Fifty-three men died in an explosion-fire in a Titan II missile silo near Searcy, Ark. A 30-man Air Force investigation board was probing the tragedy.

—The state of Singapore

left the Federation of Malaysia and announced it planned to adopt a non-aligned foreign policy.

—Greek King Constantine was warned by ousted Premier George Papandreu that the future of the monarchy was in doubt unless he was put back in office or new elections were called. Friday, it appeared that Elias Tsirimokos, a onetime Socialist with a background of Communist ties, was gaining strength in an attempt to form a new government.

—Astronauts L. Gordon Cooper and Charles Conrad will be kept in seclusion 11 days after their forthcoming 8-day space flight. Space officials said previous flights have shown the need for an unbroken period of medical tests and pilot reporting before they are interviewed by the press.

—A peace move by the Organization of American states met opposition from both sides in the Dominican Republic.

—Nagasaki, Japan marked the 20th anniversary of the atomic bombing of that city. Hiroshima marked the 20th anniversary of that city's bombing the previous week.

—The fourth anniversary of the erection of the Communist Wall between East and West Berlin was Friday.

—The United States moved close to a diplomatic break with the Congo Republic by closing down the American Embassy in Brazzaville which adjoins the Congo. Congolese officials then withdrew their personnel from Washington.

—The Beatles flew into New York Friday for a tour of the United States.

4,000 Marines Land at Chu Lai

SAIGON, Viet Nam, Sunday (AP)—Some 4,000 U.S. Marines landed in South Viet Nam this weekend, boosting to more than 86,000 the rolls of the U.S. armed forces in the country.

About 1,200 Marines came ashore in Da Nang this morning, following landing of 2,800 Leathernecks Saturday at the Marine complex at Chu Lai, 52 miles south of Da Nang. Today's arrivals were members of the Third Battalion, Ninth Marine Regiment, Third Division, formerly based at Okinawa.

On the war front, Vietnamese military authorities reported 36 Viet Cong killed in a clash with government forces Saturday in Xan Xuyen province in the southernmost part of the country, a U.S. military spokesman said.

The Vietnamese reported no government casualties, he said, and the Viet Cong toll was said to have been confirmed by body count.

Government troops Saturday mounted an offensive against the Viet Cong near North Viet Nam's doorstep, swiftly following up a raid only 17 miles from the Communist border by a fleet of U.S. B52 jet bombers.

GOP Seeks Antipoverty-Bill Cut

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Senate GOP Leader Everett M. Dirksen Saturday promised a Republican fight to cut President Johnson's $1.65 billion antipoverty bill, including a drive to restore veto power to state governors.

Dirksen conceded the minority effort, starting Monday when debate opens on the legislation, probably cannot succeed.

"There will be a fight," said the Illinois Republican. "Certainly no good reports are coming from the country about this program—if there are any, I haven't seen them."

The one-year extension of the Economic Opportunity Act of 1964 was approved without opposition at a closed-door meeting of the Senate Labor Committee.

Solo Sailor Unsighted Since Monday

FALMOUTH, England (AP)—Heavy mist and low clouds Saturday forced the Royal Air Force (RAF) to postpone its search for an American newsman missing in an attempt to cross the Atlantic in a tiny sailboat.

Robert Manry of Cleveland, Ohio, and his 13½-foot Tinkerbell have been unsighted since Monday when they were 287 miles off the southwest of England.

The RAF said it would send out patrol planes today, weather permitting, to search for Manry. Fears for his safety mounted in this English Channel port, goal of his 3,200-mile adventure.

Despite the anxiety, preparations went ahead to give the 48-year-old newsman a rousing reception. Crowds have been gathering all week and among them is a young army of British and foreign newsmen and photographers.

Manry's wife scanned the churning seas with binoculars from the deck of a trawler Saturday, hoping to sight her husband. A new "all ships alert" was issued for Manry, 48, a copyreader on the Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Wayne Recovering From Back Injury

ROME (UPI)—Actor John Wayne was hospitalized Saturday but reported recovering from a back injury suffered while filming "Cast a Giant Shadow."

Wayne hurt himself when he jumped off a jeep to wrestle with costar Kirk Douglas in a scene for the film being shot here. At first it was feared Wayne had slipped a disc but his physician, Dr. Frank Silvestri, said, "He only pulled a muscle in his back and we hope he will be back at work on Monday."

Wayne, one of the favorites of Italy's cowboy-movie fans, arrived in Rome last week and has had a royal welcome from everyone, from autograph hunters to taxi drivers.

Russ Film Moon

MOSCOW (UPI)—Russia announced Saturday one of its space stations took pictures of the Moon's hidden side as a rehearsal for photographic missions to other planets.

Soviet authorities said the Zond (Probe) Three, launched July 18, photographed the moon from a distance of 7,192 miles and the pictures were "sharp" enough to reveal many details.

The official Tass news agency said, "The moon was a sort of testing ground for the photographic equipment . . . in general, this equipment is designed for photographing planets but the moon serves as a perfectly suitable object for testing it."

Western experts, however, doubted that Zond Three itself would be sent to such planets as Mars or Venus but thought it would be the forerunner of another interplanetary probe at the end of the year.

Japan Pact OK'd

SEOUL, Korea (AP)—South Korea's National Assembly finally ratified Saturday a hotly controversial treaty to normalize relations with Japan for the first time in 60 years. A government official said Korea now faces "transition to a new forward-looking history—and the end of 'humiliation.'"

The vote was 110-0, with one abstention.

The treaty restoring relations—completed after years of negotiation and internal strife—was ratified one day short of the 20th anniversary of Korea's liberation from Japanese colonial rule, which began in 1905 and lasted until the end of World War II.

37,000 Get Orders for Extended Duty

By ELTON C. FAY

WASHINGTON (AP)—Tens of thousands of Marines and Navy men who thought they would be returning to civilian life soon received new orders Saturday:

Stay on for four months beyond the scheduled end of enlistment terms.

This involuntary extension of active duty for enlisted men in the regular establishment was ordered by Secretary of the Navy Paul H. Nitze.

The purpose is to enable the Marines and Navy to carry on until the two services can build up more manpower under the recent presidential authorization for expansion in the nation's armed strength.

VIET NAM is one direct factor. The Marines, with about 36,000 men deployed in Viet Nam, want to keep experienced men there until trained replacements can be sent.

For this reason, the order becomes applicable to the Marine Corps almost a month earlier than to the Navy.

Nitze's order says the four-month extension applies to Marines on Aug. 20, to the Navy on Sept. 15.

This means enlisted Marines whose terms of enlistment would have expired on Aug. 20 or thereafter are caught in the new order.

Navy men whose scheduled service departure date was Sept. 15 or later are affected.

The immediate impact will be on about 25,000 Navy men and 12,000 Marines whose normal release from service would have come between now and the beginning of next year.

However, the order will continue to affect others whose enlistments expire after next January, meaning that each of them will have four months added to his service.

However, the order will continue to affect others whose enlistments expire after next January, meaning that each of them will have four months added to his service.

Navy and Marine officers are affected, but face even longer extended duty. The order says of them that "approval of requests for voluntary retirement may be withheld for a period of 12 months."

But in the case of both enlisted and officer personnel Navy and Marines will take into consideration hardship cases.

USING THE draft and counting on a spurt in volunteer enlistments, spurred by the threat of the draft, the Navy expects it will increase its strength 25,000 by January. The Marine Corps estimates a 12,000 increase by then.

The Navy's authority to extend enlistments is a carry-over from the Korean War. The Army and Air Force do not have such authority and would need congressional approval to take any similar step.

A Pentagon spokesman said Saturday the latter two services have no present plans to ask such authority.

Johnson vs. Kennedy Feud Something to Watch

tion for the vice presidency; How Kennedy suspected Johnson of taping that conversation;
How Kennedy, when the President denied leaking details of the talk to the press, accused him to his face of not telling the truth.

The accounts are drawn mainly from two books written by men close to the Kennedys, "The Making of the President, 1964" by Theodore H. White, and "A Thousand Days" by former White House aide Arthur Schlesinger Jr. They conflict in some details.

Other versions have appeared and probably will continue to do so. No matter how Johnson and Kennedy try to squelch it, "feud" talk is escalating.

Both men are proud and ambitious. They know an open collision could be hurtful in personal and party terms. Kennedy needs White House support to get contacts; Johnson wants to keep the millions of Kennedy fans in his corner.

For these and other reasons, both go out of their way to appear friendly.

Privately, however, sources close to the President accuse Kennedy of shrewdly capitalizing on "feud" exposure to equate himself in the public mind with the chief executive.

Their premise is that Kennedy, as a White House aspirant now perched on a lower political rung, has more to gain from rift talk than Johnson.

Referring to the incident in which President Johnson was said to have regaled three newsmen with a play-by-play account of how he refused Kennedy the No. 2 spot on the 1964 ticket, a Johnson man said,

"Aside from that, all of the feud talk is drummed up by the press or by Bobby's actions. The President has done nothing to encourage it."

True enough, the President definitely avoided mention of Robert Kennedy and threw doubt on the accuracy of both White and Schlesinger when asked recently to clarify the stories.

True also, the President campaigned for Kennedy in New York, as Johnson people never tire of pointing out. Kennedy, they also assert, has been given every consideration on patronage.

But that does not entirely remove the President as a possible source of the friction.

WHY, FOR example, has the Democratic National Committee, run by the President's confidante Clif Carter, withheld funds from Kennedy? In May the Senator requested a cut of the $750,000 proceeds from the President's Club dinner in New York to help pay his campaign deficit. It was not forthcoming.

Why did a columnist close to the White House lash at Johnson's Viet Nam policy, port every nuance of the President's position?

According to Schlesinger, when Johnson was chosen, Bobby wailed, "My God, this wouldn't have happened except that we were all too tired last night!"

Why did the President's order banning wire tapping follow almost immediately on the news that Kennedy suspected him of taping a private conversation?

BURIED in the order was a section placing the President firmly on record as taking a dim view of tape-recorded conversations. That passage was not mentioned by White House Press Secretary Bill Moyers when he released the story weeks later.

Recently Kennedy scooped Johnson with a Senate speech urging a nuclear weapons curb, a subject the President had been considering for his address to the United Nations. Kennedy's speech underscored his identification with his late brother and implied the Johnson administration wasn't doing enough.

A secret investigation promptly was launched by the White House to trace alleged leaks to Kennedy of information used in the speech.

Earlier Kennedy said of every Democratic senator supporting Johnson's Viet Nam policy, "We have erred for some time in regarding Viet Nam as purely a military problem; criticize, every Kennedy word, when... it is also a political and diplomatic problem."

Kennedy is aware of that and once deleted passages in a ministration of intervening in release which might have been the Dominican Republic interpreted as a jab at the administration.

The President, according to a friend, is coming around to believe that "feud" talk is inevitable and doesn't really care.

U.S. Will Launch 3rd Solar Observatory

CAPE KENNEDY (AP)—The third in a series of orbiting solar observatories will be launched Aug. 24 to probe mysteries of the sun and how it affects conditions on earth, the Space Agency has announced.

The 620-pound satellite, OSO-3, will continue investigations started by two earlier OSO satellites. A total of eight is planned to chart an entire 11-year solar cycle from the present quiet period to a period of peak activity when numerous solar flares spill torrents of radiation into space.

A three-stage Delta rocket is to boost the satellite into orbit about 350 miles high. At this altitude its delicate instruments will be able to take readings that are uncluttered by the earth's thick atmosphere.

Major goals of the OSO satellites are to study X-rays, gamma, ultraviolet and infrared rays streaming from the sun. These potentially deadly particles are absorbed or destroyed by the atmosphere and thus are prevented from reaching earth.

Scientists believe these rays and the directions they travel hold clues to the origin of the solar system. They also may show how the sun controls our weather, interferes with communications, and changes the composition of the globe-girdling Van Allen belt.

The satellites also may help develop a foolproof means of predicting solar flares whose swiftly generated X-rays pose a potential threat to manned flights deep into space.

Kansas Picnic Set

Johnson vs. Kennedy Feud Something to Watch

tion for the vice presidency.
How Kennedy suspected Johnson of taping that conversation.
How Kennedy, when the President denied leaking details of the talk to the press, accused him to his face of not telling the truth.

The accounts are drawn mainly from two books written by men close to the Kennedys, "The Making of the President, 1964" by Theodore H. White, and "A Thousand Days" by former White House aide Arthur Schlesinger Jr. They conflict in some details.

Other versions have appeared and probably will continue to do so. No matter how Johnson and Kennedy try to squelch it, "feud" talk is escalating.

Both men are proud and ambitious. They know an open collision could be hurtful in personal and party terms. Kennedy needs White House support to get contacts and favors for New York. Johnson wants to keep the millions of Kennedy fans in his corner.

For these and other reasons, both go out of their way to appear friendly.

Privately, however, sources close to the President accuse Kennedy of shrewdly capitalizing on "feud" exposure to equate himself in the public mind with the chief executive.

Their premise is that Kennedy, as a White House aspirant now perched on a lower political rung, has more to gain from rift talk than Johnson.

Referring to the incident

in which President Johnson was said to have regaled three newsmen with a play-by-play account of how he refused Kennedy the No. 2 spot on the 1964 ticket, a Johnson man said, cut of the $750,000 proceeds from the President's Club dinner in New York to help pay his campaign deficit. It was not forthcoming.

Why did a columnist close to the White House lash at Schlesinger, taking pains to designate him a "Kennedy partisan"?

According to Schlesinger, when Johnson was chosen, Bobby wailed, "My God, this wouldn't have happened except that we were all too tired last night!"

Why did the President's order banning wire tapping follow almost immediately on the news that Kennedy suspected him of taping a private conversation?

BURIED in the order was a section placing the President firmly on record as taking a dim view of tape-recorded conversations. That passage was not mentioned by White House Press Secretary Bill Moyers when he released the story weeks later.

Recently Kennedy scolded Johnson with a Senate speech urging a nuclear weapons curb, a subject the President had been considering for his address to the United Nations. Kennedy's speech underscored his identification with his late brother and implied the Johnson administration wasn't doing enough.

A secret investigation promptly was launched by the White House to trace alleged leaks to Kennedy of information of the American States.

It is not necessary that Johnson's Viet Nam policy, port every nuance of the President's policy. Nevertheless, in regarding Viet Nam as whether or not he intends to purely a military problem, criticize, every Kennedy word when it is also a political will be so construed by the and diplomatic problem.

Kennedy is aware of that and once deleted passages in a administration of intervening in release which might have been the Dominican Republic interpreted as a jab at the

Director, Great Cast Lauded in 'Deputy'

By SAMUEL A. BOYE

In the roaring furnace of the eternal tension between man (conscience) and his God (plan), Rolf Hochhuth's "The Deputy" was unveiled to a capacity audience by UCLA Theater Group in Schoenberg Hall Friday night.

Without any further preamble, let's record our unwavering verdict as a willing witness to the cosmic tragedy of silence in confrontation with human suffering.

The guilt stops at the Throne Room in the Vatican, but the play shows it really begins in all our misguided history.

So, "The Deputy" is the greatest play of our time, profound in its sense of history and scholarship, and inexorable in its polemical power as unleashed by a great, young and dedicated director, Gordon Davidson, and a towering cast. Players who, without understanding to history, restore acting as an ennobling art.

John Houseman, a surprise

guest in Friday's audience, should be proud of his former charges.

THE PLAY ends on Peter Wexler's barebones sets silhouetted against the eternity of time with the reincarnation of evil center-stage. Let's admit a strange fascination with the performance by Mark Richman (The Doctor) as the dark angel who cremates life, not creates it. Richman's Nazi extermination of the Jews in the shocking death son, is like a Nazi such as factories. The three crosses in the crucifixion standing atop a hill, supported by modern file cabinets of human statistics, encompasses the Pope's conscience, prodded by the awful challenge to all mankind: let him whose history is without a taint of persecution in the name of God's plan, break the first silence.

Thus, although Hochhuth's play grapples with a fundamentally sensational subject, the treatment is never sensational in spirit.

From director Davidson's first inventive use of the shofar re-utty and removing him from mind us that the day of blame is ever-present, into a pious Pilate recalling "The Deputy" follows a quiet, tender mercies and ritualistic yet enduring and overwhelming path to the calvary of man's conscience. It raises its voice only when the anvil's chorus of men's angry embattled ideas demands it.

The elevated and historic figure of the Pope—in the symbolically eternal Vatican City of men's ideals—embodies this conscience.

Why as Christ's Vicar on earth—deputy or representative—did he fail to denounce the Nazi extermination of the Jews in the shocking death son, is like a Nazi such as factories. The three crosses in the crucifixion standing atop a hill, supported by modern file cabinets of human statistics, encompasses the Pope's conscience, prodded by the awful challenge to all mankind: let him whose history is without a taint of persecution in the name of God's plan, break the first silence.

Capt. Green's Career Ends in Fire Dept.

Retirement of Fire Captain Lee A. Green after more than 25 years of service was announced Saturday by Fire Chief Leonard V. Foster.

Capt. Green was appointed to the department in 1939, was promoted to auto-fireman in 1945, and to captain in 1948. He has been assigned to Station 12 at 6505 Gundry Ave.

In his letter to Chief Foster applying for retirement, Capt. Green said he wanted to "express my appreciation for the wonderful years I was privileged to spend on the Long Beach Fire Department."

"What made the job so good for me, were the fine officers I worked for and the wonderful men I worked with."

Astronaut Set for Experiment Beneath Sea

LA JOLLA (UPI) — Astronaut M. Scott Carpenter will turn aquanaut for 30 consecutive days next week in the Sealab II experiment which has been extended from 30 to 45 days, the Navy has announced here.

Although the over-all experiment has been extended, Carpenter will not remain submerged beyond the 30 days because of the danger involved, a spokesman for the Navy said.

"The experiment has been extended so we can get as much data and as many qualified aquanauts as possible," the spokesman said. The Navy hopes to develop techniques that will enable man to live in the ocean for prolonged periods.

Director, Great Cast Lauded in 'Deputy'

By SAMUEL A. BOYEA

In the roaring furnace of the eternal tension between man (conscience) and his God (plan), Rolf Hochhuth's "The Deputy" was unveiled to a capacity audience by UCLA Theater Group in Schoenberg Hall Friday night.

Without any further preamble, let's record our unwavering verdict as a willing witness to the cosmic tragedy of silence in confrontation with human suffering.

The guilt stops at the Throne Room in the Vatican, but the play shows it really begins in all our misguided history.

So, "The Deputy" is the greatest play of our time, profound in its sense of history and scholarship, and inexorable in its polemical power as unleashed by a great, young and dedicated director, Gordon Davidson, and a towering cast. Players who, without grandstanding to history, re-stage acting as an ennobling art.

guest in Friday's audience, should be proud of his former charges.

THE PLAY ends on Peter Wexler's barebones sets silhouetted against the eternity of time with the reincarnation of evil center-stage. Let's admit a strange fascination with the performance by Mark Richman (The Doctor) as the dark angel who cremates life, it creates it. Richman's Nazi, based on a real "per-Jews in the shocking death son," is like a Nazi such as the three crosses in the never before seen. His verbal Christ's crucifixion standing atop a hill, supported by modern file cabinets of human him laid down his life for statistics, encompasses the human suffering is grand the Pope's conscience, prodded by the awful challenge to all.

Thus, although Hochhuth's manly grapples with a fundamentally sensational subject, the treatment is never sensational in spirit.

From director Davidson's first inventive use of the on the cross as Christ's de-sounding of the shofar re-uty and removing him from minding us that the day of blame by transforming him atonement is ever-present, into a pious Plate recalling "The Deputy" follows a quiet, tender mercies and ritualistic yet enduring and overwhelming path to the calvary of issuing proclamations couched in diplomatic double-talk, the play, now cut from seven hours to a tight two and a half, is bedeviled by history's horn-rimmed glasses and silencing the "states' rights" game heady view. But it does not lose its equilibrium, because it is not merely a personal story seeking to make a coming Hitler's heir and his sive in a supporting role.

Launcelot Gobbo of the Pope frustrated in moral neutrality between fiend and friend.

Hochhuth uses the modern theater commedia d'elie commercial occupation with personality projection as a mere servant to his greater cause.

The heightening of history by sending his protagonists on their way to the stations of the cross. In this instance, the twisted cross (the swastika) in a black forest of billboards depicting unbelievable brutal scenes.

Hochhuth's Pope is not diminished. He is excellently scarlet-clad cardinals in Ron-

RETURNING MARINES GIVE OPINIONS

'We Must Stay in Viet Nam to the End'

By BOB SANDERS

"Fighting in Viet Nam is just one duty, frustrating stalemate after another, but we must stay in it to the end."

This is the fighting man's opinion, the man who has been there.

Nine members of the first group of U.S. Marines to return to the United States after serving in combat in the Viet Nam jungle told their stories last week.

In a press conference at Camp Pendleton the nine, who range in rank from first lieutenant to private first class, commented freely on everything from student demonstrations here to the accuracy of sniper fire there.

ARTHUR L. MAX, a rugged first lieutenant who led a series of four and five day patrols near Da Nang Air Base, emphasized the "purely defensive" aspects of the Marines' missions.

"We were hunting through villages for caches of rice or arms," he said. "We almost always found rice, and occasionally guns or ammunition."

"The guns and ammo were no problem. But the rice always brought up the question of who did it belong to: the Viet Cong or the people of the village? We always had to decide and it was never easy."

"To the Viet Cong rice is more important than bullets."

He paused, rubbed his square chin with his fist and added philosophically:

"Some way has to be established to determine who is the enemy and who isn't. Several times we hit villages where men between 16 and 30 appeared to be farmers. They held children in their arms and the women treated them as husbands and fathers. In many cases we took them and it turned out they were Viet Cong."

HOW DID THE people of South Viet Nam react to the Marines?

"We didn't know what to expect when we first went in," Lt. Max said, "so we made a combat-ready landing. It turned out not to be necessary. The roads were lined with people, many of them children, all of whom were friendly. We received hundreds of letters telling us how glad they were we were there."

"And our men responded in kind," 1st Lt. Emil A. Kratovic added. "On patrol part of our job was public relations. We delivered medical supplies and other needed items to the Viet Nam people. Later our troops volunteered part of their rations for the people, particularly the children."

What does the Vietnamese want?

"To be left alone," said Lt. Kratovic. "He wants what he has known for centuries. Whatever leaves him alone to tend his crops and raise his family or helps him to do these things, he likes."

1st Sgt. Richard Lawrence Howard, a veteran of World War II fighting in the Pacific and the Korean conflict, said:

"The tenacity of the Viet Cong is surprising. According to what I have read the Viet Cong is losing 2 to 1 and he should be discouraged. But he isn't. Or at least he shows no signs of it."

"We don't understand how they keep up. But they do."

WHAT ABOUT sniper fire?

"There were many snipers but their actions didn't bother us very much. Usually they were too far away to fire accurately. In our experience there was no such thing as two patrols meeting and firing at each other for an hour or so. It was sporadic firing from a distance. We hoped they would fire on us but usually they didn't. Of course it doesn't pay to wander the jungle alone because that lone sniper will get you."

About stateside student demonstrations?

"I've been a Marine for 10 years," said Sgt. Johnney B. Thompson, "and the demonstrations by students didn't bother me. I'm glad to live in a country where people can demonstrate. It indicates they're looking for answers, and can't find them. Maybe it's good; maybe it's not."

"The thing that bothered us more was the meeting at the college in Michigan (University of Michigan) where the students threatened to send aid to the Viet Cong. This is pretty hard for a fighting man to take."

AND WHAT ABOUT students tearing up draft cards?

"Americans have died in other wars," said Lance Cpl. Lacey Smith, "and some have to die in this one. Tearing up your draft card, of course is wrong. I feel Americans should be willing to serve their country."

Is Viet Nam necessary?

"Of course, it is," said Lance Cpl. Alan Cuffaro. "We have to be there. There's no other way."

"If we pull out of Viet Nam now," said Sgt. Howard, "where will our next fight be? I feel there is a parallel between the situation in Viet Nam and Hitler's moving across Europe prior to World War II. You have to stop the enemy somewhere. If you don't they will gobble everything up."

Asked how he felt about going back to Viet Nam, Lance Cpl. Bryan Smith seemed to speak for all nine:

"I wouldn't volunteer to go back. No one who has been there would. But I would go if ordered."

THIS is generally supposed to be a light-hearted column, but nothing, at the moment, is amusing.

It's a shattering thing to witness the collapse of the forces of law and order.

A friend called me in the night.

"What can we do to show our support for law enforcement?" he demanded.

"What you've always done, I guess," I replied, knowing him to be a law-abiding citizen.

"But that's not enough," he said. "Decent citizens must demonstrate, now."

He was aggravated with me, and with himself, because we couldn't come up with an idea for an effective, next-morning-at-dawn method of doing what, in the longer range, all good citizens must do in every feasible way.

FOR each can contribute to the force of public opinion that will demand the control of lawlessness both in attacking the roots of the evil and in suppressing its outward manifestations whenever they develop, quickly and forcefully.

At the moment, it is difficult to see how anything constructive can come out of the Los Angeles riots.

But it can—if they shock the U. S. people, their courts and their legislatures, into a realization that such is the horrible result of the easy, tolerated drift away from discipline and obedience of every law.

That drift can climax into a crashing, crushing wave. It has, right at our doorstep.

AT THE end of a sweltering week, it's hard to believe that this dept., exactly a week ago today, commented on the overcast summer and fires in the fireplace here in August.

There haven't been any since that day.

It was a hot week for the girls, and the spectators, at the International Beauty Congress. It showed pretty conclusively the need for a permanent air-conditioning system in the Municipal Auditorium.

But despite the heat, it turned out to be one of the best IBC weeks since the whole thing started with the Miss Universe Pageant 14 years ago.

Friday night's color-televized spectacular was a fitting climax. A bow to Director Wayne Dailard & Co.

FELLOW near me complained that the judging must be stacked. He thinks he's the last word on beautiful women, and neither the Miss American Beauty nor Miss International Beauty awards went to his favorites.

Not to mine, either. My choices: Miss Maryland among the U. S. girls, Miss Malaysia among the internationals.

But I'm not accusing the judges of any wrongdoing. I admit, not too grudgingly, that they came up with some attractive and shapely results.

IN A STORY here a while back something was said about Long Beach, La. Bill Bledsoe immediately challenged, asserting that Louisiana has no such place and reference must have been to Long Beach, Miss.

I'm sure he's right. So far as I know, there are six Long Beaches. They are in Mississippi, Washington, New Jersey, New York, North Carolina and California, if it's still here by the time this is read.

L.B. Economist Advises Nations Receiving Aid

By MARY NEISWENDER

"The war broke out on pay day, and I guess they figured the best one to try to settle—at least the pay problem—was an economist."

So he did. "At least I finally got the last week's pay for them." And that was half the problem.

It was the breakout of fighting on Cyprus and it was Long Beach-born Wayne Snyder who ran between the two warring factions to try to bring about peace.

"How I ended up carrying the messages back and forth, I really don't know," the 37-year-old economist said as he vacationed in his native city. "But I finally managed to get the Turkish civil servants their overdue pay."

ADMITTEDLY, he didn't stop the war, but he did make a few people, both Turks and Cypriots, happier.

"But it was impossible to continue on with the economic problems we had come to study, so we left."

Dr. Snyder was one of three economists provided by the Stanford Research Institute, under contract with the Agency for International Development, to advise the government of Cyprus on economic matters.

He left to return to Paris and his current job with the Organization of Economic Cooperation and Development, set up in 1948 to administer Marshall Plan funds.

"Our principal function is to discuss, study and analyze economic problems of the 18 European-member nations. (The United States, Canada and Japan have also joined the organization.)"

"OUR SECONDARY purpose, and one that is growing in importance, is general economic development problems and the specific economic development of some of the poorer member countries."

His assignment is as principal adviser for Turkey, the Netherlands and Japan.

A graduate of Wilson High School and USC Snyder and his family—wife, Molly, and three sons, Marc, 9, Aram, 7, and James, 5—have spent much of their time overseas.

The Snyder home for more than four years, during Viet Nam's "golden years" was Saigon.

"Then," the former Naval aviator says, "there was a great deal of hope—hope that a new economic state could be developed to keep the country free. The government failed miserably, and the consequences are evident."

BUT ECONOMICS, the doctor maintains, was only minor as compared to the political activities in the country.

For the next two weeks, while in Long Beach visiting Snyder's mother, Mrs. Robert Reese of 4531 Shaw St., he plans to give the children a taste of American beach life. The family is living in a beach-front apartment at 5321 E. Ocean Blvd.

Then, it's back to their five-floor Paris walk-up.

Since the job is there, Snyder says, economically, it's a sound move.

Aerospace Men Keep Eyes on Dollar

The men who manage more than $35 billion of taxpayers' money in the aerospace program are known as "penny pinchers" and they did their best to keep or add to that reputation during the last two days.

About 150 aerospace and Air Force officials from 25 defense plants across the nation met in El Segundo to devise ways of adding impetus to the Department of Defense cost reduction program.

The conference was the first to be convened by the recently activated Air Force Contract Management Division located at the Los Angeles Air Force plant.

Col. Fred Rennels, commander of the nationwide Air Force organization presented 21 awards to industry and Air Force employees who made outstanding contributions to the Cost Reduction program.

Almost $3 billion of that amount probably will be involved in contracts awarded to major aerospace contractors during fiscal year 1965.

The Air Force Systems Command is expected to allocate about $4 billion during the next year in weapons system procurement.

RETURNING MARINES GIVE OPINIONS

'We Must Stay in Viet Nam to the End'

By BOB SANDERS

"Fighting in Viet Nam is just one dirty, frustrating stalemate after another, but we must stay in it to the end."

This is the fighting man's opinion, the man who has been there.

Nine members of the first group of U.S. Marines to return to the United States after serving in combat in the Viet Nam jungle told their stories last week.

In a press conference at Camp Pendleton the nine, who range in rank from first lieutenant to private first class, commented freely on everything from student demonstrations here to the accuracy of sniper fire there.

ARTHUR L. MAX, a rugged first lieutenant who led a series of four and five day patrols near Da Nang Air Base, emphasized the "purely defensive" aspects of the Marines' missions.

"We were hunting through villages for caches of rice or arms," he said. "We almost always found rice, and occasionally guns or ammunition."

"The guns and ammo were no problem. But the rice always brought up the question of who did it belong to: the Viet Cong or the people of the village? We always had to decide and it was never easy."

"To the Viet Cong rice is more important than bullets."

He paused, rubbed his square chin with his fist and added philosophically: "Some way has to be established to determine who is the enemy and who isn't. Several times we hit villages where men between 16 and 30 appeared to be farmers. They held children in their arms and the women treated them as husbands and fathers. In many cases we took them and it turned out they were Viet Cong."

HOW DID THE people of South Viet Nam react to the Marines?

"We didn't know what to expect when we first went in," Lt. Max said. "So we made a combat-ready landing. It turned out not to be necessary. The roads were lined with people, many of them children, all of whom were friendly. We received hundreds of letters telling us how glad they were we were there."

"And our men responded in kind," 1st Lt. Emil A. Kratovic added. "On patrol part of our job was public relations. We delivered medical supplies and other needed items to the Viet Nam people. Later our troops volunteered part of their rations for the people, particularly the children."

What does the Vietnamese want?

"To be left alone," said Lt. Kratovic. "He wants what he has known for centuries. Whatever leaves him alone to tend his crops and raise his family or helps him to do these things, he likes."

1st Sgt. Richard Lawrence Howard, a veteran of World War II fighting in the Pacific and the Korean conflict, said:

"The tenacity of the Viet Cong is surprising. According to what I have read the Viet Cong is losing 2 to 1 and he should be discouraged. But he isn't. Or at least he shows no signs of it."

"We don't understand how they keep up. But they do."

WHAT ABOUT sniper fire?

"There were many snipers but their actions didn't bother us very much. Usually they were too far away to fire accurately. In our experience there was no such thing as two patrols meeting and firing at each other for an hour or so. It was sporadic firing from a distance. We hoped they would fire on us but usually they didn't. Of course it doesn't pay to wander the jungle alone because that lone sniper will get you."

WHAT HAS HAPPENED at Watts is an irony and a mockery—and a climactic challenge in one of the greatest issues of our times.

There can be no doubt that the riots are partially racial in nature, an explosion of bitterness against ancient grievances. But more than that, they are a shocking demonstration of the ultimate results of a growing trend toward defiance of law and order in this country.

Racial anger has been fanned in recent years by organizations like the Black Muslims and a little clique of Negro writers—"the intellectual Mau Maus"—who see no hope of solving the racial conflict by peaceful means. There are Negroes who put Rev. Martin Luther King, the moderate NAACP and the more militant CORE in the same class with Uncle Tom.

Those of us who know responsible Negroes feel sympathy with the humiliation which the Watts hoodlums have brought upon them. It is especially saddening because never before in a year has so much been achieved throughout the nation to give Negroes their full status of citizenship. And California is truly integrated under the law—although areas of social prejudice do remain. The riots have done great damage to the Negro image. Excellent people who want nothing but to live in peace, dignity and friendship with other Americans are the real victims of this madness.

BUT IT IS A mistake to think of these riots as entirely racial in motivation. They also exemplify a widespread spirit of lawlessness among American youth. The Los Angeles rioters were mostly very young.

Young too were the rioters in Berkeley who tried four times last week to halt troop trains taking other young Americans to ships bound for the western Pacific.

Young too were the rioters who harassed the University of California at Berkeley with their silly "Free Speech Movement."

THESE ARE EXAMPLES of riots which began, in part, from youthful idealism. No matter how mistaken their ideals or their methods may be, they were fighting for something.

But how do you explain the rioting at Huntington Beach in which the police of that little city were assaulted by "sandbombs"—wet sand wrapped in paper bags? There was certainly no idealism in that.

Somehow the older Americans have failed to teach this riotous generation the meaning of Americanism. Civil disobedience and revolution may be moral against a tyranny. When men can find no redress of grievances, their only recourse is resort to civil disobedience or battle. Such was the cause of our own Revolution.

BUT BUILT into our Constitution—and into the very nature of our society—is the firm belief in the principle of redress. At no time in our history has this principle been so dramatically implemented as in the current wave of civil rights reforms in behalf of the Negro. And beyond the movement to correct racial inequalities are massive programs aimed at alleviating economic distress. In the face of all this, violence and defiance of the law cannot possibly be justified as necessary to achieve social justice.

Nor are they, in this democratic society, justified as a means of exerting influence on any other public issue. The young people of Berkeley have every right to hold meetings and petition the President against the Viet Nam action. They had no right to try to halt trains on lawful errands.

In any society in which people can live happily and decently, three principles must be observed. They are "protection of life and property and the preservation of the public peace."

These are police functions, and the public should back the police completely in these functions. People who violate these principles—even though they be thoughtless teen-agers—should be arrested and punished.

It is time to get tough. It was right to order the National Guard into Watts. It is unfortunate it was not done immediately when civil law enforcement was overwhelmed by the size and frenzy of the mob. If what has been done is not enough, more force must be applied immediately.

The war against crime must be won at Watts.

Southerner on Voting Bill: 'We Brought It on Ourselves'

CONFESSION, they say, is good for the soul; and when it comes to this business of voting rights, the soul of the South could use a little saving.

All week long, the Federal registrars have been at work. Since Saturday a week ago, key provisions of the franchise laws of six states have been suspended; five years of humiliation, in some cases, lie ahead. And Southerners, whose long memories of "The War" are cultivated in cradle and classroom, are complaining bitterly of a second Reconstruction.

SOME of this resentful protest is directed at the purposeful registration of illiterate Negroes, and on the face of it, the protest is valid. Surely the Constitution has been perverted when a sovereign State is prevented from requiring, as a minimum, that a voter be able to write out his name, address and occupation.

Another part of the protest goes to the Voting Rights Act itself. It is full of tricks, triggers, and traps; it is patently unfair and discriminatory in its application; it tramples ruthlessly across provisions of the Constitution that historically have reserved certain powers to the States. And all this is true.

But Southerners have an obligation, painful though it may be, to put those long memories to work in an examination of their conscience. The discomfiting truth is that what the South has done in the past speaks so loudly that few persons pay much attention to what the South says today. Those of us who have been born, bred, and brought up in Dixie should gaze upon the indignities of this new Occupation with a certain clear understanding: We brought it on ourselves.

WHAT ABOUT these Negro illiterates? Why, sire, the truth is that white illiterates have been registered all along. Everybody knows it. The evidence of a hundred court cases proves it. And when Mr. Katzenbach, on television, rubs it in, there is not a word to be said in reply.

What about these tricks and devices? God rest us, we of the South invented tricks and devices! There was the beautiful little grandfather clause, early in the century, which gave permanent registration to all men—and their lineal descendants—who were registered in 1860, but required all others (meaning Negroes) to register anew. The Supreme Court threw that out. Then there was the device of the white primary, conducted for the benefit of a Democratic party that denied membership to Negroes. And the Supreme Court threw that out.

There was the poll tax, which had to be paid for three full years, six months prior to an election. When the Virginia Constitutional Convention of 1902 adopted this device, someone asked Carter Glass if it wouldn't discriminate against the Negro. "Discriminate?" he cried, "That is exactly what we mean to do."

LOUISIANA and Mississippi came up with the "reasonable interpretation" rule. It was a real trick. The law provided that a prospective voter could be required to give a "reasonable interpretation" of any clause in the State or Federal Constitution, and left it to the local registrars to define their own rules of reason. In courthouse squares, the knee-slappers were told: "Well, Rastus," says the registrar, "tell me what is meant when it says that no State shall grant letters of marque and reprisal?"

"Why, suh, that means this ol' niggah ain't goin' vote in Sunflower County!" It seemed funny, then. There were other tricksters that required affidavits of good character, and barred those who lived in common law cohabitation. There were registrars who couldn't be found, or stayed out to lunch for 30 days. And the funny thing, really, was that all the time, some of these Southerners were braying to the heavens about how much they loved the Constitution. They cried the Tenth Amendment from the house-tops; and they buried the Fifteenth where no one could find it.

TO BE sure, not all of these sins occurred in all of the South. Over most of the area, especially in recent years, Negroes have in fact registered without let or hindrance. Today the segregationist Democrats who once disdained the Negro vote are bidding furiously for it. Most of the South has got religion, but there is more expence than penance in the sudden conversion.

True enough, two wrongs don't make a right; and you ought not to attack violations of the Constitution by violating the Constitution. In this case, two wrongs have made a voting right. Now we live with it.

Support of 'Friends' of U.S. Could Have Curbed Viet War

WASHINGTON — There wouldn't be a war in Viet Nam today and American boys wouldn't be fighting and dying in a far-off land if the nations of the world whom the United States has befriended and to whom it continues year after year to send billions of dollars of aid took a stand in support of the American position in Viet Nam.

There would be a different story to tell if trade with Red China were cut off by the Free World, and if the Soviets saw that the same thing would happen to them should they keep on siding with North Viet Nam by building missile sites there and sending weapons to be used to kill American soldiers and airmen. The Russian people, if they knew the facts, would not go along with the Red Chinese.

Perhaps the Johnson Administration has failed to be realistic about the situation. The President has said that he has ample authority to send American armed forces to Southeast Asia under the resolution passed by both houses of Congress on Aug. 10, 1964. But, while this is true, Congress has not formally declared "a state of war," which is recognized in international law as requiring all nations to refrain from sending contraband goods to the belligerents under penalty of seizure or confiscation of shipments of such commodities.

RED CHINA is in every sense a co-belligerent with North Viet Nam. The Viet Cong couldn't last a month if forces and weapons were not supplied directly or indirectly by the Communist regime in Peiping.

But what is the news that the American people read in the headlines this week? Canada has announced that it has just completed a deal to sell $450 million worth of wheat to the Soviet Government.

It has been argued that more trade will produce better relations with the Communist regimes, and a new scheme now is being pushed here to sell vast quantities of U.S. wheat to Communist countries, especially in Eastern Europe.

Much of the American grain which would be shipped to the Communists in Eastern Europe or elsewhere has been bought and paid for by United States taxpayers through the farm-subsidy program. The Chicago Tribune says editorially:

"IF THE sale is approved, we will be selling wheat to Communists at 75 cents a bushel less than American flour millers have to pay for it. And if Congress authorizes the Administration's new wheat program, the Communists next year will be able to buy our wheat

New Election Laws Designed to Curb Voter Harassment

I, P-T Political Editor

CHANGE IS THE PERVAIDING theme of today's society and California has its share of innovation in the wake of the 1965 legislative session.

Some of the interesting changes are in election laws. One, dealing with intimidating and challenging voters, came about apparently as the result of the Republicans' 1964 Operation Eagle Eye. While Republicans maintained the operation was to prevent illegal voting, Democrats—whose contention prevailed—saw the operation as organized harassment.

Los Angeles Councilman Billy G. Mills, chairman of the committee on election law violations of the Democratic State Central Committee, quoted from "a 1964 Republican precinct-worker bulletin" to make the case for harassment.

THE BULLETIN advised GOP pollwatchers, in their efforts to stop voting by Democrats who had changed residence, to introduce themselves to election boards on election morning, adding, "Our job is to size up the election board.... Bringing in goodies during the day will soften up a tough board."

"The captain of each precinct will fill out a form on which he will list all those Democrats who have moved away from the precinct.... Don't panic if they (the election board) refuse to let you utilize this.... With this operation we are strictly bluffing."

Mills said the instruction sheet told how to challenge a voter so he "will either panic and leave or call the bluff.... If we successfully stop three or four of these per precinct, this means 2,000 fewer Democrat votes will be cast."

Election law changes are designed to curb such practices as quizzing voters near the polls on whether they had brought along their voter registration slips, planting the false implication that such slips are required for voting. A new measure provides a voter challenged on residency may satisfy the challenge simply by swearing under oath that he meets residency requirements.

It's now a misdemeanor to spread unsigned campaign literature designed to injure or defeat a candidate. This measure had strong bipartisan sponsorship.

A NEW CALIFORNIA resident may vote for President and Vice President by filing an affidavit which includes swearing to his eligibility to vote in his former state of residence. A voter unable to go to the polls because of conditions arising after the closing date for absentee voter ballot applications, may now obtain such a ballot.

Election law is the subject of two constitutional amendments: Californians will vote on Nov. 8, 1966. One would provide for passage of school bond issues with a 60% vote rather than the present 66 2/3%. The other provides that normal literacy qualifications shall not apply to a person over 50 who has been a U.S. resident for 20 years. For example, a citizen past 50 who speaks Spanish or Chinese could qualify to vote if he had been a U.S. resident for 20 years.

Two other changes of interest deal with divorce. One measure permits the final decree of divorce to be entered one year after the service of the divorce complaint upon the defendant spouse, which would result in a substantial reduction in the waiting period in many contested cases.

ANOTHER MEASURE aims at gaining a more complete understanding of divorce on which new legislation might be based. It provides for a statewide Certificate of Divorce Registry for both interlocutory and final decrees, requiring parties to a divorce, separate maintenance or annulment action "to provide sociological data which would permit psychologists, sociologists, educators and other professional persons to study all of the accumulated data, with full protection to the individual of its confidential nature."

I say, "get placed with the Long Beach Harbor Department or elected to the Long Beach City Council and you will see the world," at taxpayers' expense.

The trip to Europe made by the mayor and his lieutenants, a short time ago, was a good will mission, so says the mayor. It took them 6 weeks to visit 9 countries and 23 cities. How about that?

Mayor Sukenori Hirata and President of City Council of Yokkaichi, Japan, addressed the Long Beach Council last week and asked Long Beach for an oil well pump. Mayor Wade announced that the Signal Oil Co., had agreed to contribute the oil pump which will be sent to Japan.

Mayor Hirata invited the Mayor and the City Council of Long Beach, to attend the ceremonies when the pump is presented, some time in November.

A motion by Councilman Emmet Sullivan, seconded by William A. Graham, that the visit be authorized as a good will gesture was approved.

Who is going to pay for this junket? Not Sullivan, not Graham, but the good old taxpayers' will get the tab.

When are these good will junkets going to run out? Why can't the costs of these junkets be used in a project where they would be beneficial to the City of Long Beach, such as street improvements, etc.?

Is it any wonder our taxes in Long Beach are high?

Says Freedom Is Not Increasing

EDITOR:

After reading your editorial in Sunday's paper, "Freedom Is Increasing," I felt impelled to write an answer to you regarding it. In fact, I agree heartily with the quotation you printed from the Calif. Farm Bureau that this session of Congress has brought forth the birth of an expanded welfare state ruled by centralized federal power.

I sincerely believe there is no such thing as a democratic welfare state. When people start voting benefits for themselves, democracy is in the way out. The American citizen has less and less freedom with every new welfare law passed by Congress. Every gift from Washington costs more than the gift is worth. The only benefits and welfare we receive, we have paid for or will pay for three times over! Every federal gift to the people tightens the strings of control over the individuals' lives.

This democratic welfare state as you call it was not brought about by the will of the people; it was accomplished more by the millions of dollars spent by labor and political aspirants. Contrary to the topic of your editorial — Freedom is not increasing.

A Number to Help the Troubled

EDITOR:

May we offer a further suggestion to the excellent ones presented in your editorial of Aug. 10, "Help for the Troubled?"

Members of the community who have questions relating to mental or emotional problems may call the Long Beach Mental Health Association, 426-6659, weekdays from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

This telephone number should be on the "emergency" list in every home, since the average person is not always aware of specific services offered to the public, or how to find the correct directory listing, especially in time of immediate need.

One of the important functions of the Association is that of maintaining currently accurate listings of mental health clinics, and accredited agencies and individuals available for counseling.

Also through our office at 2385 Pacific Ave., one may obtain such helpful pamphlets as "Emotions and Physical Health," "When a Mental Patient Comes Home," "Things you Should Know About Mental and Emotional Illness," and "Crisis in the Family."

Because there are generous people in the community who are concerned about the problems of mental illness and who have made membership contributions to our Association, we are able to render these, and our many other public services. We do not receive United Way Funds.

We welcome inquiries about our Association, and urge calls from those in need of information we might well be able to provide.

WHAT HAS HAPPENED at Watts is an irony and a mockery—and a climactic challenge in one of the greatest issues of our times.

There can be no doubt that the riots are partially racial in nature, an explosion of bitterness against ancient grievances. But more than that, they are a shocking demonstration of the ultimate results of a growing trend toward defiance of law and order in this country.

Racial anger has been fanned in recent years by organizations like the Black Muslims and a little clique of Negro writers—"the intellectual Mau Maus"—who see no hope of solving the racial conflict by peaceful means. There are Negroes who put Rev. Martin Luther King, the moderate NAACP and the more militant CORE in the same class with Uncle Tom.

Those of us who know responsible Negroes feel sympathy with the humiliation which the Watts hoodlums have brought upon them. It is especially saddening because never before in a year has so much been achieved throughout the nation to give Negroes their full status of citizenship. And California is truly integrated under the law—although areas of social prejudice do remain. The riots have done great damage to the Negro image. Excellent people who want nothing but to live in peace, dignity and friendship with other Americans are the real victims of this madness.

BUT IT IS A mistake to think of these riots as entirely racial in motivation. They also exemplify a widespread spirit of lawlessness among American youth. The Los Angeles rioters were mostly very young.

Young too were the rioters in Berkeley who tried four times last week to halt troop trains taking other young Americans to ships bound for the western Pacific.

Young too were the rioters who harassed the University of California at Berkeley with their silly "Free Speech Movement."

THESE ARE EXAMPLES of riots which began, in part, from youthful idealism. No matter how mistaken their ideals or their methods may be, they were fighting for something.

But how do you explain the rioting at Huntington Beach in which the police of that little city were assaulted by "sandbombs"—wet sand wrapped in paper bags? There was certainly no idealism in that.

Somehow the older Americans have failed to teach this riotous generation the meaning of Americanism. Civil disobedience and revolution may be moral against a tyranny. When men can find no redress of grievances, their only recourse is resort to civil disobedience or battle. Such was the cause of our own Revolution.

BUT BUILT into our Constitution—and into the very nature of our society—is the firm belief in the principle of redress. At no time in our history has this principle been so dramatically implemented as in the current wave of civil rights reforms in behalf of the Negro. And beyond the movement to correct racial inequalities are massive programs aimed at alleviating economic distress. In the face of all this, violence and defiance of the law cannot possibly be justified as necessary to achieve social justice.

Nor are they, in this democratic society, justified as a means of exerting influence on any other public issue. The young people of Berkeley have every right to hold meetings and petition the President against the Viet Nam action. They had no right to try to halt trains on lawful errands.

In any society in which people can live happily and decently, three principles must be observed. They are "protection of life and property and the preservation of the public peace."

These are police functions, and the public should back the police completely in these functions. People who violate these principles—even though they be thoughtless teen-agers—should be arrested and punished.

It is time to get tough. It was right to order the National Guard into Watts. It is unfortunate it was not done immediately when civil law enforcement was overwhelmed by the size and frenzy of the mob. If what has been done is not enough, more force must be applied immediately.

The war against crime must be won at Watts.

Southerner on Voting Bill: 'We Brought It on Ourselves'

CONFESSION, they say, is good for the soul; and when it comes to this business of voting rights, the soul of the South could use a little saving.

All week long, the Federal registrars have been at work. Since Saturday a week ago, key provisions of the franchise laws of six states have been suspended; five years of humiliation, in some cases, lie ahead. And Southerners, whose long memories of "The War" are cultivated in cradle and classroom, are complaining bitterly of a second Reconstruction.

SOME of this resentful protest is directed at the purposeful registration of illiterate Negroes, and on the face of it, the protest is valid. Surely the Constitution has been perverted when a sovereign State is prevented from requiring, as a minimum, that a voter be able to write out his name, address and occupation.

Another part of the protest goes to the Voting Rights Act itself. It is full of tricks, triggers, and traps; it is patently unfair and discriminatory in its application; it tramples ruthlessly across provisions of the Constitution that historically have reserved certain powers to the States. And all this is true.

But Southerners have an obligation, painful though it may be, to put those long memories to work in an examination of their conscience. The discomfiting truth is that what the South has done in the past speaks so loudly that few persons pay much attention to what the South says today. Those of us who have been born, bred, and brought up in Dixie should gaze upon the indignities of this new Occupation with a certain clear understanding: We brought it on ourselves.

WHAT ABOUT these Negro illiterates? Why, sire, the truth is that white illiterates have been registered all along. Everybody knows it. The evidence of a hundred court cases proves it. And when Mr. Katzenbach, on television, rubs it in, there is not a word to be said in reply.

What about these tricks and devices? God rest us, we of the South invented tricks and devices! There was the beautiful little grandfather clause, early in the century, which gave permanent registration to all men—and their lineal descendants—who were registered in 1860, but required all others (meaning Negroes) to register anew. The Supreme Court threw that out. Then there was the device of the white primary, conducted for the benefit of a Democratic party that denied membership to Negroes. And the Supreme Court threw that out.

There was the poll tax, which had to be paid for three full years, six months prior to an election. When the Virginia Constitutional Convention of 1902 adopted this device, someone asked Carter Glass if it wouldn't discriminate against the Negro. "Discriminate?" he cried, "That is exactly what we mean to do."

LOUISIANA and Mississippi came up with the "reasonable interpretation" rule. It was a real trickier. The law provided that a prospective voter could be required to give a "reasonable interpretation" of any clause in the State or Federal Constitution, and left it to the local registrars to define their own rules of reason. In courthouse squares, the knee-slappers were told: "Well, Rastus," says the registrar, "tell me what is meant when it says that no State shall grant letters of marque and reprisal?"

"Why, suh, that means this ol' niggah ain't goin' vote in Sunflower County!" It seemed funny, then. There were other trickier that required affidavits of good character, and barred those who lived in common law cohabitation. There were registrars who couldn't be found, or stayed out to lunch for 30 days. And the funny thing, really, was that all the time, some of these Southerners were braying to the heavens about how much they loved the Constitution. They cried the Tenth Amendment from the house-tops; and they buried the Fifteenth where no one could find it.

TO BE sure, not all of these sins occurred in all of the South. Over most of the area, especially in recent years, Negroes have in fact registered without let or hindrance. Today the segregationist Democrats who once disdained the Negro vote are bidding furiously for it. Most of the South has got religion, but there is more expedience than penance in the sudden conversion.

True enough, two wrongs don't make a right; and you ought not to attack violations of the Constitution by violating the Constitution. In this case, two wrongs have made a voting right. Now we live with it.

Support of 'Friends' of U.S. Could Have Curbed Viet War

WASHINGTON — There wouldn't be a war in Viet Nam today and American boys wouldn't be fighting and dying in a far-off land if the nations of the world whom the United States has befriended and to whom it

LAWRENCE

There would be a different story to tell if trade with Red China were cut off by the Free World, and if the Soviets saw that the same thing would happen to them should they keep on siding with North Viet Nam by building missile sites there and sending weapons to be used to kill American soldiers and airmen. The Russian people, if they knew the facts, would not go along with the Red Chinese.

Perhaps the Johnson Administration has failed to be realistic about the situation. The President has said that he has ample authority to send American armed forces to Southeast Asia under the resolution passed by both houses of Congress on Aug. 10, 1964. But, while this is true, Congress has not formally declared "a state of war," which is recognized in international law as requiring all nations to refrain from sending contraband goods to the belligerents under penalty of seizure or confiscation of shipments of such commodities.

RED CHINA is in every sense a co-belligerent with North Viet Nam. The Viet Cong couldn't last a month if forces and weapons were not supplied directly or indirectly by the Communist regime in Peiping.

But what is the news that the American people read in the headlines this week? Canada has announced that it has just completed a deal to sell $450 million worth of wheat to the Soviet Government.

It has been argued that more trade will produce better relations with the Communist regimes, and a new scheme now is being pushed here to sell vast quantities of U.S. wheat to Communist countries, especially in Eastern Europe.

Much of the American grain which would be shipped to the Communists in Eastern Europe or elsewhere has been bought and paid for by United States taxpayers through the farm-subsidy program. The Chicago Tribune says editorially:

"IF THE sale is approved, we will be selling wheat to Communists at 75 cents a bushel less than American flour millers have to pay for it. And if Congress authorizes the Administration's new wheat program, the Communists next year will be able to buy our wheat

New Election Laws Designed to Curb Voter Harassment

I, P-T Political Editor

CHANGE IS THE PERVAIDING theme of today's society and California has its share of innovation in the wake of the 1965 legislative session.

Some of the interesting changes are in election laws. One, dealing with intimidating and challenging voters, came about apparently as the result of the Republicans' 1964 Operation Eagle Eye. While Republicans maintained the operation was to prevent illegal voting, Democrats—whose contention prevailed—saw the operation as organized harassment.

Los Angeles Councilman Billy G. Mills, chairman of the committee on election law violations of the Democratic State Central Committee, quoted from "a 1964 Republican precinct-worker bulletin" to make the case for harassment.

THE BULLETIN advised GOP pollworkers, in their efforts to stop voting by Democrats who had changed residence, to introduce themselves to election boards on election morning, adding, "Our job is to size up the election board. . . . Bringing in goodies during the day will soften up a tough board. . . . The captain of each precinct will fill out a form on which he will list all those Democrats who have moved away from the precinct. . . . Don't panic if they (the election board) refuse to let you utilize this. . . . With this operation we are strictly bluffing."

Mills said the instruction sheet told how to challenge a voter so he "will either panic and leave or call the bluff. . . . If we successfully stop three or four of these per precinct, this means 2,000 fewer Democrat votes will be cast."

Election law changes are designed to curb such practices as quizzing voters near the polls on whether they had brought along their voter registration slips, planting the false implication that such slips are required for voting. A new measure provides a voter challenged on residency may satisfy the challenge simply by swearing under oath that he meets residency requirements.

It's now a misdemeanor to spread unsigned campaign literature designed to injure or defeat a candidate. This measure had strong bipartisan sponsorship.

A NEW CALIFORNIA resident may vote for President and Vice President by filing an affidavit which includes swearing to his eligibility to vote in his former state of residence. A voter unable to go to the polls because of conditions arising after the closing date for absentee voter ballot applications, may now obtain such a ballot.

Election law is the subject of two constitutional amendments Californians will vote on Nov. 8, 1966. One would provide for passage of school bond issues with a 60% vote rather than the present 66 2/3%. The other provides that normal literacy qualifications shall not apply to a person over 50 who has been a U.S. resident for 20 years. For example, a citizen past 50 who speaks Spanish or Chinese could qualify to vote if he had been a U.S. resident for 20 years.

Two other changes of interest deal with divorce. One measure permits the final decree of divorce to be entered one year after the service of the divorce complaint upon the defendant spouse, which would result in a substantial reduction in the waiting period in many contested cases.

ANOTHER MEASURE aims at gaining a more complete understanding of divorce on which new legislation might be based. It provides for a statewide Certificate of Divorce Registry for both interlocutory and final decrees, requiring parties to a divorce, separate maintenance or annulment action "to provide sociological data which would permit psychologists, sociologists, educators and other professional persons to study all of the accumulated data, with full protection to the individual of its confidential nature."

The Air-Cooled Bridge

I. P.T. State Bureau

SACRAMENTO — If you wonder why the state expects a $250,000,000 revenue gap next fiscal year, Sacramento's summer spending spree may give you a hint.

You can almost hear the thud of future tax increases as you watch the flood of bid calls go out.

First, there's the plan to air-condition part of the Vincent Thomas Bridge. That is so the toll-takers on the bridge plaza will be air-cooled. For this, $12,000 has been budgeted. It may mean that the $21 million link between San Pedro and Terminal Island is destined to be the world's first air-conditioned bridge.

Then there is the additional parking space for Sacramento bureaucrats. The state is spending another $16,000 for a 44-car lot near the Capitol. Private parking lots are nearby, but they charge.

BID CALLS also are going out for installing three complete television studios at San Francisco State College, a $300,000 project.

Spring housecleaning of your own home may cost only the price of some soap and scrub-brushes. But in the Capitol, summer housecleaning almost causes another run on the bank. Set aside for revamping the offices of a single legislative committee is $72,000.

Also pouring more money down the drain this summer is the money-losing California State Fair, an exposition that costs taxpayers money for every person who goes through the turnstiles.

Not only is the staff of the present money-

Yak Fat Yack Now Quiet

I. P.T. National Bureau

WASHINGTON—The Interstate Commerce Commission last week sheepishly filed away its thick dossier on what has become known as the Great Yak Fat Yack.

It began last March when a Nebraska trucking firm filed a notice with ICC that it intended to ship yak fat for 45 cents a hundred-weight in 80,000 pound lots.

Midwestern railroads promptly protested the rates, claiming that the truck line's yak yak fat tariff was below cost and therefore illegal. After due deliberation, the ICC concurred with the railroads and ordered the truck line's yak fat rates cancelled.

The whole thing puzzled reporter Gus Constantine of the New York Journal of Commerce, who recalled that yaks are woolly, ox-like natives of remote Tibet and seen in the United States only in zoos.

Constantine checked with the trucking company, which admitted the yak fat application was a giant hoax aimed at proving the railroads will protest just about anything proposed by truckers.

The ICC and the railroads were not amused, but nearly everyone else got a big yak out of it.

AS THE Pentagon is escalating the war in Viet Nam step by step, it is also escalating censorship on the many newsmen reporting there. The most recent nibble came in a ruling that anyone violating "voluntary" censorship rules would lose his accreditation. Only one more short step remains to be taken until full censorship goes into effect.

The real targets of the Pentagon are the foreign newsmen employed by American wire services and newspapers. In the main, these are Canadian, Australian, New Zealand, and German. Pentagon officials claim these individuals are responsible for the heavy diet of photographs and news-writing about U.S. Marine operations against villages and non-combatants. The foreign correspondents have greatly over-emphasized casualties among civilians, the Pentagon claims.

WASHINGTON—When Senators were attending the confidential White House briefing on Viet Nam, one of them asked Secretary of State Dean Rusk the significance of Singapore's breaking away from Malaysia.

"They're 70% Chinese in Singapore," he said. They're great traders and they didn't like the Malaysians."

It has been a long time since I was in Singapore, but even so I would be inclined to disagree with Secretary Rusk. When I was there, Singapore was a bastion of British defense at a time when the sun never set on the Union Jack, and when a huge floating naval dock was being built at Singapore in order to keep the sun that way.

Singapore fell to the Japanese after Pearl Harbor not entirely because of Japanese military might, but because its water could be cut off from the mainland. And Singapore fell to neutralism—later perhaps communism—last week not because of military might but because of ideas. In part, the ideas were inspired by U.S. policy in Viet Nam.

In brief, Singapore illustrates that the domino theory works in reverse.

IT WAS the late John Foster Dulles who invented the domino theory. He argued that the countries of Southeast Asia would fall to communism like dominoes, one after the other, if we deserted Indo-China. This was his excuse for committing 2,000 American military "advisers" and a good many million American dollars to hold South Viet Nam.

Presidents Kennedy and Johnson have accepted the heritage of Eisenhower. Dulles and the domino theory ever since, with the result that we are committing over 100,000 men plus over a billion dollars to playing this type of dominoes.

But will the Dulles domino theory work? Aren't we losing this game of dominoes, despite the huge commitment of men and money we are putting into Southeast Asia?

Singapore gives part of the answer. Singapore went neutral, and may slip over to the Communists, in part because our war in Viet Singapore gives part of the answer. Singapore went neutral, and may slip over to the Communists, in part because our war in Viet Nam, especially our bombing of North Viet Nam, has become so unpopular that, one by one, the countries of Asia are turning against us.

Japan, hitherto our friendliest ally, has become so embittered that the American Ambassador, though married to the daughter of an ex-premier of Japan, cannot appear in public. The Philippines, which we once liberated, are turning somewhat sour. Indonesia is openly belligerent. Pakistan, into which we have poured billions, now has a treaty with the Chinese. India is critical.

And, as of last week, Singapore, a part of a British Commonwealth country which we thought we were protecting by our firm stand in Viet Nam, deserted.

The domino theory is working all right, but modern dominoes depend on ideas more than military might, and the game is being played the wrong way.

YOU WOULD never guess that Sam Pryor, tough, peppery little vice president of Pan American Airways, was a doll fancier. However, he has built up perhaps the most amazing collection of dolls in the world and finds that they are a bond which unites the most diverse and adverse people in the world.

Pryor's collection totals 8,000 dolls which normally he keeps in a "doll library" at his home in Connecticut, but which this summer he has lent to D.C.'s Woodward and Lothrop Department Stores for a display in their windows.

Sam has also sent his collection to various parts of the world to promote people-to-people friendships. In Japan, 7,000 people a day came to admire his parade of dolls, including the Empress Mother.

The Air-Cooled Bridge

I. P.T. State Bureau

SACRAMENTO — If you wonder why the state expects a $250,000,000 revenue gap next fiscal year, Sacramento's summer spending spree may give you a hint.

You can almost hear the thud of future tax increases as you watch the flood of bid calls go out.

First, there's the plan to air-condition part of the Vincent Thomas Bridge. That is so the toll-takers on the bridge plaza will be air-cooled. For this, $12,000 has been budgeted. It may mean that the $21 million link between San Pedro and Terminal Island is destined to be the world's first air-conditioned bridge.

Then there is the additional parking space for Sacramento bureaucrats. The state is spending another $16,000 for a 44-car lot near the Capitol. Private parking lots are nearby, but they charge.

BID CALLS also are going out for installing three complete television studios at San Francisco State College, a $300,000 project.

Spring housecleaning of your own home may cost only the price of some soap and scrub-brushes. But in the Capitol, summer housecleaning almost causes another run on the bank. Set aside for revamping the offices of a single legislative committee is $72,000.

Also pouring more money down the drain this summer is the money-losing California State Fair, an exposition that costs taxpayers money for every person who goes through the turnstiles.

Not only is the staff of the present moneylosing fair gobbling up taxpayers' funds, but a second fair staff has been formed to put on a new year-around exposition at a different site.

Several years ago a consultant to the State Finance Department forecast that the new exposition would be even a bigger money-loser than the present fair. Nevertheless, plans are being pushed to build a new and larger exposition on a new site. Estimated cost: $33.7 million.

Gov. Brown—during his 1965 budget battle—said he intends to insist on quality government. The majority of the lawmakers have gone along with the concept of increasing taxes rather than slashing "quality" services.

However, air-conditioned bridges and free parking lots for bureaucrats are bound to trigger taxpayer demands for a finer line between quality services and government frills.

Other Sacramento Soundings: HOPEFUL LIST THINS—Latest Sacramento speculation is that Sen. Thomas Kuchel and Assembly Speaker Jesse Unruh both will stay out of the 1966 gubernatorial contest.

PROPERTY TAX RELIEF—Assembly Speaker Unruh, who co-authored a 1965 tax-reform program that was scuttled by the Senate and Gov. Brown, says "more and more people are demanding action." He forecasts public opinion will force property-tax relief soon.

COLLEGE CAMPUS—A San Pedro location near Ft. MacArthur has the inside track as the probable permanent site for Palos Verdes State College. Hush-hush negotiations are under way.

Yak Fat Yack Now Quiet

I. P.T. National Bureau

WASHINGTON—The Interstate Commerce Commission last week sheepishly filed away its thick dossier on what has become known as the Great Yak Fat Yack.

It began last March when a Nebraska trucking firm filed a notice with ICC that it intended to ship yak fat for 45 cents a hundred-weight in 80,000 pound lots.

Midwestern railroads promptly protested the rates, claiming that the truck line's yak yak fat tariff was below cost and therefore illegal. After due deliberation, the ICC concurred with the railroads and ordered the truck line's yak fat rates cancelled.

The whole thing puzzled reporter Gus Constantine of the New York Journal of Commerce, who recalled that yaks are woolly, ox-like natives of remote Tibet and seen in the United States only in zoos.

Constantine checked with the trucking company, which admitted the yak fat application was a giant hoax aimed at proving the railroads will protest just about anything proposed by truckers.

The ICC and the railroads were not amused, but nearly everyone else got a big yak out of it.

AS THE Pentagon is escalating the war in Viet Nam step by step, it is also escalating censorship on the many newsmen reporting there. The most recent nibble came in a ruling that anyone violating "voluntary" censorship rules would lose his accreditation. Only one more short step remains to be taken until full censorship goes into effect.

The real targets of the Pentagon are the foreign newsmen employed by American wire services and newspapers. In the main, these are Canadian, Australian, New Zealand, and German. Pentagon officials claim these individuals are responsible for the heavy diet of photographs and news-writing about U.S. Marine operations against villages and non-combatants. The foreign correspondents have greatly over-emphasized casualties among civilians, the Pentagon claims.

ONE OF THE few areas in which Congress swung the old economy ax on military construction for the current fiscal year was in the realm of family housing.

Top officers had pleaded that adequate family housing is a vital morale factor during a period when both the military and Congress has increasingly viewed with alarm the sagging retention rate among experienced enlisted men and junior officers.

But various congressional committees ignored the Defense Department's implorings, and lopped 3,000 units from the 12,000 dwellings requested for the families of such men.

However, through the painful paring process came a lardy survivor: One four-bedroom home to be built for a colonel at Nellis Air Force Base, Las Vegas, Nev., at a cost of $26,000.

UNCLE SAM wants you, Bowser. The Air Force has announced that it's stepping up its recruiting campaign for members of the K-9 corps. Dogs who've been able to release their frustrations only on postmen and door-to-door salesmen may get a chance for some real action, since the Air Force is starting to use its furry GIs in Viet Nam where the enemy generally is bare-legged.

The Air Force is seeking German shepherds of both sexes, but females must be spayed. The Air Force is not running a canine obstetrical service.

THE SURFACE of Mars probably will provide firmer footing than the moon for future astronauts, believes a scientist with the Interior Department's geological survey.

Although the Martian landscape appears similar to the lunar topography in Mariner photos, Dr. E. M. Shoemaker conjectures that the Martian soil is sandy. He and other scientists have speculated that the moon's surface is composed largely of deep powdery dirt.

Singapore's Break Jars Domino Theory

WASHINGTON—When Senators were attending the confidential White House briefing on Viet Nam, one of them asked Secretary of State Dean Rusk the significance of Singapore's breaking away from Malaysia.

"They're 70% Chinese in Singapore," he said. They're great traders and they didn't like the Malaysians."

It has been a long time since I was in Singapore, but even so I would be inclined to disagree with Secretary Rusk. When I was there, Singapore was a bastion of British defense at a time when the sun never set on the Union Jack, and when a huge floating naval dock was being built at Singapore in order to keep the sun that way.

PEARSON

The only thing the ruling classes of Singapore worried about in those days was the price of tin, the persistency of mosquitoes, and the potency of gin. English and Chinese were the prevailing languages and I was full of admiration for a clown in a traveling Malaysian circus who entertained in both.

Singapore fell to the Japanese after Pearl Harbor not entirely because of Japanese military might, but because its water could be cut off from the mainland. And Singapore fell to neutralism—later perhaps communism—last week not because of military might but because of ideas. In part, the ideas were inspired by U.S. policy in Viet Nam.

In brief, Singapore illustrates that the domino theory works in reverse.

IT WAS the late John Foster Dulles who invented the domino theory. He argued that the countries of Southeast Asia would fall to communism like dominoes, one after the other, if we deserted Indo-China. This was his excuse for committing 2,000 American military "advisers" and a good many million American dollars to hold South Viet Nam.

Presidents Kennedy and Johnson have accepted the heritage of Eisenhower, Dulles and the domino theory ever since, with the result that we are committing over 100,000 men plus over a billion dollars to playing this type of dominoes.

But will the Dulles domino theory work? Aren't we losing this game of dominoes, despite the huge commitment of men and money we are putting into Southeast Asia?

Singapore gives part of the answer. Singapore went neutral, and may slip over to the Communists, in part because our war in Viet Nam, especially our bombing of North Viet Nam, has become so unpopular that, one by one, the countries of Asia are turning against us.

Japan, hitherto our friendliest ally, has become so embittered that the American Ambassador, though married to the daughter of an ex-premier of Japan, cannot appear in public. The Philippines, which we once liberated, are turning somewhat sour. Indonesia is openly belligerent. Pakistan, into which we have poured billions, now has a treaty with the Chinese. India is critical.

And, as of last week, Singapore, a part of a British Commonwealth country which we thought we were protecting by our firm stand in Viet Nam, deserted.

The domino theory is working all right, but modern dominoes depend on ideas more than military might, and the game is being played the wrong way.

L.A. COUNTY TEAM BEACHES DORY AFTER GRUELING RACE

Aussies Turn Dory Race Into a World Event

Photos and Story
By KEN KNIGHT

HUNTINGTON BEACH—In addition to pulling potential drowning victims from the surf, a latter-day lifeguard has to be a dory jockey.

Huntington Beach, with a growing reputation as the mecca for surfing in particular and water sports in general, also is scene of the annual international dory race.

This year an international flavor was imparted to the event by a 15-member all-star team from Australia.

The team from down under, however, had to settle for third place behind the winner—a team from Carpinteria—and the second-place finishers from Los Angeles County.

Twelve teams of guards from various life-saving agencies were entered in Thursday's race, which last year was won by lifeguards from Zuma Beach.

THE RACE IS TWICE around the Huntington Beach pier and starts with the two-man teams launching their craft in the surf.

They then row their way around the pier and while one man leaps out of the boat and runs to shore to touch a line, the other must keep the boat just out of the surf and close enough to shore for his partner to get back quickly.

Both again must row around the pier, after which one of the team members leaps out of the boat and dashes to the finish line on shore.

The race takes about 15 minutes. Huntington Beach lifeguards this year played the perfect hosts. They came in last.

Santa Fe Railway Ends Merger Talks

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—The Santa Fe Railway system has broken off negotiations with the Frisco Railway Co. toward a possible merger.

Ernest S. Marsh, Santa Fe president, said Friday the talks were ended "since the two companies were unable to agree upon terms for putting the roads together."

Club Comic Considers New Career

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Comic Jackie Gayle, like the rest of his brethren, is going into acting.

"I'm on the road 40 weeks a year," he says. "I have a dangerous act."

"I play towns where the main excitement is going down to the J. C. Penny Company and watching them unload the truck."

"A comic on a stage is basically an actor," he says. "You say lines that are supposed to be funny. If they come out tragic, that means you're a lousy actor."

Gayle makes a specialty of working the Playboy Clubs around the world.

"I've worked them so long," he says, "I am the only person who recognizes the bunnies by their faces."

Beauty To Wed

ASHEVILLE, N.C. (AP)—Maria Beale Fletcher, Miss America in 1962, will be married today to James Harold Growdon Jr., a medical student she met at Vanderbilt University.

TO PLAY HERE

Pat Boone in Campaign to 'Clean Up' TV, Movies

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK—Pat Boone allows that he is a lone voice howling out against changing sex codes . . . that one day recently he heard himself yelling back at a TV show which seemed to be approving school love affairs.

"Why, you Idiots!" he was screaming at a woman psychiatrist and an opera star on the Mike Douglas program from Cleveland.

"Shirley"—Pat's wife—"was fixing her hair," he said. "She said to me, 'Will you shut up? They can't hear you!'"

But Pat, the onetime Tennessee and Texas ministerial student who still hankers for the pulpit, says he's right. He was cheered when a Vatican paper, without notice, applauded him, a member of the Church of Christ, for being "a gentleman."

IT GAVE ME a renewed incentive for my campaign to try to get some clean and wholesome things on TV and in the movies," Pat remarked when I saw him in his hotel suite. He was lighting one of four pipes that were visible, and in the background was the soft singing of the Righteous Brothers on a record player.

He was interrupted by a phone call from a friend telling him about forthcoming church services.

"I might see you at that 10 o'clock service, I probably will . . ." Pat said, as he hung up.

"I went to see, What's New Pussycat?" Pat chuckles. "Woody Allen was a writer on my TV show . . . one of his first jobs. You couldn't help but laugh and scream, but why couldn't that same creativity be used toward something clean?"

"I've GOT a TV show I'd like to do called 'The Preacher,'" Pat said. "It's about a young minister with a family who moves into a crowded city and he tries to make religion practical."

"He meets up with junkies and prostitutes and he doesn't always win. Sometimes his wife says, 'Well, better luck tomorrow.'"

Pat says he's already tried to get movie or TV series on Dr. Tom Dooley and on David Wilkerson's best-seller "The Cross and the Switch Blade," for which he's bought the movie rights.

Producers have a way of eyeing him suspiciously when he proposes almost any project and demanding, "Is it religious?"

"Well, a little bit, but you see . . ." he draws and by that time the producer has gone to lunch.

"They explain they're looking for something more risqué and gimmicky with musical coconuts or talking trees," he groans.

PAT, WHO'S been doing "West Side Story" in West Coast theaters this summer, his first stage effort, to record-breaking audiences, says he's become conscious of boy meets girl all over because his daughter, who's 11, has been engaged three times—and has three bubble gum rings to prove it—while daughter Debby came home and said:

"Do you know what Tommy and Terri did at recess—they kissed!"

Pat says, "I liked the old days when the boys said, Love? That's mush! They got over it eventually . . . but it seems to me they get over it a lot quicker nowadays!"

THE WEEKEND WIND-UP—Eddie Fisher turned down three different formats for his own TV show—and signed instead to do Sullivan and Dean Martin's show . . . The Supremes, now at the Copa, may have roles in the Beatles' next picture; they're the mop-tops' favorite singers (and from Detroit yet!) . . . Pravda interviewed Dorothy Provine on her recent visit to Moscow, and not many living actresses can make that claim.

Weight and Inches Disappear Effortlessly with Expert Supervision

The following was written by Miss Pat Walker

The opening of our new salon in Sydney, Australia was a only to find she still had her very enjoyable experience. The figure problems. Many women reach the point of thinking that there is nothing else that can be done for her. She thinks this because she has not been exposed to a reducing program like Pat Walker's.

Can you imagine how gratifying it is to see that same woman in a salon a few short weeks after she starts her treatments and to have her say thank you thank you for showing me the way to a new figure and in many cases to a new way of life.

I am often asked if I enjoy my work as an American figure authority. The answer is yes. I enjoy my work because it is so interesting and challenging. It's challenging because every woman has a different figure problem and each woman thinks that her problems are the ones no one can help.

This is because the average woman has tried so many methods of reducing and gone on so

No Rigid Reducing Diet in Program

Vivacious Pat Walker, who has helped many women to achieve their dreams of a brand new figure, has just returned from the opening of a salon in Sydney, Australia.

Internationally known as a figure authority, Miss Walker has directed salons throughout the United States.

NO STARVATION

Women with problems are finding Miss Walker's figure correction methods offering them a new way of life without suffering from effects of near starvation.

There is no secret to Miss Walker's success, for some 4 to 5 million women from ages 14 to 84 have been given a new figure and no secret could be maintained by that multitude of happy women.

The key to success—or secret if you wish to call it—is in losing where the loss is needed and in firming and toning the tissue to retain a new figure.

DIET WON'T DO IT

"Under a rigid diet program women will lose weight," says Miss Walker. "But they won't lose it in all the places they should."

"Perhaps the waistline may shrink from hunger, but the bulging hips, large thighs, thick ankles and sway back remain after dieting."

"Under our system we accept each individual as a separate figure problem."

The opening of our new salons in Sydney, Australia was a truly enjoyable experience. They were delighted to learn that there were no starvation diets, medication, strenuous exercise and no disrobing, and were grateful that they could reduce in surroundings that were beautiful and in an atmosphere conducive to relaxation.

Reducing is a specialized business and a woman with figure problems needs professional and expert guidance in a salon where every individual is taken care of and her personal figure problems are treated as such. Unfortunately for many women, home reducing devices are offered and purchased, and many women have invested in them. These thousands of women find in the end that even though they conscientiously try to reduce by themselves, they need expert guidance and help to succeed in reducing.

We pride ourselves in making reducing perfectly painless. We do this by giving wonderful service in pleasant surroundings. From an analysis we determine where a woman needs to lose, how long it will take and the exact cost of her correction. From there it is up to her to make her decision of whether she wants to continue to struggle by herself, or let it be our responsibility. For the convenience of women who work or have baby sitting problems, we remain open in the evenings until 9 o'clock. I am happy to be back in California and as usual I look forward to visiting my friends, former patrons, and those who are now reducing in our salons.

Aaron and Marr Survive Lapses

LIGONIER, Pa., (UPI) — Year-old Georgian, and Marr, struggling Tommy Aaron and a blond, 31-year-old trans-a scrambling Dave Marr both planted Texas from New Rochelle, N.Y., played Alphonse, Nicklaus, aiming for his third straight tourney title, shot a hole Saturday but still finished a stroke behind the lead all round PGA championship; and two strokes up on Jack lead with totals of 209.

The lapses on the 18th by Aaron, who started the round with a two-over-par 35-37-72, while Marr came in with a one-under-par 34-36-70. Marr, who had scrambled most of the day, coming out of the rough to snare a birdie on the sixth and emerging from the rough again to save his par on the ninth, had a one-stroke lead over Aaron coming up to the 18th.

The stocky New Yorker found himself with a 22-foot putt there and after he left his first one two feet short, he also missed with his second.

MISERIES LINGER ON FOR PALMER

LIGONIER, Pa. (UPI) — Arnold Palmer was stunned by another major setback Saturday in the third round of the PGA Championships—his third double bogey of the three days of the tournament.

There was no penalty attached to this one, however, as was the case the other times. This was a genuine fluff, and it soared his Saturday score to 74 for a three-round total of 221, eight over par and 12 strokes off the pace.

Adding to Palmer's troubles was the argument with the host country club's resident pro—Palmer is the host club's traveling pro—which resulted in the firing of Palmer's adversary Saturday. Paul Erath was told to "turn in your keys" by a club official in the dispute with Palmer over pre-tournament alteration of the course that assertedly aided Palmer.

Palmer said he was upset by the affair.

In spite of his troubles, Palmer remained the sentimental favorite with the crowd and was followed around the course by the largest gallery.

Valley course. That gave him a 210 total, one stroke in front of Nicklaus and Casper, straight tourney title, shot a 72 and Casper a 71.

Sam Snead, Dan Sikes and Ray Floyd were together at 213 with Bob McAllister at 214, Australian Bruce Devlin at 215 and Rod Funseth and Al Geiberger at 216. Ben Hogan checked in at 217 while Palmer was farther back at 221 and defending champ Bobby Nichols even farther back than that with 226.

Snead, the straw-hatted, 53-year-old campaigner who played in his first PGA Championship back in 1937, came the closest to causing any incident when his tee shot on the ninth settled in a gulley.

SAM'S BALL was only a few feet in front of a foot-bridge, which had a similar railing to the one that gave threeome behind Marr, had a chance to take over the lead all by himself if he parred the 470-yard 18th, but he also three-putted and left himself in a tie.

Dickinson was four strokes off the pace starting today's round but rocketed into contention with a two-under-par 69 over the 7,090-yard Laurel

Aaron used his wedge for his first bird on the par five 540-yard third when he put his third shot seven feet from the flag and gut down, then picked up his second bird on the par five 505-yard sixth by whacking his three wood second shot on the green and two-putting from 40 feet.

An 11-footer netted him his third bird on the par four 375-yard seventh after which he bogeyed the par three eighth.

Oliver's Bat Buries Cubs Reds Polish Off Cardinals, 4-2

CHICAGO (UPI) — Gene Oliver slammed two homers, his third and fourth in two games, to lead the surging Milwaukee Braves to an 8-2 victory over the Chicago Cubs.

Oliver, who has hit seven homers against the Cubs this year, has belted 11 round-trippers since the July 14 All-Star break and has led the red-hot Braves to 24 wins in their last 33 contests.

Right-hander Tony Cloninger was credited with his seventh straight triumph and 17th victory of the season, although he needed late-inning aid from Bob Sadownski.

The Braves continued their march toward a league home run record by collecting three more to give them 154 for the season. The league mark is 221.

Koufax Wins 21st in 10 Innings, 1-0

By GEORGE LEDERER
Jim Gilliam was looking for career hit No. 1,800 when he lined a ball to right field with two out in the 10th inning Saturday night. Gilliam still is looking for the hit, but Sandy Koufax and the Dodgers emerged with a 1-0 victory over Pittsburgh because Roberto Clemente couldn't find the ball.

Clemente, the league's batting leader, was able to reach Gilliam's drive, but it popped out of his glove for an error and Koufax himself pranced across the plate with his 21st win.

The loser was Don Cardwell (10-6), who matched Sandy's five-hitter. He created part of the trouble, however, by walking Koufax and Wes Parker after two were out in the 10th.

The Dodgers maintained their 2½-game league lead over the Braves, who moved into second place. The Giants and Reds trail by four.

Phils Upend S.F. Again

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Rich Allen's two-run homer climaxed a three-run eighth-inning rally and gave the Philadelphia Phillies a 4-2 victory over San Francisco Saturday.

The blow jolted Juan Marichal, an 18-game winner, with his ninth defeat. Jim Bunning, with relief help from Jack Baldschun, brought his record to 15-7.

MARICHAL stopped the Phillies on five hits until the eighth. Then with one out, John Briggs singled, continued to second on Hal Lanier's wild throw and raced home, with the tying run as Cookie Rojas singled.

After John Callison flied out, Allen drove his 15th homer over the right field fence.

The Giants took a 2-1 lead with single runs in the sixth and seventh. Matty Alou doubled in the sixth, was sacrificed to third and scored on Willie McCovey's sacrifice fly. In the next inning, Len Gabrielson tripled and came home as Tom Haller singled. Callison's leadoff triple in the fourth and Tony Gonzalez' sacrifice fly gave the Phillies their first run.

The loss, San Francisco's third straight following an eight-game victory streak, dropped the Giants into third place, one game behind the Milwaukee Braves and three back of the front-running Dodgers.

The victory was the Phillies' fifth in a row and moved them to within five games of the Dodgers.

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Don Patech doubled home a run in the fourth inning, then scored the tie-breaking run on a wild pitch in Cincinnati's 4-2 victory over St. Louis Saturday.

The Cardinals were unable to get a hit off Joe Nuxhall or Billy McCool after the third inning. Nuxhall, bringing his record to 9-3, allowed three hits before McCool pitched no-hit ball over the final three innings.

Deron Johnson started things for the Reds in the fourth inning when he drew a two-out walk off Ray Sadecki. Pavletic doubled and raced to third on the throw home. Sadecki followed with a wild pitch, enabling Pavletic to score.

Sadecki, losing his seventh straight game for a 2-11 record, also helped the Reds with a wild pitch in the third inning. Nuxhall singled with two out, took second on the wild pitch and scored on Tommy Harper's single.

The Cardinals had built a 2-0 lead in the second inning when Ted Savage hit his first homer for St. Louis after Phil Gagliano singled.

The Reds scored their final run in the eighth on singles by Pete Rose and Vada Pinson, a walk and Gordie Coleman's grounder.

Nuxhall was forced to leave after six innings in the 95-degree heat because of an upset stomach.

Rams Reschedule Two Games

By AL LARSON

Preparations begin anew today for another Ram football first—two games within five days.

Saturday night's preseason contest with Dallas was postponed in the public interest for safety and rescheduled for Tuesday night at the Coliseum. Coach Harland Svare then will march his men back to the Coliseum five days later to meet the world champion Browns.

Originally scheduled for Saturday, the game with the Browns has been moved back to Sunday afternoon. Rams owner Dan Reeves talked with Cleveland owner Art Modell and requested the one-day delay.

"It would be unfair to the players as well as the fans. It would mean we would be asking the boys to prepare in one day for the Cleveland game. It's just impossible," said Reeves.

"MODELL agreed it would make for a better contest if we had at least two days to prepare since we always give the players the day off following a game.

"The switch will be a costly one for the Browns since they had a television network setup for the game Saturday."

Svare will conduct a regular practice this afternoon in readiness for the Cowboys.

"Naturally there was a real letdown not playing Dallas as originally scheduled," said Svare. "Everyone was keyed to play and now it's like starting all

The few extra days will benefit the Rams' walking wounded which include Lamar Lundy, Terry Baker, Ben Wilson, Aaron Martin, Bucky Pope and Tommy McDonald.

All should be healthy again by Tuesday. The delay also could make a difference in Tuesday's starting lineup. Lundy may step into his old spot at defensive right end, replacing rookie Tim Powell, who had been ticketed to start.

McDONALD may be ready to push Willie Brown for the starting flanker post while Wilson should be ready to go again at full-back in place of rookie Jim Brown. Ditto Pope for Duane Allen at left end.

Regardless of the postponement, the Rams still remain six point favorites over the Cowboys. However, the oddsmakers haven't decided on the line for the Browns game. Last year Cleveland avlanched the Rams, 56-31.

Koufax Wins 21st in 10 Innings, 1-0

Jim Gilliam was looking for career hit No. 1,800 when he lined a ball to right field with two out in the 10th inning Saturday night. Gilliam still is looking for the hit, but Sandy Koufax and the Dodgers emerged with a 1-0 victory over Pittsburgh because Roberto Clemente couldn't find the ball.

There is serious concern on face of this member of Arnie's Army as he follows his favorite around

Aaron and Marr Survive Lapses

LIGONIER, Pa., (UPI) — 31-year-old Georgian, and Marr, 31-year-old trans-Valley course. That gave him a 210 total, one stroke in front of Nicklaus and Casper. Palmer, aiming for his third straight tourney title, shot a 72 and Casper a 71.

Sam Snead, Dan Sikes and Ray Floyd were together at 213 with Bob McAllister at 214. Australian Bruce Devlin at 215 and Rod Funseth and Al Geiberger at 216. Ben Hogan checked in at 217 while Palmer was farther back at 221 and defending champ Bobby Nichols even farther back than that with 226.

Snead, the straw-hatted, 53-year-old campaigner who played in his first PGA Championship back in 1937, came the closest to causing any incident when his tee shot on the ninth settled in a gulley.

SAM'S BALL was only a few feet in front of a footbridge, which had a similar railing to the one that gave Palmer all his trouble on a chance to take over the lead. Snead called for a relief, the 470-yard 18th, but he also missed with his second.

AARON, playing in the threesome behind Marr, had a chance to take over the lead Thursday. Snead called for a relief, the 470-yard 18th, but he also missed with his second.

Valley course. That gave him a 210 total, one stroke in front of Nicklaus and Casper. Palmer, aiming for his third straight tourney title, shot a 72 and Casper a 71.

Oliver's Bat Buries Cubs

Reds Polish Off Cardinals, 4-2

CHICAGO (UPI) — Gene Oliver slammed two homers, Mack Jones hit his 22nd, homer in the first inning and letch doubled home a run in the fourth inning, then scored second on a wild pitch in Cincinnati's 4-2 victory over St. Louis Saturday.

The Cardinals had built a 2-0 lead in the second inning when Ted Savage hit his first homer for St. Louis after Phil Gagliano singled.

The Reds scored their final three hits before McCool pitched no-hit ball over his final three innings.

Deron Johnson started things for the Reds in the fourth inning when he drew a two-out walk off Ray Sadecki. Pavlich doubled and raced to third on the throw home. Sadecki followed with a wild pitch, enabling Pavlich to score.

Sadecki, losing his seventh straight game for a 2-11 record, also helped the Reds with a wild pitch in the third inning. Oliver, who has hit seven homers against the Cubs this year, has belted 11 round-trippers since the July 14 All-Star break and has led the red-hot Braves to 24 wins in their last 33 contests.

Right-hander Tony Cloninger was credited with his seventh straight triumph and 17th victory of the season, although he needed late-inning aid from Bob Sadowski.

The Braves continued their march toward a league home run record by collecting three more to give them 154 for the season. The league mark is 221.

McDONALD may be ready to push Willie Brown for the starting flanker post while Wilson should be ready to go again at full-back in place of rookie Jim Brown. Ditto Pope for Duane Allen at left end.

Regardless of the postponement, the Rams still remain six point favorites over the Cowboys. However, the oddsmakers haven't decided on the line for the Browns game. Last year Cleveland availed the Rams, 56-31.

The few extra days will benefit the Rams' walking wounded which include Lamar Lundy, Terry Baker, Ben Wilson, Aaron Martin, Bucky Pope and Tommy McDunald.

All should be healthy again by Tuesday. The delay also could make a difference in Tuesday's starting lineup. Lundy may step into his old spot at defensive right end, replacing rookie Tim Powell, who had been ticketed to start.

Phils Upend S.F. Again

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Gabrielson tripled and came home as Tom Haller singled, Rich Allen's two-run homer, climaxed a three-run eighth-inning rally and gave the Philadelphia Phillies a 4-2 victory over San Francisco Saturday.

The blow jolted Juan Marichal, an 18-game winner, with his ninth defeat. Jim Running, with relief help from Jack Baldschun, brought his record to 15-7.

The Giants took a 2-1 lead with single runs in the sixth and seventh. Matty Alou doubled in the sixth, was sacrificed to third and scored on Willie McCovey's sacrifice fly. In the next inning, Len ground and made a clutch throw to third that erased the sliding Mota. Had Koufax thrown to first, Donn Clendenon's following fly ball to right could have produced the winning run.

KOUFAX also received defensive help from Lou Johnson, who took a home run from Bob Bailey for the third out in the eighth. Johnson timed the ball perfectly, leaped and came down on the left field box seat railing with the ball in his glove.

Sandy yielded three hits in the first three innings, while the Dodgers didn't get their first until John Roseboro singled with two out in the fifth.

Cardwell did not face two runners in any inning until John Kennedy and Parker singled in the eighth. Koufax was partly to blame for the Dodgers' failure to score in that round. He failed to sacrifice, then looked at a third

A Day For Billie Jean

Mac Epley's suggestion Friday that the City of Long Beach stage a "day" for tennis queen Billie Jean Moffitt is one that should not be disregarded nor taken lightly.

Billie Jean has brought untold reams of publicity to this city during a tennis career that has spanned the world. Just last week she made the headlines again when she clinched the Wightman Cup for the U.S. against Britain, contributing two wins to the final 5-2 score.

Somebody should make Billie Jean an honorary ambassador to Britain for she has created more friends there than our State Dept. Her brilliant and colorful style of play earned her the nickname "Jillie Bean" in merry England.

The date for a Billie Jean Moffitt day might pose a problem, however. She is expected back in Long Beach after more Eastern tournaments about the middle of September. Then on Sept. 17 she will marry Larry King of Eagle Rock here. She is slated to re-enter Los Angeles State College this fall.

Obviously, Miss Moffitt will be a busy girl in the months to come. However, that problem is one that our city officials can hurdle I'm certain by huddling with her parents, Bill and Betty, of 528 W. 36th St.

BILLIE JEAN was born in Long Beach 21 years ago and has lived here all her life. A graduate of Poly High, she has attended L.A. State three years but stayed out this past school year to devote full time to tennis (including a three-month tour of Australia).

She learned tennis on the public parks of Long Beach under the guidance of the late Clyde Walker, instructor for the Long Beach Recreation Dept.

Both Billie Jean and Walker have been honored at the Century Club's annual banquet. In fact, Billie Jean has been the recipient of Century Club trophies in almost all of the nine years the organization has staged its annual affair. Two years ago she was named co-athlete of the year with USC all-America footballer Willie Brown (now with the Rams).

Yet, clearly, a city-sponsored "day" for Miss Jilly Bean is in order. In fact, it's overdue.

GRABBING THE BRASS RINGS:

Is it true that Bootin' Ben Agajanian is swifter than any of us thought? Could be. Anyway, a spy reports that Aggie was stopped on the San Diego Freeway by a Highway Patrolman. With that big, black machine of his, the only reason could be SPEED.

Dr. Paul Saltman, USC biochemist and TV lecturer, gave a sparkling speech before Long Beach Trojan Clubbers the other night at the Petroleum Club. Some of his comments, taken from a well-worn cuff:

"Colleges have no time to create amusement like the pros. We just experience the pleasure of guys playing the game. Saturday games, as far as we here are concerned, are only the recapture of our youth."
"Why is Stanford great? It's the mecca of athletes. That school is No. 1 in U.S. thoughts. The school has known this for a long time and now is concentrating on student-athletes. Stanford football teams will be ones to watch in the future."

Dave Levy, ex-Poly coach and current USC assistant, stated flatly that the Trojan football staff had only one objective: "To go to the Rose Bowl clear cut. However, our schedule is unfortunate." (I'll buy that statement. In addition to AAUW foes, the Trojans must face the likes of Minnesota, Pitt, Wisconsin and Notre Dame.)

P. S. Trojan football ticket sales have boomed to 32,000—and the drive is continuing. (What price winning football?)

THERE'S LITTLE DOUBT that this will be Casey Stengel's last year of managing. Despite rumors that the Yankees' Johnny Keane (a close friend of the Mets' Bing Devine) might shift to the Mets next season, inside reports claim that Yogi Berra, current Mets' coach, will get the post. Yogi gained savvy as Yankee manager and as a coach this season. Anyway, cross out Stengel for further duty.

The usually authentic Murray Olderman of NEA reports that ex-Notre Damer John Huarte is the "turned-cocky rookie of the New York Jets." This we find hard to believe, although John did show up late for All-Star practices the week before last.

Anyway, Ram coach Don Doll says of Huarte: "I'd bet anything Huarte beats out Joe Namath as Jets' No. 1 quarterback. In fact, I think John is the BEST rookie quarterback going into either league." (Doll has something going for him: Huarte was the BEST quarterback in both the last two games played by ex-collegians—in Buffalo and Chicago.)

Packers Rip Giants, 44-7

GREEN BAY, Wis. (UPI)—son of Auburn carried the Bart Starr, the National Football League's leading passer last year, tossed for two touchdowns Saturday night to set off a Green Bay Packer 44-7 rout of the New York Giants in the opening exhibition game for both teams.

The Packers, flashing signs of the brilliance that made them an NFL powerhouse two years ago, scored at will against the hapless Giants, who were not able to mount a sustained drive until, with three minutes to play, an interference call and a pass from rookie quarterback John Torok to Joe Morrison put them in scoring position.

Rookie Tucker Frederick-

son of Auburn carried the final four yards for the Giants' only score.

Starr, the second time the Packers got the ball, hit ex-Ram Carroll Dale on a 51-yard touchdown pass to trigger the rout. Moments later, he passed to Bob Long to make it 14-0, and then Dennis Claidge came in at quarterback to direct a 57-yard drive capped by a one-yard touchdown run by rookie Ron Heller of Southern Cal.

The Packers substituted liberally, starting in the first quarter, with every player but two on the 54-man roster seeing action before the sell-out crowd of 50,837.

Blanda's Arm Paces Oilers to 29-7 Win

BUFFALO, N.Y. (UPI)—A strong defense and George Blanda's passing powered the Houston Oilers to a 29-7 rout of the defending champion Buffalo Bills Saturday night in an American Football League exhibition game.

The Oilers turned two pass interceptions and a recovered fumble into a pair of touchdowns and a field goal to gain their second pre-season victory without a defeat.

The Bills, who finally scored on Bob Curington's three-yard burst with 5:07 left in the game, have a 1-1 record in exhibition play.

Blanda threw a 22-yard TD pass to Arkansas State rookie Sammy Weir with the game 1:38 old. The score came three plays after defensive end Don Floyd recovered Jack Kemp's fumble on the Buffalo 19.

Rookie Jim Hayes of Jackson State tackled Buffalo's No. 2 quarterback Daryle Lamonica in the end zone for a safety late in the second period. Ode Burrell galloped 48 yards through right tackle one minute and a half later to give Houston a 16-0 half time lead.

BLANDA'S right arm set up his 42-yard field goal with 4:22 gone in the third period, and the Oilers treated Buffalo's No. 3 quarterback, Manton Kent, with contempt to add 10 final-quarter points.

Linebacker Charley Rieve picked off Kent's first pass and returned it to the Buffalo 19. Four plays later Blanda booted a 37-yard field goal.

Junior Coffey, rookie from Washington, and Tom Brown, second year safetyman, scored the last two touchdowns. Brown provided the thrill of the night with a 92-yard punt return.

Starr had one of his best nights ever, completing 10 of 12 passes for 153 yards. Third year tight end Marv Fleming, replacing the departed Ron Kramer, caught six passes for 54 yards while playing just half the game.

Haynes Hot as Broncos Nip Raiders

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI)—Denver's Broncos recovered from a shaky start Saturday night and rolled to a 27-17 exhibition victory over Oakland in an American Football League pre-season contest in Ute Stadium.

The Broncos, scoring their first win of the season, relied on the running of little Abner Haynes, crunching Cookie Gilchrist and the passing of Mickey Slaughter.

Haynes, who was obtained in a trade with Kansas City, raced 61 yards on a razzle-dazzle play with 6:40 left in the game to put the game out of reach.

The scoring play started when Slaughter slipped a desperation pass to Hewitt Dixon, who in turn slipped a desperation lateral to Haynes.

Low ET of the evening was 7:79 by Warren, who also got top speed at 210.76.
The day was marred with an accident late in the afternoon. Adams and Wayne's double A fuel dragster crashed near the end of the strip. The dragster was demolished but the driver, Rick Stewart, escaped with only a burned right arm and possibly a cracked rib thanks to rigid safety equipment required on all racing machines.

2-Platoon Comes in --Cheating Goes Out

By Associated Press

Honest, two-platoon substitution goes collegiate after a 12-year ban this fall, its freedom hindered only by one basic football maneuver—the punt.

Yet this hurdle will force 1965 platoons to get much better acquainted than the helmet-nodding, specialized legions of the 1947-52 era.

Why, a card-carrying flanker may have to make a tackle and a linebacker might even throw a block!

THE FACT that mass substitution no longer hangs precariously on the hands of the clock means cheating will go out of style.

Rules-makers have made the punt the last stand of the two-way player. Full teams can now be substituted between periods, after a score or try, after a first down is made or after it is awarded following a kickoff or punt. Two eligible substitutes can enter the game any time.

When it comes to a fourth-down-and-kick situation, a punter and one other man can be inserted. But a punting team can't be sent in because the ball hasn't changed hands. When the offensive team gets the kick away it must know how to play defense. The reverse is true for the defensive team when it fields the ball.

On the other hand, a coach can now make a complete change when his club gains or loses the ball via an interception or fumble.

A year ago, mass substitution was restricted to periods when the clock was stopped, encouraging the taking of deliberate delay of game penalties in order to get in a defensive unit for a punt. The coaches' code deems it unethical to violate a rule for any reason yet the percentage of violators grew from about 10 to 80% as the 1964 season progressed.

After the rule was changed last winter, Jack Curtice, rules chairman of the Football Coaches Association, said: "This is so near to free substitution that I don't see how anyone could kick about it."

"NOW WE can go back to coaching," says Frank Broyles, whose Cotton Bowl champion Arkansas Razorbacks were one of the nation's two unbeaten, untied teams last fall. "The new rule will keep most players at least acquainted with both offense and defense because of punting situations."

Arkansas will continue to employ two platoons—not completely specialized. Broyles says he works each unit about 70% of the practice time on its specialty.

Texas' Darrell Royal, who likes the versatile player, will platoon but use some boys both ways.

"The new rule makes it almost a necessity to play platoon football," says Bob Blackman of Dartmouth.

"It will be played because the rule makes it possible and it will be played in self-defense because your opponents will be doing it."

With 32 lettermen on hand, Charlie McClendon will continue to use the three-unit plan he helped popularize at Louisiana State under Paul Dietzel—one primarily offensive team, one defensive and a third equally skilled in either phase.

Baylor has been platooning fully for two years and Kent State hopes the rule will help it rise from the depths of the Mid-American Conference to challenge powerful Bowling Green.

On the other end of the scale, Bear Bryant of Alabama's defending national champions says his 1965 team would have been better under the previous rule, pointing to the loss of 15 key lettermen. And Duke's Bill Murray complains his outfit, which could have been very good, now suffers from "a shortage of manpower under two platoon."

Teams like Auburn are partially prepared for the change, having switched to platoons late last season.

Air Force, it's team riddled by a cribbing scandal and resignations, will go with a few two-way veterans around whom young specialists will be shuttled in and out.

Coaches can't agree on whether there will be more scoring as in the immediate post-World War II span or whether more skilled units will neutralize each other. The field goal, however, may go on a slight decline after reaching an all-time peak in 1964. A fresh club may try for six points instead of three from a reasonable range more often.

The average fan won't notice much difference in the game but there will be a sharp rise in special skills, the number and variations of plays and defenses.

WHEN SCHOOLS like Michigan, Notre Dame, Army, Oklahoma and Georgia Tech led the platoon surge in the mid-40s, many followers assigned the less talented or less experienced athletes to the defense, figuring it was easier to master.

Now the trend appears to be in the opposite directions, says Blackman, because "many coaches today feel defense wins more ball games than the offense."

Army, for example, has put nine of its lettermen on defense and only five on offense.

Platoon football was outlawed in 1953. Changes have been made slowly in the intervening years edging the game back toward free substitution again.

Now coaches agree on one thing—leave the rule alone for awhile.

Unitas Beats Cards

'Tark' Sparks Vikes

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Johnny Unitas and a stingy Colt defense gave Baltimore a 22-10 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals in a National Football League exhibition game before 75,229 fans Saturday night.

The great Unitas, starting his 10th pro campaign, uncorked two short touchdown passes but it was the Colt defense—triggered by Dennis Gaubatz, Fred Miller and Steve Stonebreaker—that kept the Cards reeling.

St. Louis, limited to two first downs after intermission, didn't muster a sustained drive until the final period. The Cards got to the one, but were thrown back and lost the ball on downs.

Less than a minute later, St. Louis scored when defensive back Abe Woodson grabbed a deflected pass from relief quarterback Gary Cuzzo and scampered 15 yards into the end zone.

The crowd, largest ever to see pro football in a non-league city "gives further proof" said promoter Dave Dixon, "that New Orleans wants an NFL team."

The city is in the running for the league's 16th franchise, which will be awarded next spring for the 1967 season.

Defense set up the first Colt tally. In the first quarter Lenny Lyles intercepted a Charley Johnson pass that led quickly to a seven-yard Unitas to John Mackey pass six plays later for the tally.

Unitas showed his stuff as a runner in the second period by breaking away for 37 yards to the St. Louis seven. He then passed to Willie Richardson for the score.

The Colts got their final tally when Tom Matte went over from the one after Bob Boyd had stolen another Johnson pass and carried it 34 yards to the Card three.

Lou Michaels kicked a 26-yarder for Baltimore and Jim Bakken booted a 20-yarder for the Cards.

ATLANTA (UPI)—Scrambling Fran Tarkenton led the Minnesota Vikings to a 31-21 victory over the Pittsburgh Steelers Saturday night in the first football game ever played in Atlanta Stadium, which will house a National Football League team of its own next year.

Tarkenton, who played his high school and college ball at the University of Georgia, thrilled a first-night crowd of 39,240 with a sterling showing of running and passing.

By the time he turned over the reins to understudy Ron VanderKelen the NFL exhibition, first pre-season game for both teams, had long since been decided.

Third-string quarterback Bill Nelson brought the Steelers to life in the final five minutes, sparking them to three last-ditch touchdowns with a dazzling display of long-range passing.

Nelson, formerly of Southern California, set up the first touchdown, which he scored himself on a sneak, with a 61-yard pass to Gary Ballman, threw a 60-yard pass to Roy Jefferson and then connected with Jim Butler on a screen pass for 72 yards and the third tally.

Tarkenton, now in his fifth pro season, had a 33-yard run after trying to pass and a 23-yard pass to end Hal Bedsole to set up the final tally of the contest—a 32-yard field goal by Fred Cox.

DEFENSIVE back Ed Sha-rockman set up the Vikings' first touchdown with a 67-yard pass interception return.

Tarkenton turned on the steam again early in the second period. He led the Vikings on a 85-yard march that included a 34-yard pass to Bedsole and a 45-yarder to Tom Hall that scored.

But Tarkenton's most exciting play came midway through the third quarter. Trapped while attempting to pass, he broke into the open, raced 31 yards to the Steelers' 27, then lateraled to Dave Osborn who went 23 more to the four—a 54-yard play.

'Bugs' Knock Out Parnelli

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP)—Joe Leonard of San Jose, Calif., captured the 150-mile Wisconsin state fair race Saturday for his first victory on the U.S. Auto Club big car circuit.

Leonard, driving a rear-engine Ford, took the lead a little after the halfway mark and edged Mario Andretti of Nazareth, Pa., by seven seconds. He averaged 97.276 miles an hour.

Parnelli Jones of Torrance, Calif., who had won nine of the last 10 major races on the one-mile asphalt fairgrounds oval, led the first 80 laps until mechanical trouble eliminated his Lotus-Ford. Andretti took over, but Leonard passed him on the 83rd lap.

Dan Gurney, Costa Mesa, Calif., was third in a Lotus-Ford. Bobby Unser, Albuquerque, N.M., and Roger McCluskey, Tucson, Ariz., were fourth and fifth, respectively.

Jim McElreath, Arlington, Tex., and Gordon Johncock, Hastings, Mich., collided when they resumed speed after driving several laps under the yellow caution light because of spinouts. Neither driver was injured.

Yogi gained savvy as Yankee manager and as a coach this season. Anyway, cross out Stengel for further duty.

The usually authentic Murray Olderman of NEA reports that ex-Notre Damer John Huarte is the "turned-cocky rookie of the New York Jets." This we find hard to believe, although John did show up late for All-Star practices the week before last.

Anyway, Ram coach Don Doll says of Huarte: "I'd bet anything Huarte beats out Joe Namath as Jets' No. 1 quarterback. In fact, I think John is the BEST rookie quarterback going into either league." (Doll has something going for him: Huarte was the BEST quarterback in both the last two games played by ex-collegians—in Buffalo and Chicago.)

Packers Rip Giants, 44-7

GREEN BAY, Wis. (UPI)—Bart Starr, the National Football League's leading passer last year, tossed for two touchdowns Saturday night to set off a Green Bay Packers 44-7 rout of the New York Giants in the opening exhibition game for both teams.

The Packers, flashing signs of the brilliance that made them an NFL powerhouse two years ago, scored at will against the hapless Giants, who were not able to mount a sustained drive until, with three minutes to play, an interference call and a pass from rookie quarterback John Torok to Joe Morrison put them in scoring position.

Rookie Tucker Frederick-

son of Auburn carried the final four yards for the Giants' only score.

Starr, the second time the Packers got the ball, hit ex-Ram Carroll Dale on a 51-yard touchdown pass to trigger the rout. Moments later, he passed to Bob Long to make it 14-0, and then Dennis Claridge came in at quarterback to direct a 57-yard drive capped by a one-yard touchdown run by rookie Ron Heller of Southern Cal.

The Packers substituted liberally, starting in the first quarter, with every player but two on the 54-man roster seeing action before the sell-out crowd of 50,837.

GREEN BAY scored twice in every quarter except the first. Paul Hornung went two yards for a touchdown midway through the third period, and shortly before the quarter ended Don Chandler added a 36-yard field goal to make the score 30-0.

Junior Coffey, rookie from Washington, and Tom Brown, second year safetyman, scored the last two touchdowns. Brown provided the thrill of the night with a 92-yard punt return.

Starr had one of his best nights ever, completing 10 of 12 passes for 153 yards. Third year tight end Marv Fleming, replacing the departed Ron Kramer, caught six passes for 54 yards while playing just half the game.

Blanda's Arm Paces Oilers to 29-7 Win

BUFFALO, N.Y. (UPI)—A strong defense and George Blanda's passing powered the Houston Oilers to a 29-7 rout of the defending champion Buffalo Bills Saturday night in an American Football League exhibition game.

The Oilers turned two pass interceptions and a recovered fumble into a pair of touchdowns and a field goal to gain their second pre-season victory without a defeat.

The Bills, who finally scored on Bob Curington's three-yard burst with 5:07 left in the game, have a 1-1 record in exhibition play.

Blanda threw a 22-yard TD pass to Arkansas State rookie Sammy Weir with the game 1:38 old. The score came three plays after defensive end Don Floyd recovered Jack Kemp's fumble on the Buffalo 19.

Rookie Jim Hayes of Jackson State tackled Buffalo's No. 2 quarterback Daryle Lamonia in the end zone for a safety late in the second period. Ode Burrell galloped 48 yards through right tackle one minute and a half later to give Houston a 16-0 half time lead.

BLANDA's right arm set up his 42-yard field goal with 4:22 gone in the third period, and the Oilers treated Buffalo's No. 3 quarterback, Mailon Kent, with contempt to add 10 final-quarter points.

Linebacker Charley Rieve picked off Kent's first pass and returned it to the Buffalo 19. Four plays later Blanda booted a 37-yard field goal.

Haynes Hot as Broncos Nip Raiders

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI)—Denver's Broncos recovered from a shaky start Saturday night and rolled to a 27-17 exhibition victory over Oakland in an American Football League pre-season contest in Ute Stadium.

The Broncos, scoring their first win of the season, relied on the running of little Abner Haynes, crunching Cookie Gilchrist and the passing of Mickey Slaughter.

Haynes, who was obtained in a trade with Kansas City, raced 61 yards on a razzle-dazzle play with 6:40 left in the game to put the game out of reach.

The scoring play started when Slaughter slipped a desperation pass to Hewitt Dixon, who in turn slipped a desperation lateral to Haynes.

2-Platoon Comes in --Cheating Goes Out

By Associated Press

Honest, two-platoon substitution goes collegiate after a 12-year ban this fall, its freedom hindered only by one basic football maneuver—the punt.

Yet this hurdle will force 1965 platoons to get much better acquainted than the helmet-nodding, specialized legions of the 1947-52 era.

Why, a card-carrying flanker may have to make a tackle and a linebacker might even throw a block!

THE FACT that mass substitution no longer hangs precariously on the hands of the clock means cheating will go out of style.

Rules-makers have made the punt the last stand of the two-way player. Full teams can now be substituted between periods, after a score or try, after a first down is made or after it is awarded following a kickoff or punt. Two eligible substitutes can enter the game any time.

When it comes to a fourth-down-and-kick situation, a punter and one other man can be inserted. But a punting team can't be sent in because the ball hasn't changed hands. When the offensive team gets the kick away it must know how to play defense. The reverse is true for the defensive team when it fields the ball.

On the other hand, a coach can now make a complete change when his club gains or loses the ball via an interception or fumble.

A year ago, mass substitution was restricted to periods when the clock was stopped, encouraging the taking of deliberate delay of game penalties in order to get in a defensive unit for a punt. The coaches' code deems it unethical to violate a rule for any reason yet the percentage of violators grew from about 10 to 80% as the 1964 season progressed.

After the rule was changed last winter, Jack Curtice, rules chairman of the Football Coaches Association, said: "This is so near to free substitution that I don't see how anyone could kick about it."

"NOW WE can go back to coaching," says Frank Broyles, whose Cotton Bowl champion Arkansas Razorbacks were one of the nation's two unbeaten, untied teams last fall. "The new rule will keep most players at least acquainted with both offense and defense because of punting situations."

Arkansas will continue to employ two platoons—not completely specialized. Broyles says he works each unit about 70% of the practice time on its specialty.

Texas' Darrell Royal, who likes the versatile player, will platoon but use some boys both ways.

"The new rule makes it almost a necessity to play platoon football," says Bob Blackman of Dartmouth.

"It will be played because the rule makes it possible and it will be played in self-defense because your opponents will be doing it."

With 32 lettermen on hand, Charlie McClendon will continue to use the three-unit plan he helped popularize at Louisiana State under Paul Dietzel—one primarily offensive team, one defensive and a third equally skilled in either phase.

Baylor has been platooning fully for two years and Kent State hopes the rule will help it rise from the depths of the Mid-American Conference to challenge powerful Bowling Green.

On the other end of the scale, Bear Bryant of Alabama's defending national champions says his 1965 team would have been better under the previous rule, pointing to the loss of 15 key lettermen. And Duke's Bill Murray complains his outfit, which could have been very good, now suffers from "a shortage of manpower under two platoon."

Teams like Auburn are partially prepared for the change, having switched to platoons late last season.

Air Force, it's team riddled by a cribbing scandal and resignations, will go with a few two-way veterans around whom young specialists will be shuffled in and out.

Coaches can't agree on whether there will be more scoring as in the immediate post-World War II span or whether more skilled units will neutralize each other. The field goal, however, may go on a slight decline after reaching an all-time peak in 1964. A fresh club may try for six points instead of three from a reasonable range more often.

The average fan won't notice much difference in the game but there will be a sharp rise in special skills, the number and variations of plays and defenses.

WHEN SCHOOLS like Michigan, Notre Dame, Army, Oklahoma and Georgia Tech led the platoon surge in the mid-40s, many followers assigned the less talented or less experienced athletes to the defense, figuring it was easier to master.

Now the trend appears to be in the opposite directions, says Blackman, because "many coaches today feel defense wins more ball games than the offense."

Army, for example, has put nine of its lettermen on defense and only five on offense.

Platoon football was outlawed in 1953. Changes have been made slowly in the intervening years edging the game back toward free substitution again.

Now coaches agree on one thing—leave the rule alone for awhile.

Unitas Beats Cards

'Tark' Sparks Vikes

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Johnny Unitas and a stingy Colts drive until the final period, the Cards got to the one, but were thrown back and lost the ball on downs.

Less than a minute later, St. Louis scored when defensive back Abe Woodson grabbed a deflected pass from relief quarterback Gary Cuzzo and scampered 15 yards into the end zone.

The crowd, largest ever to see pro football in a non-league city "gives further proof," said promoter Dave Dixon, "that New Orleans wants an NFL team."

The city is in the running for the league's 16th franchise, which will be awarded next spring for the 1967 season.

Defense set up the first Colt tally. In the first quarter Lenny Lyles intercepted a Charley Johnson pass that led quickly to a seven-yard Unitas to John Mackey pass six plays later for the tally.

Unitas showed his stuff as a runner in the second period by breaking away for 37 yards to the St. Louis seven. He then passed to Willie Richardson for the score.

The Colts got their final tally when Tom Matte went over from the one after Bob Boyd had stolen another Johnson pass and carried it 34 yards to the Card three.

Lou Michaels kicked a 26-yarder for Baltimore and Jim Bakken booted a 20-yarder for the Cards.

'Bugs' Knock Out Parnelli

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP)—Joe Leonard of San Jose, Calif., captured the 150-mile Wisconsin state fair race Saturday for his first victory on the U.S. Auto Club big car circuit.

Leonard, driving a rear-engine Ford, took the lead a little after the halfway mark and edged Mario Andretti of Nazareth, Pa., by seven seconds. He averaged 97.276 miles an hour.

Parnelli Jones of Torrance, Calif., who had won nine of the last 10 major races on the one-mile asphalt fairgrounds oval, led the first 80 laps until mechanical trouble eliminated his Lotus-Ford. Andretti took over, but Leonard passed him on the 83rd lap.

Dan Gurney, Costa Mesa, Calif., was third in a Lotus-Ford. Bobby Unser, Albuquerque, N.M., and Roger McCluskey, Tucson, Ariz., were fourth and fifth, respectively.

Jim McElreath, Arlington, Texas, and Gordon Johncock, Hastings, Mich., collided when they resumed speed after driving several laps under the yellow caution light because of spinouts. Neither driver was injured.

Lopez Logs Win No. 13

DETROIT—Who said Lopez thought of sensationalism couldn't be an American by wrapped around a baseball League winner?

nine games in arrear while the Angels climbed to within 20 and one-half games. But then, we're talking about miracles rather than magic numbers.

"I would think," said manager Bill Rigney, "that Lopez has to be the leading candidate for rookie honors and if he isn't then our little man must be."

The little man is Jose Cardenal and he was a big help to Lopez, slashing a two-run homer, his 10th, aside from Baltimore's Curt Blefary. Cardenal is the league's most productive rookie hitter, displaying a .260 batting average and 46 RBI, best among AL leadoff men, rookies or otherwise.

Lopez' credentials are even more impressive. The 21-year old southpaw boasts a 2.70 earned run average and only Mel Stottlemyre (14), Mudcat Grant (14) and Whitey Ford (13) have won as many games.

"I TRY to think only about each game," said Lopez. "I can't worry about winning 20 or the rookie award."

Now being employed every fourth day, Lopez will draw approximately 10 more starts for a clear shot at 20. In his rookie season, Dean Chance won 14.

"As far as stuff goes, Lopez is a little more advanced than Dean was," said pitching coach Marv Grissom. "He'll win more games because he has a little better club playing behind him."

Lopez, Saturday, couldn't find the key to Gates Brown. The Tiger terror, who was scouted while in prison, tripled home the first Detroit run in the first and doubled home the second in the fifth.

Cardenal constructed his homer off Dave Wickersham (6-10) in the fifth following a single by Tom Satriano. Otherwise, the Angels offense was on the hands of Bobby Knoop. Those hands are gen-

'THE MORE I STEAL, THE MORE WE WIN'

Wills Hits Back at Critics

By GEORGE LEDERER

Maury Wills measures his success by the condition of his uniform.

"If it isn't dirty, then I haven't done my job."

During the past week the uniform was much cleaner than usual and it concealed the dirty part of the Dodger captain's job.

It's been nine days, a record drought this season, since the modern-day Ali Baba stole his last base. Once 30 games ahead of his record 104-pace of 1962, Wills' margin has been reduced to 20 games and stealing a base no longer is as easy as saying, "Open Sesame."

WILLS ROLLED UP HIS trousers and exposed a right leg resembling a relief map of Berkeley—Strawberry Canyon and all. There are red wells and purple ones, from above the knees to the ankle.

"It's the same thing that happened to my hip late in '62," he said. "It's hemorrhaging from the constant pounding." The injury forced Wills to miss Saturday's game and may force him to miss the next two or three contests. "I can't steal because I can't slide. Even if I go head-first, I bang my knee. It might be another two weeks before I can slide."

In the meantime, Wills is swathed in bandages and padding, and on a diet of eight enzyme pills a day. The pills are to reduce the swelling, the padding to reduce the pain.

But there can be no rest for the weary Wills, who is as vital to the Dodgers as a "u" to a "q."

Last Sunday, in Cincinnati, Wills forced himself to go nine innings in an 18-0 drubbing because he is the captain, the last to leave a sinking ship.

Some players, a few teammates among them, say he also is a rat because of his obsession to steal.

"They resent it if I steal when we're far ahead. They think I'm trying to show them up. What they don't understand is that one never can be sure in this game. I've seen 10-run leads blown before."

The Giants criticized Wills for such a showboat role in a 9-0 Dodger victory at Candlestick Park early this season, but manager Walter Alston called it "the greatest base-running exhibition I've seen."

Wills twice bunted for base hits, sacrificed and reached first on an error, stole three bases and scored three times. His last steal came in the ninth inning with the Dodgers leading by six.

"I WANT TO KEEP the club motivated," he explained. "Just because we had six runs was no reason to get stagnant."

For the same reason he is not satisfied with a nine or 10-run lead, Wills is not content to rest on his 1962 laurels of 104 steals.

"The primary objective is to win the pennant, but I want to break my record just as any pitcher wants to win 30 games or the slugger wants to hit 62 home runs."

"I have to believe that the more bases I steal, the more games we'll win. I feel I owe it to myself, the ball club, the fans and to baseball to try to break the record."

Pinch Homer, Errors Help Senators, 8-5

BALTIMORE (UPI)—Pinch-hitter Joe Cunningham's wrong-field home run in the 11th inning climaxed a comedy of errors Saturday night and gave the Washington Senators an 8-5 giveaway victory over the Baltimore Orioles.

The defeat dropped Baltimore to third place in the American League and left the Orioles 8½ games behind first-place Minnesota.

Baltimore has lost seven of 10 games to the last three teams in the standings during the last eight days.

All but two of the game's runs were unearned. An error by Jerry Adair and Dick Nen's single preceded the two-out left-field blow by Cunningham, who had hit for winning pitcher Steve Ridzik.

Jack Brandt, atoning for a first-inning misplay that led to three Washington runs, clubbed a two-run homer in the seventh to give Baltimore a 5-4 lead.

The Senators tied the score in the eighth on a walk and singles by Ken McMullen and pinch-hitter Don Lock.

Lopez Logs Win No. 13

By ROSS NEWHAN
J. P. T. Staff Writer

DETROIT—Who said Lopez couldn't be an American League winner?

Al Lopez will again fail to win the pennant, but Marcellino Lopez should restore prestige to the name by winning rookie of the year honors.

As far as the Tigers were concerned Saturday it wasn't the heat, but the humidity that Lopez lost nine pounds and won his 13th game, a 5-2 decision which terminated Detroit's five-game winning streak.

Lopez (13-9) scattered six hits through seven innings, and when the mercury (it reached 95) took its toll, Bob Lee burned the Bengals over the final two frames.

COUPLED with Minnesota's defeat, the loss was a severe jolt to Detroit's pennant aspirations. It left the Tigers nine games in arrears while the Angels climbed to within 20 and one-half games. But then, we're talking about miracles rather than magic numbers.

"I would think," said manager Bill Rigney, "that Lopez has to be the leading candidate for rookie honors and if he isn't then our little man must be."

The little man is Jose Cardenal and he was a big help to Lopez, slashing a two-run homer, his 10th, aside from Baltimore's Curt Blefary. Cardenal is the league's most productive rookie hitter, displaying a .260 batting average and 46 RBI, best among AL leadoff men, rookies or otherwise.

Lopez' credentials are even more impressive. The 21-year-old southpaw boasts a 2.70 earned run average and only Mel Stottlemyre (14), Mudcat Grant (14) and Whitey Ford (13) have won as many games.

"I TRY to think only about each game," said Lopez. "I can't worry about winning 20 or the rookie award."

Now being employed every fourth day, Lopez will draw approximately 10 more starts for a clear shot at 20. In his rookie season, Dean Chance won 14.

"As far as stuff goes, Lopez is a little more advanced than Dean was," said pitching coach Marv Grissom. "He'll win more games because he has a little better club playing behind him, too."

Lopez, Saturday, couldn't find the key to Gates Brown. The Tiger terror, who was scouted while in prison, tripled home the first Detroit run in the first and doubled home the second in the fifth. Cardenal constructed his homer off Dave Wickersham (6-10) in the fifth following a single by Tom Satriano. Otherwise, the Angels offense was on the hands of Bobby Knoop. Those hands are gen-

ANGEL ANGLES—Brown, being hit by Lopez, was the first time since 1909 that a pitcher has been hit by a batter. Lopez, who forced the runner to ground in first baseman Norm Cash and in turn was on the receiving end of Cash's throw, was the first pitcher to be hit by a batter since 1909.

'THE MORE I STEAL, THE MORE WE WIN'

Wills Hits Back at Critics

By GEORGE LEDERER

Maury Wills measures his success by the condition of his uniform.

"If it isn't dirty, then I haven't done my job."

During the past week the uniform was much cleaner than usual and it concealed the dirty part of the Dodger captain's job.

It's been nine days, a record drought this season, since the modern-day Ali Baba stole his last base. Once 30 games ahead of his record 104-pace of 1962, Wills' margin has been reduced to 20 games and stealing a base no longer is as easy as saying, "Open Sesame."

WILLS ROLLED UP HIS trousers and exposed a right leg resembling a relief map of Berkeley—Strawberry Canyon and all. There are red welts and purple ones, from above the knees to the ankle.

"It's the same thing that happened to my hip late in '62," he said. "It's hemorrhaging from the constant pounding." The injury forced Wills to miss Saturday's game and may force him to miss the next two or three contests. "I can't steal because I can't slide. Even if I go head-first, I bang my knee. It might be another two weeks before I can slide."

In the meantime, Wills is swathed in bandages and padding, and on a diet of eight enzyme pills a day. The pills are to reduce the swelling, the padding to reduce the pain.

But there can be no rest for the weary Wills, who is as vital to the Dodgers as a "u" to a "q."

Last Sunday, in Cincinnati, Wills forced himself to go nine innings in an 18-0 drubbing because he is the captain, the last to leave a sinking ship.

Some players, a few teammates among them, say he also is a rat because of his obsession to steal.

"They resent it if I steal when we're far ahead. They think I'm trying to show them up. What they don't understand is that one never can be sure in this game. I've seen 10-run leads blown before."

The Giants criticized Wills for such a showboat role in a 9-0 Dodger victory at Candlestick Park early this season, but manager Walter Alston called it "the greatest base-running exhibition I've seen."

Wills twice bunted for base hits, sacrificed and reached first on an error, stole three bases and scored three times. His last steal came in the ninth inning with the Dodgers leading by six.

"I WANT TO KEEP the club motivated," he explained. "Just because we had six runs was no reason to get stagnant."

For the same reason he is not satisfied with a nine or 10-run lead, Wills is not content to rest on his 1962 laurels of 104 steals.

"The primary objective is to win the pennant, but I want to break my record just as any pitcher wants to win 30 games or the slugger wants to hit 62 home runs."

"I have to believe that the more bases I steal, the more games we'll win. I feel I owe it to myself, the ball club, the fans and to baseball to try to break the record."

If anybody's feelings are hurt, it's just too bad. I feel I don't have to apologize for my play."

This burning desire, the attitude of "put that in your pipe and smoke it," stems from Wills' mental approach to baseball and to life in general.

There was a time when Wills did smoke a pipe, but he hasn't touched one in nearly five years because ex-Dodger coach Pete Reiser told him, "that's a sign of contentment and when you become contented there's only one way to go—and that's down."

"It's too bad, but several players on our club are content when they could be doing so much more. Some day, I'd like to be their teacher and I'd start by teaching the proper thinking."

"I CAN'T DO IT NOW as the captain and I couldn't do it as a coach. No, I definitely wouldn't want to be a coach. That's not the position I'm seeking because there isn't enough voice in the job."

"But, as an instructor in a specified job, I could help if I were given enough authority. There are a handful of players on this club who are young enough for me to help."

"There comes a point when you have to force a player to do something. But, unfortunately, some players don't think that way. They don't realize that I'm trying to help them. All it takes is a little more effort and per-

WINS OPENER, LOSES NIGHTCAP

Gallant Try, but Peterson Ousted

By BRUCE YOUNG
L. P. T. Staff Writer

YOUNTVILLE — They say nothing is impossible and Peterson Post almost proved it Saturday.

Faced with what seemed to be an impossible task, Peterson captured the first of two games, 6-2, over San Mateo, but then after only 30 minutes rest came back to lose 3-2 to North Hollywood.

Coach Gale Taylor's crew thus was eliminated from the state American Legion baseball playoffs being held here. North Hollywood comes back today at 1 against unbeaten Ontario.

Saturday's first game went nearly three hours in a hot sun and after only one-half hour, Peterson was forced to come back against a thoroughly rested Hollywood team. It was just too much.

But the season did not end on a sour note as Jeff Lemon sparked for the losers. He saved the first game for Bennie Sanchez and came back to hurl eight innings of six-hit ball in the second game.

Lemon, a converted shortstop, did not allow a hit in four relief frames against San Mateo, and after yielding two runs in the first inning against North Hollywood, he was untouchable.

The winners started quickly when Ira Herringham doubled and scored on Al Mieren's single. Mieren went to second on the throw home and advanced to third on a wild pitch, from where he scored on a grounder.

North Hollywood added the decisive run in the third when Mieren again singled, moved up on a wild pitch and tallied on Jeff Pentland's hit up the middle.

Dale Duncan continued to be Peterson's hitting standout. In the two games, he reached base five times, collected three hits and scored twice.

Duncan also made several fine catches in the field, as did Ken Whitmer, who closed out his three-year legion career.

Peterson could manage only four hits off of Mieren and Pentland, while it collected six in the first game. Sanchez, who along with Whitmer, Mack Calvin and Gary Lamb, played their final legion game, picked up the victory in the first game.

Swimmers Better 2 World Records; Ilman Upsets Saari

MAUMEE, Ohio (UPI)—Two world records were broken and two triple winners were crowned today in the national AAU swimming and diving championships at the Lucas County Recreation Center.

In addition, an existing world mark was lowered, but there is a better time pending although it has not been ratified.

The world's marks were bettered in the women's 400-meter freestyle and women's 800-meter freestyle relay.

Martha Randall, 17, Wayne, Pa., swam the 400-meter freestyle in 4:39.2, lowering the record of Marilyn Ramenofsky, Phoenix, Ariz., who swam it in 4:39.5 last year.

He barely missed an eagle on the par five 535-yard 11th when his 20-foot putt nipped the hole, but he took a birdie on the hole and then drove into the rough for a bogey on the par four 397-yard 13th. He three-putted the 15th for another bogey and then three-putted again on the 18th.

WINS OPENER, LOSES NIGHTCAP

Gallant Try, but Peterson Ousted

By BRUCE YOUNG
I, P-T Staff Writer

YOUNTVILLE — They say nothing is impossible and Peterson Post almost proved it Saturday.

Faced with what seemed to be an impossible task, Peterson captured the first of two games, 6-2, over San Mateo, but then after only 30 minutes rest came back to lose 3-2 to North Hollywood.

Coach Gale Taylor's crew thus was eliminated from the state American Legion baseball playoffs being held here. North Hollywood comes back today at 1 against unbeaten Ontario.

Saturday's first game went nearly three hours in a hot sun and after only one-half hour, Peterson was forced to come back against a thoroughly rested Hollywood team. It was just too much.

But the season did not end on a sour note as Jeff Lemon sparked for the winners. He saved the first game for Bennie Sanchez and came back to hurl eight innings of six-hit ball in the second game.

Lemon, a converted shortstop, did not allow a hit in four relief frames against San Mateo, and after yielding two runs in the first inning against North Hollywood, he was untouchable.

The winners started quickly when Ira Herringham doubled and scored on Al Mieren's single. Mieren went to second on the throw home and advanced to third on a wild pitch, from where he scored on a grounder.

North Hollywood added the decisive run in the third when Mieren again singled, moved up on a wild pitch and tallied on Jeff Pentland's hit up the middle.

Dale Duncan continued to be Peterson's hitting standout. In the two games, he reached base five times, collected three hits and scored twice.

Duncan also made several fine catches in the field, as did Ken Whitmer, who closed out his three-year legion career.

Peterson could manage only four hits off of Mieren and Pentland, while it collected six in the first game. Sanchez, who along with Whitmer, Mack Calvin and Gary Lamb, played their final legion game, picked up the victory in the first game.

Sanchez was wild, walking seven, but thanks to strong field support and Lemon's strong relief stint, he survived. Ron Henkel and Chuck Moore each drove in two runs.

North Hollywood, which has only one loss and that an 8-7 decision to Peterson on Friday, trounced Sacramento 15-1 earlier Saturday morning.

MAUMEE, Ohio (UPI)—The world's marks were bettered in the women's 400-meter freestyle relay.

Martha Randall, 17, Wayne, Pa., swam the 400-meter freestyle in 4:39.2, lowering the record of Marilyn Ramenofsky, Phoenix, Ariz., who swam it in 4:39.5 last year.

The Randall girl was trailing Miss Ramenofsky, who wound up sixth. Patty Caretto, a 14-year-old youngster from Whittier, Calif., who had set the world record in the 1,500-meter freestyle Thursday, pressed Miss Ramenofsky the first 300 meters.

Swimmers Better 2 World Records; Ilman Upsets Saari

Two worlds records were broken and two triple winners were crowned today in the national AAU swimming and diving championships at the Lucas County Recreation Center.

In addition, an existing world mark was lowered, but there is a better time pending although it has not been ratified.

But then Miss Randall picked up the pace at the final turn and won by a good length over Miss Caretto.

Claudia Kolb, a 15-year-old from Santa Clara, Calif., picked up two gold medals Saturday. She won the 200-meter breaststroke Friday and Saturday added the 100-meter breaststroke and the 200-meter individual medley titles.

ALTHOUGH her 100-meter breaststroke time of 1:17.1 was better than the existing record of 1:17.2, the world record holder, S. Babanina of Russia swam it in 1:16.5 in May of this year and that time is being considered for ratification.

The City of Commerce, Calif., "A" team established a mark in the relay, swimming the 800-meter distance in 9:00.1—eight and seven-tenths seconds better than the existing record. The old mark was 9:08.8, set by the Santa Clara Swim Club last year.

Swimming on the record-setting team were Miss Caretto, Debra Pfeiffer, Janie Hallock and Mary Campbell.

The other triple winner was Bernie Wrightson.

The men's 200-meter freestyle title went to Gary Ilman, Long Beach, Calif., who edged Roy Saari of El Segundo. Sue Pitt, Highland Park, N.J., turned in the best time of the year in winning the women's 100-meter butterfly in 1:06.2.

Long Beach and San Pedro will battle for the Pony League Regional championship today at the Rossmore Hills Alamitos Naval Air Station at 5 p.m. The game, originally scheduled for 2 p.m., was moved up to five because of the intense heat.

San Pedro earned the right to meet undefeated Long Beach by defeating Granada Hills Saturday, 4-3, in eight innings.

San Pedro won 200 100 81-4 5 2
Granada Hills 001 002 60-3 3 3
Goddell, Ashby (5) and Devlin; Barry and Yoshinari.

Handicap: Overall—Paul Smith, 56, 18-20; Harold Adams, 93, 20-21; W. R. Carrell, 84, 23-24; Shirley Couch, 94, 25-27; Tom Musto, 93, High Lady—June Hisev, 86, High Jr.—Don Carson, 91, High sub-Jr.—Kim Furest, 92.

High Combined Score—Lindstrom won shootoff from Smith, Couch, 191.

T-Birds Edge Devils
The L.A. T-Birds defeated Detroit, 97-95, Saturday night at Veterans Stadium. There will be no game at the Stadium tonight.

RECORD-BREAKERS
Claudia Kolb (left) of Santa Clara and Patty Caretto of City of Commerce wear wide smiles denoting world-record performances in Saturday's AAU swim championships in Toledo. Miss Kolb's record was in the breaststroke, Miss Caretto's in the 1,500-meter freestyle.

WHAP! OUT OF THE TRAP

He barely missed an eagle on the par five 635-yard 11th when his 20-foot putt nipped the hole, but he took a birdie on the hole and then drove into the rough for a bogey on the par four 397-yard 13th. He three-putted the 15th for another bogey and then three-putted again on the 18th.

Ring Chiefs Schedule 'Spar Match'

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — Round six in a behind-the-scenes fight for executive control of the World Boxing Assn. is about to start. It will be fought at the Flamingo Hotel, where the 46th annual convention of the WBA begins Monday morning.

The winner of this round in the bitter East-West battle that began in 1960 will be decided Wednesday when about 30 WBA affiliates elect a new president.

Bob Evans of Louisville, Ky., is the candidate of the Eastern "Old Guard" that has dominated the WBA, except for two short years, ever since it was organized as the National Boxing Assn. in 1919.

Evans, current treasurer of the WBA, was nominated for the presidency by a committee appointed by outgoing president Merv McKenzie, Toronto, and headed by Lawson Lynn, Montgomery, Ala.

OPPOSING Evans will be WBA vice president Jim Deskin of Las Vegas, a leader in the Far West's battle to gain a greater voice in WBA policy making.

Deskin, executive secretary and former chairman of the Nevada athletic commission, was instrumental in breaking the East's hold on the WBA presidency in 1961 when he masterminded the successful candidacy of Dr. Charles Larson, Tacoma, Wash.

BILL UNDER STUDY FOR 'HONEST BOXING'

WASHINGTON (AP)—A federal commission with licensing and regulatory powers "can encourage honest men and keep the crooks out" of professional boxing, Rep. William L. Springer, R-Ill., feels.

Springer, ranking Republican on the House Commerce Committee, is co-sponsor with chairman Oren Harris, D-Ark., of a committee-approved bill which would set up a three-member boxing commission to be named by the President.

"Nothing can save professional boxing if it is left to the grabbers and grafters," Springer said.

The bill—introduced following criticism of the Cassius Clay-Sonny Liston heavyweight title fight in Lewiston, Maine—is to be considered by the House Monday under a procedure requiring two-thirds vote for passage.

It is considered a federal-control matter because most of boxing's profit is from radio-television income and communications are federally controlled.

Solon Probe Into Track War Starts

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., said Saturday Congress may take steps to halt the fight between the ruling powers of U.S. amateur athletics if the battling groups fail to reach an early truce.

Mansfield, the Senate majority leader, was one of several senators expressing concern lest the struggle for power and prestige between the Amateur Athletic Union and National Collegiate Athletic Assn., hurt both the young athletes involved and U.S. interests in world athletics.

Mansfield told a reporter he still hopes the two can end their feud without governmental intervention.

THE SENATE Commerce Committee headed by Sen. Warren G. Magnuson, D-Wash., is to start two weeks of hearings Monday to bring out the facts about the protracted dispute.

Vikings Face Back-Breaking Schedule

By GARY RAUSCH
It may be difficult to believe — with the current heat wave sending temperatures to the near-100 degree mark — but autumn and its harbinger, King Football, are only 33 days away.
On the evening of Sept. 17, Long Beach City College embarks on what certainly will be a most memorable season. The reigning National and Junior Rose Bowl champions must tackle a back-breaking schedule against nine opponents, each of whom has only one thought in mind — beating No. 1.
If anything, the Vikings could suffer from overexposure this season. No, it won't occur at the Bay, but in Veterans Stadium, where six home games are slated. LBCC hasn't played that many games before the local fans since the early 1950s when 11-game regular seasons were in vogue. Jim Stangeland's crew meets a tough bunch of lumberjacks from Washington, Everett Junior College, in the Sept. 17 opener.

THE TROJANS have their work cut out for the Norse machine hasn't lost to an out-of-state foe in 18 years. Victories have come easily in three Junior Rose Bowls (Cameron 28-6, Tyler 38-16 and Boise 33-12) and four regular season contests (New Mexico Military 42-6, Hutchinson 31-7 and Phoenix 1-0 forfeit and 51-2). After Everett, the four-time national champs challenge Compton, Santa Ana,

Bakersfield, Santa Monica, Valley and East L.A. in successive weeks. A bye the weekend of Nov. 6-7 is followed by contests with El Camino and Cerritos. Traveling will be light for players and fans alike. The Vikes will visit only Santa Ana, Santa Monica and El Camino.
As another convenience, homecoming has been moved to the Valley game. Ordinarily scheduled for one of the last home dates, homecoming — with its float building, parade and other outdoor festivities — has been plagued with rain in recent years and the change was welcomed.
Two of the perennial powerhouses in the CCAA are Los Angeles and Fresno, and fortunately for the 49ers, both games will be contested at Veterans Stadium. The Bulldogs come in Nov. 6 and the Diablos on Nov. 13, closing out the league campaign.
Reed announced a 10-game schedule Saturday, including five at Veterans Stadium. The other CCAA opponent playing here is San Fernando Valley State. Also, Nevada and Sacramento are home contests.

A home-field advantage isn't always what it's cracked up to be, but Long Beach State College football coach Don Reed is happy the 1965 schedule turned out as it did.
The 49ers must travel to meet always-powerful San Diego State, but then you can't have everything. And last year, despite the home field "edge," Long Beach suffered a humiliating 45-8 drubbing.
All 49ers games are Saturday nights at 8 o'clock. Long Beach begins fall drills Sept. 1 at Terminal Island.
SACRAMENTO, Sept. 18, 1965. (UPI) — Joe Namath, the $400,000 bonus rookie quarterback of the New York Jets, has been offered an opening with an Army reserve unit on active duty at Fort Benning.
The 22-year-old former Alabama star and all-American has been ordered to report for a pre-induction physical on or about Sept. 1, by the Peckskill, N.Y., draft board. A reserve hitch could cut Namath's active duty tour from two years to as little as four or six months.

Pro football players don't usually leave you laughing. But some of them have a quick retort for probing questioners. Here's one interview with American Football League star George Blanda that lasted less than a minute.

Blanda, a quarterback for Houston, was asked how his age could be only 37 when he was a senior, admitted to 35. Replied Blanda: "I was smarter than he was."

STOCKY Ron Musson gave Utah boating fans a thrilling introduction to hydroplane racing Saturday by gunning his Miss Bardahl to a top speed of 112.15 miles per hour in qualifying runs at the Bonneville Regatta.

FORMER middleweight champion Gene Fullmer admits he may be a bit prejudiced but he believes his young brother, Don, has an excellent chance of upsetting classmate Emile Griffith.

Vikings Face Back-Breaking Schedule

By GARY RAUSCH
It may be difficult to believe — with the current heat wave sending temperatures to the near-100 degree mark — but autumn and its harbinger, King Football, are only 33 days away.
On the evening of Sept. 17, Long Beach City College embarks on what certainly will be a most memorable season. The reigning National and Junior Rose Bowl champions must tackle a back-breaking schedule against nine opponents, each of whom has only one thought in mind—beating No. 1.
If anything, the Vikings could suffer from overexposure this season. No, it won't occur at the Bay, but in Veterans Stadium, where six home games are slated. LBCC hasn't played that many games before the local fans since the early 1950s when 11-game regular seasons were in vogue.

Jim Stangeland's crew meets a tough bunch of lumberjacks from Washington, Everett Junior College, in the Sept. 17 opener.
THE TROJANS have their work cut out for the Norse machine hasn't lost to an out-of-state foe in 18 years. Victories have come easily in three Junior Rose Bowls (Cameron 28-6, Tyler 38-16 and Boise 33-12) and four regular season contests (New Mexico Military 42-6, Hutchinson 31-7 and Phoenix 1-0 forfeit and 51-2).
After Everett, the four-time national champs challenge Compton, Santa Ana,

Bakersfield, Santa Monica, Valley and East L.A. in successive weeks. A bye the weekend of Nov. 6-7 is followed by contests with El Camino and Cerritos.
Traveling will be light for players and fans alike. The Vikes will visit only Santa Ana, Santa Monica and El Camino.
As another convenience, homecoming has been moved to the Valley game. Ordinarily scheduled for one of the last home dates, homecoming—with its float building, parade and other outdoor festivities — has been plagued with rain in recent years and the change was welcomed.
Fri., Sept. 17, Everett, away
Sat., Sept. 18, Compton, home
Sun., Sept. 19, Santa Ana, away
Mon., Sept. 20, Bakersfield, home
Tue., Sept. 21, Santa Monica, away
Wed., Sept. 22, Valley, home
Thu., Sept. 23, East L.A., away
Fri., Sept. 24, El Camino, home
Sat., Sept. 25, Cerritos, home

A home-field advantage isn't always what it's cracked up to be, but Long Beach State College football coach Don Reed is happy the 1965 schedule turned out as it did.
Two of the perennial powerhouses in the CCAA are Los Angeles and Fresno, and fortunately for the 49ers, both games will be contested at Veterans Stadium. The Bulldogs come in Nov. 6 and the Diablos on Nov. 13, closing out the league campaign.
Reed announced a 10-game schedule Saturday, including five at Veterans Stadium. The other CCAA opponent playing here is San Fernando Valley State. Also, Nevada and Sacramento are home contests.

The 49ers must travel to meet always-powerful San Diego State, but then you can't have everything. And last year, despite the home field "edge," Long Beach suffered a humiliating 45-8 drubbing.
All 49ers games are Saturday nights at 8 o'clock.
Long Beach begins fall drills Sept. 1 at Terminal Island.
Sat., Sept. 18, Nevada, home
Sat., Sept. 19, Cal Poly, home
Sat., Sept. 20, Sacramento, away
Sat., Sept. 21, San Diego St., away
Sat., Sept. 22, UC Santa Barbara, away
Sat., Sept. 23, San Fernando St., away
Sat., Sept. 24, Cal Poly SLO, away
Sat., Sept. 25, Fresno St., home
Sat., Sept. 26, L.A. State, home

ARMY UNIT MAKES OFFER TO NAMATH

FT. BENNING, Ga. (UPI) Joe Namath, the $100,000 bonus rookie quarterback of the New York Jets, has been offered an opening with an Army reserve unit on active duty at Fort Benning.

The 22-year-old former Alabama star and all-America has been ordered to report for a pre-induction physical on or about Sept. 1, by the Peekskill, N.Y., draft board. A reserve hitch could cut Namath's active duty tour from two years to as little as four or six months.

Hoist Bar, Mr. Payne Gain Victories in Del Mar Runs

By ERNIE MASON

DEL MAR — Mr. Payne and Hoist Bar, a couple of thoroughbred "hams," starred in a pair of old-fashioned thrillers Saturday afternoon as they scored hard-earned victories in divisions of the La Jolla Mile.

An audience of 17,043 was treated to an exciting double-feature in which the outcome was in doubt right to the final yards.

Mr. Payne, a typically late-running son of Silky Sullivan, accounted for his second stakes triumph of the season in winning the first division by a nose over Parking Ticket, with favored Nasharcho third. The bay colt ran the once-around in 1:35 2/5 to add to his triumph two weeks ago in the Oceanside Handicap.

Hoist Bar established a stakes record in winning the second section in 1:34 4/5 as he outgamed Tivoli by a half-length, with Terry's Secret, the 3-5 choice, another half-length behind.

Jerry Lambert was up on Mr. Payne, who rewarded his supporters with $10, $5.80 and $3.80. Parking Ticket paid $7.60 and $4 and Nasharcho returned $3.

Bill Hartack was up on Hoist Bar, son of Hoist Away, who paid $10.80, $4.80 and $2.60. Tivoli paid $6.40 and $3 and Terry's Secret returned $2.40.

The first division of the La Jolla Mile, which is the final steppingstone to the $25,000-added Del Mar Derby on Aug. 28, was replete with difficulties, even to the winning jockey being dumped while pulling up after the race.

LAMBERT reported that his stirrup webbing broke while easing Mr. Payne at the seven-eighths after the contest. He took a header to the dirt. However, Lambert was unhurt and came back to be narrowly beaten on Tivoli in the second section.

Dean Hall, who rode Parking Ticket in the opening division, said later he broke his whip at the sixteenth pole or else he would have won, while Ken Church, on Nasharcho, reported his mount propped badly while taking the lead in the stretch "or else he would have won."

Hoist Bar's triumph was a relatively simple matter, although he was all out to win. The brown colt stalked pace-setting Tivoli most of the way, engaged that one early in the stretch and then outgamed his rival under intense urging by Hartack. Terry's Secret, packing high-weight of 126 pounds, was gaining steadily in the final yards, but couldn't get up.

Both divisions carried a gross value of $13,600, with each winner receiving $7,350.

Hoist Bar, Mr. Payne Gain Victories in Del Mar Runs

By ERNIE MASON

DEL MAR — Mr. Payne and Hoist Bar, a couple of thoroughbred "hams," starred in a pair of old-fashioned thrillers Saturday afternoon as they scored hard-earned victories in divisions of the La Jolla Mile.

An audience of 17,043 was treated to an exciting double-feature in which the outcome was in doubt right to the final yards.

Mr. Payne, a typically late-running son of Silky Sullivan, accounted for his second stakes triumph of the season in winning the first division by a nose over Parking Ticket, with favored Nasharcho third, the bay colt ran the once-around in 1:35 2/5 to add to his triumph two weeks ago in the Oceanview Handicap.

Hoist Bar established a stakes record in winning the second section in 1:34 4/5 as he outgamed Tivoli by a half-length, with Terry's Secret, the 3-5 choice, another half-length behind.

Jerry Lambert was up on Mr. Payne, who rewarded his supporters with $10, $5.80 and $3.80. Parking Ticket paid $7.60 and $4 and Nasharcho returned $3.

Bill Hartack was up on Hoist Bar, son of Hoist Away, who paid $10.80, $4.80 and $2.60. Tivoli paid $6.40 and $3 and Terry's Secret returned $2.40.

The first division of the La Jolla Mile, which is the final steppingstone to the $25,000-added Del Mar Derby on Aug. 28, was replete with difficulties, even to the winning jockey being dumped while pulling up after the race.

Lambert reported that his stirrup webbing broke while casing Mr. Payne at the seven-eighths after the contest. He took a header to the dirt. However, Lambert was unhurt and came back to be narrowly beaten on Tivoli in the second section.

Dean Hall, who rode Parking Ticket in the opening division, said later he broke his whip at the sixteenth pole or else he would have won, while Ken Church, on Nasharcho, reported his mount propped badly while taking the lead in the stretch "or else he would have won."

Hoist Bar's triumph was a relatively simple matter, although he was all out to win. The brown colt stalked pace-setting Tivoli most of the way, engaged that one early in the stretch and then outgamed his rival under intense urging by Hartack. Terry's Secret, packing high-weight of 126 pounds, was gaining steadily in the final yards, but couldn't get up.

Both divisions carried a gross value of $13,600, with each winner receiving $7,350.

Last of Thorpe's Carlisle Mates, 81, Reminisces

PIERRE, S. D. (AP)—The great coach of the old Carlisle, Pa., Indian football team, Pop Warner, devised a plan back in 1905.

After it was executed, it left behind a completely baffled Harvard University squad.

When Harvard kicked off, Indian teammates bunched closely around receiver Charles Dillon, who deftly swept the pigskin under his jersey.

Then one of the Indians threw his helmet into the air, and the Carlisle squad pounced on it. Moments later, the charging Harvard eleven joined the melee.

BUT ONE LONE Indian, Dillon, had meandered unnoticed to the sidelines, and while Harvard vainly searched for the missing ball, Dillon thundered 90 yards for a touchdown.

Harvard kept looking for further trickery, but it never came. They lost 42-0.

The deception is one of the memories of Tom Eagleman, 81, of Pierre, who played football and baseball at Carlisle with the immortal Jim Thorpe. The two were roommates one year, friends for several.

Eagleman, lightly bronzed with a slight wave in his silver-gray hair, was a senior at Carlisle when Thorpe was a freshman. They were on the same football team one year and later on the same minor league baseball team.

Is Eagleman the only man still living who was a Carlisle teammate of the great Thorpe?

"I don't know of any others," Eagleman replied. "After I left school, we never kept contact."

What kind of a person was Thorpe?

"JIM NEVER had friction with anybody," Eagleman answered.

"His fame never went to his head at all. After a long run he'd say: 'If it hadn't been for your running interference, I'd never made it.' He always gave the other fellow credit."

Eagleman was born at Fort Thompson on South Dakota's Crow Creek Sioux Indian Reservation, where he received eight years of schooling before going to high school at Carlisle.

He'd never played football until coming to Carlisle, but in 1905, he became a substitute left end, and was a regular the next three years.

The Redmen were the nation's football darlings during those years, and teams from coast to coast wanted to play them.

Eagleman said 1907 was one of their finest seasons. They won about 85% of a 23-game schedule, he said, which included some professional teams.

He recalled a game against the University of Minnesota. "I played less than half the game when I was evicted for scrapping with Minnesota's Bobby Marshall. He kept tripping me, and the third time he did it, I took him from behind. I tackled him and then worked him over for awhile."

On the same trip, Eagleman said they played the University of Chicago, coached by Amos Alonzo Stagg. "We piled the score 32-0," he grinned.

Eagleman, 5-foot-11, said his playing weight was 185 pounds. "Jim was 6-foot-1, and he was built lanky. He weighed about 185 or 190."

"I never scrimmaged against him and never tackled him—but then, I don't suppose I could hold him."

Was Thorpe as great as they claim?

"JIM WAS UNMATCHED as a broken-field runner," he said. "In my time, I played against some all-Americans, and I don't think any of them would equal Jim. Not even Jim Brown of the Cleveland Browns."

"Brown isn't fast enough like Jim—maybe through the line he is as good, but he's not fast enough to get around the outside."

Eagleman said football today is an easier game.

"It's not as rough now, because players have the equipment and can hardly get hurt... they're all padded up. Even their faces are protected. All we had were strips of bamboo to protect our thighs, and some light helmets."

The Carlisle team had 18 to 20 players, Eagleman said, but the squad never huddled.

"Nobody knew what the next play would be except the quarterback and the coach. They were all called at the line."

Thorpe and Eagleman also played baseball together at Carlisle. Thorpe was an outfielder, Eagleman a pitcher.

After Carlisle, Eagleman played minor league baseball with Peoria, Ill., in the 3-1 League, and with Canton, Ill., in the I&M League.

THORPE AND Eagleman were on the same Canton team around 1911, Eagleman said. In Springfield, Ill., Eagleman hurt his arm "warming up too fast on a cold, rainy spring day. I figure I could have made the big league if I hadn't hurt my arm."

With a wide smile and a cheery wave, marathon swimmer Greta Andersen took off for Europe to challenge English Channel. She'll try to become first woman to make non-stop, two-way crossing of 21-mile body of water.

What A Treat Gets Victory at Saratoga

By Associated Press

George D. Widener's What A Treat came out of the pack in a field of 18 3-year-old fillies, survived a claim of foul and won the $63,200 Alabama Stakes at Saratoga by one-half length Saturday.

In posting her fifth victory in 10 starts this year, the daughter of Tudor Minstrel-Rare Treat finished the 1 1/4 miles a neck in front of the Wheatley Stable's Discipline, with William Haggin Perry's Terentia two lengths back.

Larry Adams, astride Terentia, claimed foul against both What A Treat, ridden by Johnny Rotz, and Discipline, piloted by Walter Blum.

After looking at the pictures the stewards could find no fault with What A Treat, but ruled that Discipline interfered with Terentia in the stretch and changed their positions. Terentia was moved up to second and Discipline dropped to third as Cordially finished fourth.

For her fourth stakes victory of the season, What A Treat earned $41,980, running her career bank account to $163,122.

LONGDEN HAS 2 MORE WINS TOTAL IS 5,999

VANCOUVER, B.C. (AP)—Jockey Johnny Longden rode two more winners in five tries Saturday, pushing his lifetime total to 5,999 and one short of the record he has come to Vancouver's Exhibition Park to establish.

Longden may hit No. 6,000 Monday, when he has at least two mounts.

The 58-year-old jockey brought home favorite Mega Var in the third and second-favorite Sapot in the sixth Saturday.

Waterfowl Season Decision Due

Secretary of the Interior Stewart L. Udall is expected to announce his decision on the migratory waterfowl season dates, limits and regulations within the next two weeks. Meanwhile, there is a conflict of interest between federal experts and Ducks Unlimited officials about lowering the limits.

Federal officials say that the fall flights will be no better than last year's, and they are calling for action to increase the breeding stock for future years. That means that lower limits would be placed in effect.

Ducks Unlimited, participating in the annual meeting of the Waterfowl Advisory Committee, urged no tightening of federal restrictions and advocated more liberal rules in those flyways where warranted.

The committee, advisory to Director John S. Gottschalk, of the Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife, met to hear a discussion of the current status of waterfowl by Gottschalk and W. F. Crissey, director of the migratory bird populations station.

Gottschalk told the committee that the drought in recent years and large kills in Canada and the United States last year reduced the duck breeding population to the lowest level since reliable surveys were started in 1947.

"The breeding population levels must be allowed to increase materially if the number of waterfowl is ever to reach a point where good hunting can be provided for as many as 2.2 million U. S. hunters," he said.

THE POSITION OF DU was outlined in statements read by Charles B. Allen, a trustee and chairman of the organization's flyway committee, and Dale E. Whitesell, executive vice president.

Allen pointed out that Ducks Unlimited has as its first objective the raising of money in the United States to construct and maintain wetlands in Canada for continued natural production of waterfowl. He said that DU basically supported the federal production analysis, based on its own studies.

Whitesell said: "Ducks Unlimited firmly believes that waterfowl regulations for 1965 should not be reduced. On the contrary, they should be retained at last year's levels and in some instances made more liberal in those flyways where warranted."

On Capitol Hill, Sen. A. Willis Robertson, D-Va., urged that the United States and Canada prohibit all duck shooting this year in an effort to check the declining waterfowl population. He sent a telegram to Secretary Udall which said, in part:

"I urge that you close the season in the United States and ask our Canadian friends to take similar action. If we wait one or two more years before taking drastic action to save the remnants of brood stock and then close the season, it would probably never be opened again because the brood stock would have gone beyond the point of recall."

THE U. S. RECLAMATION BUREAU says that recreation seekers will find ideal conditions at the big federal reservoirs in Northern California for the rest of the summer. Regional director Robert J. Pafford Jr. said at Sacramento that the reservoirs are at their highest levels in years despite increasing demands for irrigation water.

"Late-season rains," Pafford said, "heavy and continuing runoff and an early summer low demand for irrigation water all have contributed to the high water levels. As a result, we have nearly ideal conditions for the valley's recreation industry and the millions of people who use our lakes for swimming, fishing, boating, water skiing and picnicking."

Shasta Lake, the largest reservoir in the state, held 4.1 million acre feet with a capacity of 4.5 million. The water level last week was 56 feet higher than it has ever been in August since 1958.

Clair Engle Lake behind Trinity Dam held 2.2 million acre feet with a 2.5 million capacity. The water level was 26 feet higher than it was at the same time last year.

Millerton Lake behind Friant Dam was 28 feet higher than last year; Folsom Lake was 11 feet higher, and Lake Berryessa was up four feet.

Shasta and Trinity are good fish producers this year, but the torrid heat wave is forcing anglers to fish very early in the mornings and late in the afternoons.

OUTDOOR PERSONALS—It appears that the harvest of albacore has begun in earnest for the local landings, with only a five-hour ride each way to reach the longfins. The fish are at the 43-Fathom Bank, between the mainland and the eastern tip of San Clemente Island.

Cookie Cook took the America to a point just south of the 43 Thursday and the 85-foot boat returned to Pierpoint Landing late Thursday with 158 longfins, just about the top catch of the season to date. Cook reported that he made a stop and the anglers decked 113 albacore in 30 minutes.

Dick Helgren, skipper of the Electra (Norm's Landing, San Pedro) fished in the same area and his passengers took 95 albacore. The Sharpshooter (22nd Street Landing, San Pedro) had 75 fish.

State Controller Alan Cranston has reminded California boat owners that they will no longer receive refunds of the state gasoline tax after Sept. 17. The tax, now eight cents per gallon, will be held by the state to finance boating facility improvements. Cranston urged boat owners to apply for their final refunds just as soon after Sept. 17 as possible.

The Torrance Rod and Gun Club urges dove hunters to sharpen up their shooting at a ham and turkey shoot next Sunday at the Long Beach-Dominguez Gun Club on Artesia Boulevard between Avalon and Central. Shooting starts at 9 a.m. and is open to all comers.

Waterfowl Season Decision Due

Secretary of the Interior Stewart L. Udall is expected to announce his decision on the migratory waterfowl season dates, limits and regulations within the next two weeks.

Federal officials say that the fall flights will be no better than last year's, and they are calling for action to increase the breeding stock for future years.

The committee, advisory to Director John S. Gottschalk, of the Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife, met to hear a discussion of the current status of waterfowl by Gottschalk and W. F. Crissey, director of the migratory bird populations station.

Gottschalk told the committee that the drought in recent years and large kills in Canada and the United States last year reduced the duck breeding population to the lowest level since reliable surveys were started in 1947.

"The breeding population levels must be allowed to increase materially if the number of waterfowl is ever to reach a point where good hunting can be provided for as many as 2.2 million U. S. hunters," he said.

THE POSITION OF DU was outlined in statements read by Charles B. Allen, a trustee and chairman of the organization's flyway committee, and Dale E. Whitesell, executive vice president.

On Capitol Hill, Sen. A. Willis Robertson, D-Va., urged that the United States and Canada prohibit all duck shooting this year in an effort to check the declining waterfowl population. He sent a telegram to Secretary Udall which said, in part:

GRACEFULLY CURVED in conformity with bend in street, Newport National Bank Building is hub of plush financial and professional center under development at Newport Beach.

Bank & Professional Buildings Mushroom at Newport Beach

By VERN ANTHONY

Justifying the full treatment of Hollywood adjectives, a prestige financial and professional center has mushroomed in the Westcliff-Dover Drive area of Newport Beach.

Focal point, and curving artistically with the bend of the street, is the new three-story Newport National Bank Building. Adjoining it on Westcliff Drive is a savings and loan building; and spaced along Dover Drive on the other side of the bank are three major new office buildings.

Across the street, water sparkles from a fancy fountain marking an entrance to Dover Shores, bayside area of de luxe residences.

Upstreet from the savings and loan building stretches a row of distinguished looking business structures; and a bit farther lies the ritzy Westcliff Plaza shopping center developed by the Irvine Company.

As a leasing agency, Coldwell Banker & Co., with offices at 2200 E. Coast Highway, has played a dominant role in development of the area.

Sparkling the Newport Financial Center has been Gerald Chazan of Glendale. Advised by Coldwell, Banker, he chose the area for investments, and started construction, Newport National wanted to be part of the financial center, so became tenant.

The result is said by many observers, including George L. Woodford, president, to be one of the most unusual and attractive banks in the nation.

Dominating interior decor is a huge globe of the world more than six feet in diameter. Its prototype was created by the government and cost a half million dollars, being used in training of astronauts.

Bank features include: Individual tellers' desks; drive-in service by television, with deposits made via pneumatic tubes, travel department; art gallery; adding machines for customer use; women employees wear matching tailored suits; two hostesses at reception desk; luxurious furnishings and lounges; and the coffee pot's always on for refreshment.

One of the new office buildings near the bank will be used as headquarters for Macco Realty Co., and it will be called the Macco Realty Building. The realty company is a subsidiary of Macco Corporation; and its sales jumped from $20 million in 1962 to $32 million in 1963.

Macco's Dover Shores residential development is a $22 million project, an attractive stimulus to growth of the Newport National area as a professional center.

115 TONS HOISTED AT L.B. PIER

A 115-ton heavy-lift generator was taken from the hold of Italian freighter, Cesare d' Amico, at Pier C in the Port of Long Beach last week. The generator, one of the largest single pieces of cargo ever handled in the harbor, was taken from the merchantman by 200-ton U. S. Navy crane, largest floating crane in the world. Also involved in the shipment were 24 cases of accessories. The generator is to be installed at the Haynes power plant near Long Beach.

National Gypsum Chief Eyes 1970 Buying Power

In an expansion mood, as evidenced by new facilities in Long Beach, National Gypsum Co. is watching with expectancy the buying power the present 30-34 age group will have by 1970.

"The tremendous number of people in this age group will increase demands for housing and remodeling which will keep the entire facilities of National Gypsum at near optimum production rate," in the opinion of Colon Brown, board chairman, who visited Long Beach last week. Brown became board chairman and chief executive officer last January.

ON TOUR from his Buffalo offices, Brown met with other company officials at the new Western Region office building at 1850 W. 8th St., where on a 23-acre site the company is putting finishing touches on one of the most modern gypsum products plant in the world. Brown was high in his praise of the Long Beach prospect.

Others at the meeting included:

J. P. Nicely, vice president-sales; C. Gustavus, Western Region sales mgr.; J. B. Crowell, general production manager; J. B. Proctor, Western production manager; M. B. Turner, Long Beach plant manager; R. P. Oleson, Southern Pacific division manager, and J. L. Dwyer, Los Angeles District manager.

The Long Beach plant began in the initial planning stages some three years ago.

BASIC THOUGHT in this expansion of the company westward was to create a chain of production facilities of gypsum products, primarily, in the 11 western states, to bring plants into areas of expanding population.

Eventually, nearly all of the products now manufactured by National Gypsum and distributed east of the Rockies will be brought out to the West Coast, as the marketplace dictates.

Brown said he was interested in examining the possibilities of production facilities for metal lath and other metal products on the West Coast.

FOR THE OVERALL corporation (including subsidiaries), Brown expects there to be a greater volume of products sold in 1965 over 1964; but saw a possibility of a slight decline in profits due to instability of the pricing structure in the building

BIG TRANSFORMATION

L.B. Grocer Remodels Santa Fe Ave. Store

BY VERN ANTHONY
Progress Section Editor

In these days of mighty corporations and nationwide chains, it's noteworthy that a man of enterprise still can score high in the free enterprise game.

As a case in point, take the remodeled Villa Market at 2990 Santa Fe Ave.

Owner Myer Wolfson, with a lifetime of grocery experience, recently com-front was designed by Brand Worth Co., noted specialists in the store remodeling field.

LOOKING LIKE NEW inside, the market offers such features as:

Wide aisles for relaxed shopping; all-new display racks and refrigeration facilities; cheerful surroundings in the bright and picturesque decor, enhanced by overhead lighting; conveniently located automatic doors; newly tiled floor; speedy checkout system; air-conditioning kept at comfortable temperature; electric heating for cooler weather; and handy free parking.

Various departments including meat, produce, dairy and liquor sections, are readily identified.

EXPERIENCED BUTCHERS provide personalized service in the meat department, and Wolfson credits such features as this for a large measure of his success.

"Modernization of the store has given us an added prestige image," he said.

The owner is especially proud of some features the customer fails to see. Such as the electric heating and cooling system controlled by four thermostats, instead of the customary one. This allows different parts of the store to be kept at desired temperatures.

THEN TOO, the room housing all motor equipment for refrigeration, etc., is at the rear of the store, so located as to keep the noise away from the customers.

Also, there are the freezer store rooms for produce and meats; the enlarged storage space for supplies; the inter-com system, including connection with the delivery doors at the rear of the store that lets a truck driver "talk himself in."

Parking space for about a hundred cars will be resurfaced and striped, Wolfson said.

He points with pride also to another facility, a gravity-feed shelf system in the beer and beverage department. There are but a few of these in the Southland, he said. Bottles and cans slide down tilted shelving from a refrigerated room... giving handy access to ice-cold drinks.

WOLFSON MOVED his business to Long Beach five years ago, and no longer operates a market he had in Avalon Village, Wilmington.

His son, Stanley, also works in the market, where most of the staff are long-time employees.

The owner formerly was in business with his father, one of the original members of the Certified Grocers organization. They at one time operated the Vernon and Western Market in Los Angeles, later having the store in Avalon Village.

There's an old saying that the customer always is right; but in Wolfson's opinion the store has to be right, too, and he's done something about it at 2990 Santa Fe.

"AUTO SERVICE" in the Classified section is the place for you to attract your best prospects.

ENLARGED EDITION

New L.B. Chamber Roster Distributed

Some 4,000 copies of the 1965-66 enlarged edition of the Long Beach Chamber of Commerce Membership Roster and Buyer's Guide are now in distribution, it was announced last week by Henry Mayday, publisher.

Copies carrying the Long Beach story are going to Chamber members, libraries and other interested parties in the United States and in foreign lands.

The book, larger than last year's — also edited by May-HENRY MAYDAY — contains detailed information about the Chamber and various businesses in Long Beach. The membership roster, checked for accuracy up to the last moment before press time, identifies the type of business as well as giving pertinent facts about each member.

Other features include a detailed buyer's guide full of valuable information.

Mayday, who came from the midwest several years ago, has had wide experience in the creative sales and editing field.

He also put out a roster for the Santa Monica Chamber of Commerce last year. He edited the first volume of the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence Maritime Directory in 1958; and among other ventures edited Greenwood's Guide to Great Lakes Shipping in 1962. More than 500 pages long, this was a major compilation of lake shipping information.

In 1960, he edited a Great Lakes Seaway Log pamphlet. The new Long Beach Chamber Roster includes pictures of Chamber officials and messages from President Kenneth Wing; Harry Krusz, executive vice president; and Dorothy Mallin, president, Women's Division.

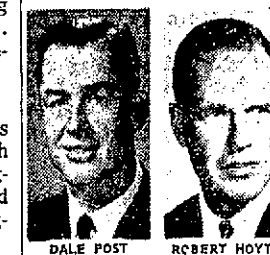

All voiced pride in the achievements of the Chamber and confidence in the future of Long Beach.

One of the problems in the building materials industry today is the imbalance of demand with capacity.

THIS LONG BEACH plant nearing completion—74th in National Gypsum's nationwide complex—will be the second of three to go up on the West Coast to provide better, faster service to the mushrooming construction industry.

One plant is in production now in Richmond, Calif. (on the East Bay) and another is planned for Tacoma, Wash.

WORLD OF WINGS

Six-Place Aircraft S-t-r-e-c-h-e-s Out

(Editor's Note: This is another first-hand impression article by Lee Craig, I, P-T aerospace editor, who has been test flying various light aircraft from the Long Beach Airport and writing his personal opinions.)

Piper's new Cherokee 6 is flying proof that Douglas and Boeing aren't the only companies that know how to s-t-r-e-c-h a fuselage.

This is no modified four-seater. Six normal-sized people can climb aboard without stuffing and there's even a 10-inch center aisle provided.

And, unlike some other six-placers—Cessna's Super Sky-master, for example—there's enough baggage room for all of them in two good-sized compartments.

THANKS MOSTLY to the front compartment, you almost need binoculars to see the propeller, but this is soon forgotten.

We flew N3204W from Aztec Aircraft Sales, Long Beach, with our former instructor, Fran Bera, and I, P-T chief photographer Roger Coar aboard.

Coar gave us plenty of occasions to thumb the Cherokee's dandy electric trim (optional, $120) by trying for size all four unoccupied seats and even the rear luggage compartment.

This is an option well worth the money, although Piper has finally seen the light and has replaced that d-x overhead crank with a trim wheel on the floor between the front seats.

THE CHEROKEE'S 260-horse Lycoming provides plenty of power. We climbed at well over 1,000 feet per minute and max-cruised at 160. The rudder pedals required muscle, both in flight and on the ground, however, and using them was more work than it should have been.

All in all, it's a good choice for anyone who needs all that room. And we were so happy about that missing overhead crank that we complained little about the old-fashioned manual flap handle, though it was a little startling in an $18,500-plus airplane when even Cessna's little 150's now have electric flaps.

Assessor Tells How Office Keeps Tab on Property Value Changes

(Editor's note: This is another of a series of articles by Philip E. Watson, Los Angeles County assessor, dealing with his policies and views on tax matters.)

By PHILIP WATSON

It's no secret that in Southern California, property has shown an above-the-national-average increase in value over the last 15 years.

People are willing to buy even unpromising California land because the history of California real estate has been "buy it, forget it and sell it for a profit." Everyone has heard stories of people who bought Wilshire Boulevard property for $50 an acre and sold it for $50 a square foot.

If all property increased uniformly in value, the assessor's job would be easy. All he would have to do is make periodic uniform assessment increases.

BUT VALUES do not change in such convenient patterns. One section of the country may grow dramatically after a period of relative stagnation. Others may show a steady rise related to the over-all growth pattern. Or an old commercial section may collapse with the coming of shiny, new shopping centers.

Consequently, our "update" appraisal program (which means reappraising to reflect market value changes from the outside, as distinguished from our "maintenance" appraisal program which reflects market value changes caused by something the owner did to increase the value of the individual property) must be set up in such a way as to pinpoint those places where the overall market value is changing.

PINPOINTING the changing patterns in market value is a complex task in a county of almost 2,000,000 parcels of property. If you are the assessor and are trying to do a proper job, you can't rely on gossip or hearsay for information on what this or that property is worth.

We have developed a scientific system for watching the ups and downs in the market place. The system is our "sales-ratio" study which enables us to review the entire county every year.

To understand how our sales-ratio study works it is necessary to explain some of the appraisal tools used in our department.

ONE BASIC TOOL is the map book. This is a geographic grouping of neighboring properties, showing dimensions of lots, tract numbers, street widths, zoning and other details related to the physical characteristics of each property. The entire county is divided into 2,850 such map books, each containing about 625 parcels of property.

For all work purposes in the assessor's office, properties are keyed to a map book, with an additional page and parcel designation.

If you look on your tax bill, near the top on the right hand side, you will find your property identified in this way. Every piece of property also has a legal description—tract, lot, etc.—and a street address if there is a building on the land. In order to find assessment or tax information of record as of Aug. 25, on any piece of property, it is necessary to have the map book, page and parcel description since this is the way property is recorded on the assessment roll. However, we can locate the map book, page and parcel description for any property if you give us the legal description or street address.)

ANOTHER BASIC tool in our appraisal system is the sales information forwarded to us from the county recorder's office. We receive a copy of every newly-recorded deed, with revenue stamps affixed which indicate the purchase price.

Severance Pay Ignored by Many U.S. Firms

Most American companies have no severance pay plan in effect to soften the blow for terminated employees, according to findings of a new survey by the Administrative Management Society.

"Of 196 companies responding, 122, or 62%, have no severance pay plan in operation," according to William T. Cavanaugh, executive director of AMS. The survey was conducted by the society's National Personnel Division, under the direction of Alice L. Fersch.

The companies polled covered a variety of fields. FOR PURPOSES of the survey, severance pay is defined as "any payment over and above wages and salary earned, which is given to an individual upon severance of employment or layoff according to a formal plan."

In most companies where severance pay is given, the survey reveals, the plan is geared to include all employees. But some companies apply the plan selectively according to exempt or non-exempt status, rank in the hierarchy, etc.

Of the 74 companies with severance pay plans in effect, 56 require a minimum length of service for eligibility. Thirteen give severance pay after only three months on the job, 14 after six months, 23 after one year, two after two years, five after five years.

Sixty-four of the 74 companies shell out only if the termination is permanent.

MANY COMPANIES base the severance allowance on the amount of vacation accrued over the employee's length of service, the survey shows. Others are guided by the employee's personnel and performance record.

Sixty-four of the 74 companies pay out the final jackpot in a lump sum; the rest pay on the installment plan. Forty-one companies affirm they would rehire

20% Increase

Directors of National Propane Corp. have announced a 20% increase in its regular quarterly cash dividend on its common stock from $.12½ to $.15 per share. The first payment under the new rate will be paid Sept. 15 to holders of record as of Aug. 25.

We then chart every sale in the county to establish the relationship between existing assessments and new selling prices, striking a ratio, mapbook by mapbook. As we see patterns develop where assessed values show up out of line with current market values, these properties are assigned to our appraisal staff for review.

The reappraisal assignments are made on a priority basis—those properties with assessments farthest away from the prevailing county-wide average of 25% of market value receiving our first attention.

WHEN A MAPBOOK is assigned for review, it does not necessarily mean that the assessments will be changed. The revenue stamps on the recorded deeds do not positively indicate the true sales prices. So the first thing our appraisers in the field must do is to verify the selling prices and terms of the sale with the buyer or seller or real estate broker who handled the transaction.

If the selling price proves accurate, it still does not mean that every assessment in the map book will necessarily be changed. Sometimes a mapbook will encompass property zoned for different uses—single family, duplex, commercial, multiple-dwelling, etc. If our review shows that only one or two of these kinds of property are moving away from current assessed values, these would be the only values changed.

SPEAKING OF zoning—the kind of use for which property is zoned directly affects its value, and a change in zoning generally is followed by a change in value.

It is our responsibility to appraise property at what is called its "highest and best use," and at the same time, to follow the market.

Therefore, if an area is zoned for a higher use than any property in the neighborhood is actually being used for, we would appraise it at the going price in this neighborhood. In an area which is converting from one type of use to another, with resulting increases in value, it is our responsibility to reflect this higher use in our assessments.

AS A RULE, the owner of a piece of property has a pretty solid idea of what the property is worth. However, we frequently hear the argument that since an owner has no intention of selling, his assessment shouldn't change until the property is transferred and he realizes a profit.

This argument completely misses the nature of the property tax system. This tax is a tax on current value, not on capital gains.

As I have said before, we don't place arbitrary values on property—we only record what the owners of property are doing in the open market. Our update appraisal program, since it is geared directly to market action as shown in our sales-ratio studies, is designed to bring all assessments in the county into line at 25% of market value and then to enable us to keep all assessments at that level.

Assessor Tells How Office Keeps Tab on Property Value Changes

(Editor's note: This is another of a series of articles by Philip E. Watson, Los Angeles County assessor, dealing with his policies and views on tax matters.)

By PHILIP WATSON
It's no secret that in Southern California, property has shown an above-the-national-average increase in value over the last 15 years.

People are willing to buy even unpromising California land because the history of California real estate has been "buy it, forget it and sell it for a profit." Everyone has heard stories of people who bought Wilshire Boulevard property for $50 an acre and sold it for $50 a square foot. If all property increased uniformly in value, the assessor's job would be easy. All he would have to do is make periodic uniform assessment increases.

BUT VALUES do not change in such convenient patterns. One section of the country may grow dramatically after a period of relative stagnation. Others may show a steady rise related to the over-all growth pattern. Or an old commercial section may collapse with the coming of shiny, new shopping centers.

Consequently, our "update" appraisal program (which means reappraising to reflect market value changes from the outside, as distinguished from our "maintenance" appraisal program which reflects market value changes caused by something the owner did to increase the value of the individual property) must be set up in such a way as to pinpoint those places where the overall market value is changing.

PINPOINTING the changing patterns in market value is a complex task in a county of almost 2,000,000 parcels of property. If you are the assessor and are trying to do a proper job, you can't rely on gossip or hearsay for information on what this or that property is worth. We have developed a scientific system for watching the ups and downs in the market place. The system is our "sales-ratio" study which enables us to review the entire county every year.

To understand how our sales-ratio study works it is necessary to explain some of the appraisal tools used in our department.

ONE BASIC TOOL is the map book. This is a geographic grouping of neighboring properties, showing dimensions of lots, tract numbers, street widths, zoning and other details related to the physical characteristics of each property. The entire county is divided into 2,850 such map books, each containing about 625 parcels of property. For all work purposes in the assessor's office, properties are keyed to a map book, with an additional page and parcel designation.

(If you look on your tax bill, near the top on the right hand side, you will find your property identified in this way. Every piece of property also has a legal description—tract, lot, etc.—and a street address if there is a building on the land. In order to find assessment or tax information

ANOTHER BASIC tool in our appraisal system is the sales information forwarded to us from the county recorder's office. We receive a copy of every newly-recorded deed, with revenue stamps affixed which indicate the purchase price.

Adobe Construction Staging Comeback in Home Building

ADOBE HOME 'FITS' INTO FALLBROOK AREA SCENERY

Adobe bricks, first used in the West by Indians and then by the padres who built the famed California missions, are coming back into the home construction field.

An entire community, Pala Mesa Village near Fallbrook, is being constructed of adobe bricks. The attractive homes arising in the development are attracting wide interest and may result in new trend in home construction throughout the Southland.

MADE OUT OF clay-like soil, general throughout the area, adobe is not a cheap material. In fact, Pala Mesa Properties, developers of the 300 homes, say the cost is 20 to 30% higher than conventional construction.

But, the builders say, it is worth the cost in durability and charm. George Schnur, project director at Pala Mesa Village, says modern adobe is the "driest masonry known to man and its insulating, fireproof and sound containing qualities are unmatched."

In early days, as most Californians have been taught, the adobe huts were built by making bricks of adobe clay, straw and water. And they endured for hundreds of years.

THE MODERN fabrication calls for mixing the right type of soil with a specially-formulated oil emulsion. The mixture is poured into wooden forms for a few minutes and then carefully removed.

The hand-crafted adobe bricks then must "weather" for about 30 days in the sun to become hard, waterproof and durable.

Those modern adobe bricks are odorless and rodent free, due to agents used which discourage all insects, including termites.

The subdued earth color of the bricks fits perfectly with contemporary Spanish architecture, resulting in a community with rustic charm reminiscent of early California. Of course the homes have every modern convenience, inside.

In addition to the beauty, adobe is distinguished for being almost totally maintenance-free. The builders also point out how adobe structures withstand earthquakes in Tehachapi and Bakersfield in recent years when conventionally constructed buildings were severely damaged.

Estates in Hawaii Available

With the completion of the final sale of Unit 1 at Nanawale Estates, Hawaii, Unit 2 has now been opened.

Nanawale Estates, on the big island of Hawaii, offer financial investment growth values, or make an ideal vacation retreat or year-round residential area. It is not necessary to build on your lot, the spokesman said, although a number of vacation homes are already built and many permanent residences are anticipated, with others building income units or homes that may be rented. Hawaii is enjoying an escalated economic growth and industrialists have predicted a decade of fabulous development throughout the beautiful Hawaiian Islands. A new inter-continental jet airport is due to open this year, and will host an increasing amount of visiting traffic direct from the mainland. To accommodate this growth, new industries, hotels and recreation areas are multiplying.

Nanawale Estates provides an opportunity to own land there on small down payments with low monthly payments.

Further information may be obtained from Nanawale Estates, 230 East 17th St., Costa Mesa, Calif.

constructed buildings were severely damaged.

TO MAKE the homes in Pala Mesa Village even more attractive, garden walls of adobe, some as much as seven feet high, given elegance to the community.

While Carmel and Santa Barbara have used considerable adobe in building in recent years, Pala Mesa Village is the first complete community in the Southland to use only adobe construction.

The community is located at the junction of U.S. Hwy. 395 and State Route 76 near Fallbrook.

Borrowing ancient idea from Indians, workers are shown making adobe bricks to be used in construction of a 300-home community near Fallbrook. A modern bonding material is used in clay mixture to make bricks waterproof and insect repellent.

Adobe Construction Staging Comeback in Home Building

ADOBE HOME 'FITS' INTO FALLBROOK AREA SCENERY

Adobe bricks, first used in the West by Indians and then by the padres who built the famed California missions, are coming back into the home construction field.

An entire community, Pala Mesa Village near Fallbrook, is being constructed of adobe bricks. The attractive homes arising in the development are attracting wide interest and may result in new trend in home construction throughout the Southland.

MADE OUT OF clay-like soil, general throughout the area, adobe is not a cheap material. In fact, Pala Mesa Properties, developers of the 300 homes, say the cost is 20 to 30% higher than conventional construction.

But, the builders say, it is worth the cost in durability and charm. George Schnur, project director at Pala Mesa Village, says modern adobe is the "driest masonry known to man and its insulating, fireproof and sound containing qualities are unmatched."

In early days, as most Californians have been taught, the adobe huts were built by making bricks of adobe clay, straw and water. And they endured for hundreds of years.

THE MODERN fabrication calls for mixing the right type of soil with a specially-formulated oil emulsion. The mixture is poured into wooden forms for a few minutes and then carefully removed.

The hand-crafted adobe bricks then must "weather" for about 30 days in the sun to become hard, waterproof and durable.

Those modern adobe bricks are odorless and rodent free, due to agents used which discourage all insects, including termites.

The subdued earth color of the bricks fits perfectly with contemporary Spanish architecture, resulting in a community with rustic charm reminiscent of early California. Of course the homes have every modern convenience, inside.

In addition to the beauty, adobe is distinguished for being almost totally maintenance-free. The builders also point out how adobe structures withstood earthquakes in Tehachapi and Bakersfield in recent years when conventionally con-

Estates in Hawaii Available

With the completion of the final sale of Unit 1 at Nanawale Estates, Hawaii, Unit 2 has now been opened.

Nanawale Estates, on the big island of Hawaii, offer financial investment growth values, or make an ideal vacation retreat or year-round residential area. It is not necessary to build on your lot, the spokesman said, although a number of vacation homes are already built and many permanent residences are anticipated, with others building income units or homes that may be rented.

Hawaii is enjoying an escalated economic growth and industrialists have predicted a decade of fabulous development throughout the beautiful Hawaiian Islands. A new inter-continental jet airport is due to open this year, and will host an increasing amount of visiting traffic direct from the mainland. To accommodate this growth, new industries, hotels and recreation areas are multiplying.

Nanawale Estates provides an opportunity to own land there on small down payments with low monthly payments.

structed buildings were severely damaged.

TO MAKE the homes in Pala Mesa Village even more attractive, garden walls of adobe, some as much as seven feet high, given elegance to the community.

While Carmel and Santa Barbara have used considerable adobe in building in recent years, Pala Mesa Village is the first complete community in the Southland to use only adobe construction.

The community is located at the junction of U.S. Hwy. 395 and State Route 76 near Fallbrook.

Developer to Finance Bluff Park

Developer George M. Holstein & Sons will finance plans for a 14-acre community park in Newport Beach's Eastbluff area, according to a unanimous vote of the city's council last week.

To be located near the entry of the Bluffs development near Eastbluff Road and Vista Del Oro on the Irvine Ranch's Eastbluff, the park will include baseball park, unique terraced "lawn seats," parking, walking trails, and tot play areas, along with lawns and wide use of native trees.

THE LAND for "Eastbluff Park" was donated to the city by the Irvine Company. The Holstein organization will finance the construction with the city reimbursing the developer over a five-year period from the city's new construction excise tax.

The Costa Mesa home-building firm planned the park along with the Newport Beach City and Park's head, Cal Stewart, and Mrs. Doreen Marshall of the council's park study committee.

New Title Firm Picks Location

The company is being formed following a year of research and development sponsored by Roy Rogers and Roger Cunningham. Stockholders will include numerous real estate brokers and escrow companies in Los Angeles County, it was said.

Somerset Place in Garden Grove offers town houses such as these, starting at $16,990. They are close to shopping, churches and Disneyland.

Town houses, with land somewhat similar to the fashionable Manhattan concept, one day will be one of Southern California's most popular modes of living, says Jack Scougall, vice-president of marketing for Kaufman and Broad Homes Inc.

TILT AND HOLD ON TIGHT! IT'S FUN, FUN, FUN TO GIVE . . .
Mrs. Robert Westmyer and Mrs. George Wilk thrill to chance of donating to Cancer Society—for them it's something to shout about.

Ride high, tilt, spin— for charity

It'll be a happy, crazy, topsy-turvy day—one of squeals and shrieks; balloons and kewpie dolls; cotton candy and pulled taffy; rides, games, prizes.

That's the kind of day Saturday will be on the Nu-Pike—an every-day kind of summer day of fun and carnival excitement.

But there'll be one difference!

On this day, 25% of the Pike's profits will go to charity. Noon to 6 p. m. has been designated "Family Fun Day"—the American Cancer Society's second annual Nu-Pike benefit.

The Nu-Pike had its beginnings here 61 years ago. That was the year Col. Charles R. Drake opened his famous bathhouse and amusement park. It's reported that "tens of thousands" of visitors flooded Long Beach for the event—and that thousands, unable to find lodgings, were forced to sleep on the beach.

Today it is estimated that more than 2,000,000 fun seekers invade the eight-block amusement area every year.

Once called "The Walk of a Thousand Lights" the Nu-Pike has all the glitter of a carnival, a circus, a midway.

There's the roller coaster, the carousel. There are two game booths, the fortune tellers studios—not to mention restaurants and refreshment booths. All told there's every type of amusement for every age—from junior to grandmother.

And this coming Saturday—everything will fly into action. It'll be a great day.

For the kids, it'll be an afternoon of Nu-Pike thrills with no hike in prices. For Mom and Dad it'll be an inexpensive, fun way to give to charity.

For the Society and the thousands it helps, it'll mean funds for research, treatment centers and hospital care for cancer victims.

So, head to the Nu-Pike. Take a ride, spin, twirl and bounce—and hold on tight. Don't let go this chance to have fun for a cause.

of compositions for computers

Dr. Gerald Strang writes compositions—music on graph paper for instruments he has invented — Polly, Andor, Gabor and Adolph.

Named for his friends, the instruments can duplicate each others' tones or sing with their own voices. They can simulate a full symphony orchestra or produce sounds never before heard.

When the latter happens, Strang cheerfully admits, people sometimes throw up their hands in rejection.

Others listen spellbound.

"There's only one reaction I never get—indifference," he grins.

Strang has named his works "compositions" because he composes for computers.

The "instruments" are instructions stored in the intricacies of the computer — the versatile computer used for Telstar or to figure payrolls.

He writes his music on graph paper, but explains that many systems can be used as long as they can be converted to numbers.

THE NUMBERS are transferred to data sheets and put into the computer. The output is converted electronically directly into sound on tape — the Pollys, Andors, Gabors and Adolphs having performed and recorded without being heard. The composition is first heard when the tape is played.

Strang is newly-appointed chairman of the department of music at Long Beach State College. He taught at Long Beach City College from 1938 to 1954, then headed the music department there from '54 to '58 when he went to San Fernando Valley State College as chairman of the music department.

During the summer of 1963 he was consultant in the Psyche-Acoustics Section of Bell Telephone Laboratories in Murray Hill, N.J.

Two of his compositions were done at Bell labs, using their IBM 7090 and digital-to-analog converter.

This past year, on sabbatical, he researched a computer program for musical composition and sound synthesis in a similar program at UCLA.

"Performers usually are skeptical about the whole thing," he notices. "They're afraid this might eliminate the need of performers and interpretation."

"YOUNG PEOPLE and the uninitiated in music usually like it. When I gave a demonstration and lecture last year at LBSC, one teen-ager wanted to know where he could buy Composition No. 3 for the juke box at his high school canteen."

The composer can delegate to the computer any part or none of the composing process. He can tell the computer precisely what to do or tell it to make decisions within certain limits.

At the top of Strang's graph score, a line represents time and at the bottom another line determines loudness. The jagged graph line between is pitch.

With these, the composer can specify speed, tone color, loudness, the attack and decay pattern of individual notes. All kinds of sound can be stored in the computer's memory.

"It would be possible to reproduce Beethoven's Fifth as played by a full symphony orchestra," Strang says, "but why bother? It's already been done in conventional ways."

THE PROFESSOR often is asked why he composes for computers.

"Because it's possible," he answers. "Some of us feel that because it can be done it should be done. We're not concerned with looking back."

"What's ahead? Where does this lead? That's the interesting part. We can see only a little way in the fog. We ask where we can go, what we can do, what influence will this have?"

"We say, 'Let's see what's beyond!'"

Strang frequently is asked a second question: "Is it music?"

Sound of music?

Score in hand, Dr. Gerald Strang listens to tape playback of his "Composition No. 3," which he describes as a satire on electronic music. Among instruments he has devised to play his work are Andor, Gabor and Adolph—named for musicians in the Alma Trio of Los Angeles.

Some vacations end, others begin

HERE I go again, vacation all over—paul! Didn't get as far as Hawaii, like last year, but managed to make it to Catalina, where we were at home on our own new boat. Let me revise that to "newish" boat.

Lots of loafing, reading and playing, too, with such other "islanders" of the moment as Lee and Shirley Caldwell, Gwen and Bill Dawkins, Dollie and Luke Corzine, Hal and Pat Horrocks, Bud and Betty Dansby, Dr. Gareld and Udel Green plus dozens of others—especially on carefree weekends.

For the most part we stayed at the Isthmus, however we did have a few days in the city—meaning, we went to Avalon!

ALL THE glamor of International Beauty Congress hasn't been where the girls were. Stan and Geneva Weiss provided a lot of beauty of the party type for pageant and city officials and close friends Wednesday. Special guests bidden to the sumptuous, poolside cocktail and buffet were the sculptors here for the international sculptors' symposium at Long Beach State.

Among the 60 or so present were such members of the judges' committee as Robinson and Mollie Reid, Joe and Frieda Bishop, George and Betsy Taubman, Al and Marge Davis, Rosemary and Bob Westmyer, John and "B" Hancock, Bud and Marge Young. Also, Supervisor Burton and Polly Chace, Mayor Ed and Mary Wade, the John Mansells and a number of those here from other lands in connection with IBC.

'Supervised' play

SPEAKING OF Burton and Polly Chace (their name popped up a minute ago), they said "the treat's on us" to daughters and sons-in-law Coni and Ray Townsend and Paula and Ralph Irwin, as well as to Coni and Ray's sons, Steve and Bill, and the Irwins' son, "Skippy," and took them all for a luxuriously long last weekend to Allisal.

They rode horseback, swam, golfed, lazed. "Great place for families," says Polly, a favorite of theirs for many years.

GONE Polynesian—Joe and Nell Read. The two flew off Friday for Hawaii to celebrate their 32nd wedding anniversary during a three-week holiday. While gone, Fred and Mildred Wheeler, now of Arcadia but formerly from LB, are occupying the Reads' home for a seaside vacation. Be nice to 'em, weather!

A CAUSE to celebrate, triple! Evelyn and Lyman Berg took daughter and son-in-law, Cheryl and Dennis Niles to Las Vegas Friday. Whee was to note Cheryl's 21st birthday (it was Tuesday); Dennis' 23rd birthday (it was Wednesday) and the kids' second wedding anniversary (it was Friday). They flew over; will return today.

Poolside was best side

COOL entertaining during this hot weather week was accomplished by Jayne (Mrs. Jesse) Shackleton when she was hostess for a poolside and patio luncheon for Las Hermanas members. Jayne is liaison for Assistance League to LH, auxiliary to the league. Assisting her serve were Arlene Johnson, Marilyn Thurmond, Linda Artman and Elsie Hansen.

CHAMPAGNE bubbled and so did honoree Karen Hokanson, Anaheim, when she was center of attention at a pink-and-white themed bridal shower given for her by Rosemary (Mrs. Bill) Dodds and daughter, Monica. Karen will become the bride of Dennis Sechrest, Marle and Earl's son, next Saturday.

ALREADY talking about going back to Hawaii is Mae Ramsey—who just returned! She flew over with a cousin from Canada and they did the islands like the trade winds. Meaning almost in constant, amiable motion.

Tagging out for Tahoe

THIS SEEMS to be the year of Lake Tahoe for Community Hospital auxiliary members and their husbands. While there Richard and Peggie Widetick had a gay surprise when they unexpectedly bumped into Oliver and Mary Butcher. A foursome for fun was formed on the spot.

Earlier, Pete and Lee Clark had been up there and now Charlie and Clare Mutter, who have been chomping at the bit to tag out for Tahoe (all those glowing reports), have done so. Understand they left Friday.

LIVING it up south of the border very shortly will be Noel and Lana Caldeira, ole! They leave next Saturday for Mexico City, Taxco, Acapulco, Cuernavaca, other spots, to be gone until Sept. 9. They're leaving their three sons at home in care of family.

THEY FLOATED across the Atlantic in high seas style . . . The Dr. Robert Ronnes and their three children, Robert, Greg and Richard. After landing at LeHavre, they planned to tour Europe and Egypt before returning home next month.

DESERTING the inland of Virginia Country Club for the "cooth" of Alamitos Bay on hot Wednesday, Judy Ellik and Pat Webb were co-hostesses at a luncheon for about 16 VCC lady golfers, in or outgoing board members of the 18-hole players. Cocktail luncheon at Long Beach Yacht Club also was in honor of Joan Bescos who left Friday for Germany to visit son, Barry, stationed with the Army in Frankfurt. Joan will be gone a month; flies both ways.

New kind of life soon

WHAT A rare mood of exulting excitement William and Jan Dodson must be in. With their two children (ages 10 and 4) they're laying the groundwork to leave this fall for Beirut, Lebanon, to live for a few years.

Bill, a management consultant man, has been spending so much time over there in line of work, they decided his being there and the family here was for the birds.

The children are towheads and the Lebanese love blonds, so Jan expects her kids will be mighty spoiled when they come home. Methinks mom and pop may be, too, from what I've heard of Beirut. A gateway city leading to fascinating places and attracting fascinating people, the Mediterranean offers lots of boating and water sports and nearby mountains are handy for a change of scene.

COFFEE DATE will be kept by a gang of neighborhood women on Orlena and Monrovia Avenues in Alamitos Heights at 10 this aye. Laura Jane Walter is entertaining to welcome new neighbor, Jackie (Mrs. Joseph) Blanche. Get-acquainted affair will take place wherever it's coolest—patio or indoors.

Parents of the young couple, all Long Beach residents, are Mr. and Mrs. Don E. Gerken, 122 E. Neece St.; Mrs. Belva Luke, 1016 E. 66th Way, and Don Luke.

A sheath gown of Chantilly lace with overskirt of bouquet taffeta falling into a bouffant chapel train was chosen by the bride. A cluster of lace petals edged in pearls held her veil.

Included in the entourage were Meg Theander, maid of honor; Randy West, best man; Peggy Jones, Cynthia Solomon, Mrs. Gary Gerken, Mrs. Ray Lires, Monica and Corinne Miller, bridesmaids; Bob Luke, Danny Lewis, Gary Gerken, Dick Simpson, Bill DeGrande and Larry Miller, ushers.

The newlyweds were feted at a reception in the church hall prior to departing on a honeymoon trip to the Sierras. They will be at home in Long Beach after Sept. 1.

Both were graduated from Jordan High School. The bride also was graduated from Long Beach City College where she affiliated with TNT. Her husband attended LBCC.

Hosts and hostesses will be Mr. and Mrs. Terry Holland, son-in-law and daughter of the honorees, and Susan and Byron Gabrielson.

Allen-Lindgren vows said

In a ceremony of solemn dignity, Karen Suzanne Lindgren and Ralph Kenneth Allen Jr. recited wedding vows at 4 p.m. Saturday in St. Luke's Episcopal Church.

She is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Raymond E. Lindgren, 6320 Colorado St.; he is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Ralph K. Allen, 6441 El Cedral.

For the marriage rite, the bride chose a graceful, floor-length gown of white embroidered silk organza. Its sheath skirt terminated in a bouffant chapel train. A seed pearl princess crown, worn by her mother at her wedding 25 years ago, held the bride's veil of illusion.

THE BRIDE'S sister, Diane Lindgren, was maid of honor and bridesmaids were Michelle Anderson and Sheryl Anne Palmer. Best man was John Leininger and ushering the 250 guests to their places were Edward Allen, brother of the bridegroom, John Lindgren, brother of the bride, Lawrence Bolland and Daniel Carman.

The new Mrs. Allen attended Occidental College and is a graduate of Long Beach State College. Her sorority affiliation is Gamma Phi Beta and she is a member of Student Nurses' Association of California. The bridegroom, a graduate of Millikan High, attended Oregon State University and subsequently graduated from Long Beach State. He is a member of Pi Kappa Alpha, Circle K and Gamma Theta Upsilon, geography fraternity.

Following a reception in the church, the newlyweds left for a honeymoon trip to Colorado. Upon return, they will reside in Northridge.

Allen-Lindgren vows said

In a ceremony of solemn dignity, Karen Suzanne Lindgren and Ralph Kenneth Allen Jr. recited wedding vows at 4 p.m. Saturday in St. Luke's Episcopal Church.

She is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Raymond E. Lindgren, 6320 Colorado St.; he is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Ralph K. Allen, 6441 El Cedral.

For the marriage rite, the bride chose a graceful, floor-length gown of white embroidered silk organza. Its sheath skirt terminated in a bouffant chapel train. A seed pearl princess crown, worn by her mother at her wedding 25 years ago, held the bride's veil of illusion.

THE BRIDE'S sister, Diane Lindgren, was maid of honor and bridesmaids were Michelle Anderson and Sheryl Anne Palmer. Best man was John Leininger and ushering the 250 guests to their places were Edward Allen, brother of the bridegroom, John Lindgren, brother of the bride, Lawrence Boland and Daniel Carman.

The new Mrs. Allen attended Occidental College and is a graduate of Long Beach State College. Her sorority affiliation is Gamma Phi Beta and she is a member of Student Nurses' Association of California. The bridegroom, a graduate of Millikan High, attended Oregon State University and subsequently graduated from Long Beach State. He is a member of Pi Kappa Alpha, Circle K and Gamma Theta Upsilon, geography fraternity.

Following a reception in the church, the newlyweds left for a honeymoon trip to Colorado. Upon return, they will reside in Northridge.

MRS. RALPH K. ALLEN JR.

Soovajian celebration is slated for today

Mr. and Mrs. Khoren Soovajian will be honored by their children today with a celebration to mark their golden wedding anniversary in the garden of their home, 207 Quincy Ave.

The Soovajians, natives of Armenia, were married Aug. 15, 1915, in Alexandria, Egypt. They came to the United States in 1916, first settling in Boston, Mass., and later moving to Los Angeles. They have been residents of Long Beach since 1940.

The honorees have three children, Mrs. O. D. Johnson, John Soovajian and Leon Soovajian, all of Long Beach, and four grandchildren.

Composer seeks new dimensions of music

"Who knows whether it's music or some other form of sound manipulation?" he replies.

The composer took his A.B. at Stanford, majoring in philosophy and minoring in foreign language, and earned his Ph.D. at USC, majoring in music composition and minoring in philosophy.

HE HAS been consultant in building acoustics, including design work for LBCC music building and auditorium, and music buildings at San Fernando Valley State College and California State College at Hayward. Other clients have included UC at Berkeley, Wesleyan University and Malcaster College.

He has a long list of conventionally composed works to his credit, among them symphonies, and has written, edited and published extensively.

STRANG DEFINES music as "aesthetically organized sound."

"I wouldn't rule out any kind of sound as a medium any more than a modern artist would rule out any material. There's a great parallel between contemporary art and composition. As a matter of fact, you can pattern visual art on the same computer that you compose on."

Will the computer ever replace the composer?

"No! You must have the factor of imagination. It takes a creative human being to create any art—this is just another tool."

All's shipshape for golden anniversary

It seems only fitting that when Mr. and Mrs. James Phillips observe their golden wedding anniversary Saturday they go down to the sea in ships.

Their ship in this case will be the Reuben E. Lee ship restaurant in Newport Beach, with their children honoring their parents at dinner.

The sea has always played a part in the Phillips' lives. Married Aug. 21, 1915 in South Wales, Great Britain, the couple crossed the ocean in 1947 to live in California. They lived in Long Beach for 17 years, and two years ago moved to Garden Grove. Both are United States citizens.

DURING THE past 19 years they have made three return trips to Wales, once on the Queen Elizabeth and twice by jet.

Their children, all Southern Californians, are Mrs. Clyde Jenkins, Paramount; Mrs. Ruby Jones, Santa Monica; Mrs. Wallace Carr, Garden Grove; Lawford Phillips, Garden Grove and Roy Phillips, Westminster.

While emphasis will be centered on the golden wedding pair, the Wallace Carrs will also come in for their share of congratulations, for they will be celebrating their 17th wedding anniversary the same day.

MR. AND MRS. JAMES PHILLIPS

MR. AND MRS. PHILIP C. VILANDER

Reception today will honor Philip Vilanders

Celebrating their golden wedding anniversary today at Houghton Park Clubhouse with a reception, 1 to 3:30 p.m., will be Mr. and Mrs. Philip C. Vilander, 5704 Cerritos Ave.

Residents of Long Beach since 1926, the goldenweds both are graduates of Kansas State University. Mrs. Vilander taught high school domestic science and art in Kansas until her marriage. Mr. Vilander was principal of a high school in Peabody, Kan., then was superintendent of schools here until they moved to Deaver, Wyo., in 1917, where he served as cost accountant with the U.S. Bureau of Reclamation.

MR. VILANDER was employed by an oil company when the couple first moved to Long Beach, was cost accountant in the field during building of the Colorado Aqueduct and during World War II did cost analysis work with both the Army and Navy. At conclusion of the war, he entered the real estate business and other endeavors.

Mrs. Vilander, a member of the University Women's Club, is past president of the North Long Beach Women's Club. Her husband is a past master of the Tri Mountain View Masonic Lodge in Deaver and has been awarded his 50-year membership pin. He also is a member of the Al Malaikah Shrine, Los Angeles, Long Beach Apartment House Association and Long Beach Board of Realtors.

Both are members of North Long Beach Community Presbyterian Church. They have one son, Everett, who resides in New York City, and one granddaughter.

Panel to tell Pilot Club of aid to youth program

Following a patio buffet supper Wednesday at 7:15 p.m. in the home of Dr. and Mrs. Mark Miner, 5960 Wentworth Ave., Pilot Club members of Long Beach will settle themselves comfortably to listen to a panel discussion on "The Long Beach Youth Project."

The project, a free volunteer service, is a cooperative effort of the Board of Education and a local volunteer committee of prominent women citizens, headed by Mrs. John P. Davis, wife of the former Harbor Commission member and herself a former elementary school principal.

SHE WILL share comments and explanations about the project with Mrs. James A. Edmonds Jr. and Mrs. Charles F. Reed.

Objective of the project is to reduce school dropouts and thus to reduce juvenile delinquency through assisting young people with various problems such as hearing, dental and visual difficulties, clothing, reading ability, unsatisfactory home conditions.

Soovajian celebration is slated for today

Mr. and Mrs. Khoren Soovajian will be honored by their children today with a celebration to mark their golden wedding anniversary in the garden of their home, 207 Quincy Ave.

The Soovajians, natives of Armenia, were married Aug. 15, 1915, in Alexandria, Egypt. They came to the

Composer seeks new dimensions of music

"Who knows whether it's music or some other form of sound manipulation?" he replies.

The composer took his A.B. at Stanford, majoring in philosophy and minoring in foreign language, and earned his Ph.D. at USC, majoring in music composition and minoring in philosophy.

HE HAS been consultant in building acoustics, including design work for LBCC music building and auditorium, and music buildings at San Fernando Valley State College and California State College at Hayward. Other clients have included UC at Berkeley, Wesleyan University and Macalester College.

He has a long list of conventionally composed works to his credit, among them symphonies, and has written, edited and published extensively.

STRANG DEFINES music as "aesthetically organized sound."

"I wouldn't rule out any kind of sound as a medium any more than a modern artist would rule out any material. There's a great parallel between contemporary art and composition.

"As a matter of fact, you can pattern visual art on the same computer that you compose on."

Will the computer ever replace the composer?

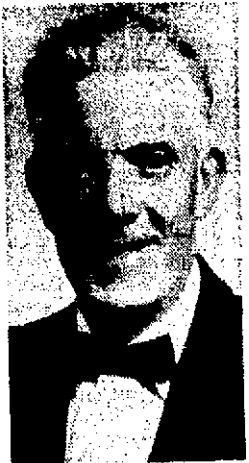

"No! You must have the factor of imagination. It takes a creative human being to create any art—this is just another tool."

All's shipshape for golden anniversary

It seems only fitting that when Mr. and Mrs. James Phillips observe their golden wedding anniversary Saturday they go down to the sea in ships.

Their ship in this case will be the Reuben E. Lee ship restaurant in Newport Beach, with their children honoring their parents at dinner.

The sea has always played a part in the Phillips' lives. Married Aug. 21, 1915 in South Wales, Great Britain, the couple crossed the ocean in 1947 to live in California. They lived in Long Beach for 17 years, and two years ago moved to Garden Grove. Both are United States citizens.

DURING THE past 19 years they have made three return trips to Wales, once on the Queen Elizabeth and twice by jet.

Their children, all Southern Californians, are Mrs. Clyde Jenkins, Paramount; Mrs. Ruby Jones, Santa Monica; Mrs. Wallace Carr, Garden Grove; Lawford Phillips, Garden Grove and Roy Phillips, Westminster.

While emphasis will be centered on the golden wedding pair, the Wallace Carrs will also come in for their share of congratulations, for they will be celebrating their 17th wedding anniversary the same day.

Osapana visits
Camp Suanga:

And, honest injun, how he wows them!

Summer is a happy time for children . . . swimming, bicycling, vacations to faraway places with the family, or long lazy days of play with neighborhood youngsters.

But for more than 1,300 young girls, summer has a special meaning . . . time for the Camp Fire Girls' day camp at Suanga.

After spending the school year in the city, Suanga offers a retreat for the small fry with its beautiful trees, grassy slopes and "woody" surroundings.

Indian lore is the theme for day camp kids, highlighted each Tuesday with the arrival of Powhatan Indian Osapana. With totem poles and Indian teepees in the background, campers gather on the slopes which form Suanga's natural amphitheater.

In native tribal dress, Osapana captivates his audience with legends and dances.

WHEN HE says "good-bye," day campers return to their routine duties . . . housekeeping under a shady tree, chopping wood, carrying water, cooking over an open fire.

The menu of these young homemakers is by no means limited to hot dogs. Stew and dumplings is a favorite, and dessert could be cake or pie baked in a reflector oven . . . maybe even ice cream made by turning the crank of the old-fashioned freezer.

When household duties are completed, each group is free to participate in nature studies, Indian crafts, hikes, songs and games.

Campers can be found at Suanga in three age groups: Blue Birds (the youngest), who learn simple camping skills; Camp Fire Girls who are earning honors in Outdoors Craft or completing requirements of Fagot Finder and Trail Makers and Junior Hi Camp Fire Girls who have completed earlier requirements, and are in line to earn Gypsy awards by taking part in a special three-day trip to Cleveland National Forest Aug. 11-13.

Mrs. Robert Hayden, day camp director, is assisted by volunteer mothers from each group who are trained as counselors. Members of Horizon Club, of high school level, are also on hand to guide their younger Camp Fire sisters.

FLAG-RAISING ceremonies begin at 9:30 a. m. Monday through Wednesday during the one-week sessions—departure for home is at 3:30 p. m.

Thursday is the big day (or night!). Girls arrive in mid-afternoon to cook their evening meal, participate in skits, sleep under the stars, and return home after Friday morning breakfast.

Each week, day camp offers adventure and fun for these youngsters . . . although ending on a note of sadness. Camp Suanga's lodge and beautiful large trees will soon be lost to our growing network of freeways.

Ancient Chinese Art, Chann Works at Otis

By VIRGINIA LADDEY

One of the most exquisite and interesting exhibits I have ever seen is at the Otis Art Institute of Los Angeles County where it will remain until Aug. 29. The cool, spacious gallery at 2401 Wilshire Blvd. (just west of MacArthur Park) is open Tuesday through Sunday, from 12:30 to 5:30 p.m.

"Ancient Arts of China and the Modern Paintings of George Chann" is the title of the show which begins with objects from the Shang Dynasty (1766-1122 BC) and continues through the Manchu. These are in cases while the walls are hung with 54 watercolors and 46 oils by George Chann. The California-born and trained artist studied and worked in China. The blending of his paintings with the ancient works is magnificent.

CHANN is evidently schooled in the classic manner of Chinese ink-brush painting and projects the mysteries of mountains, water, atmosphere, and the meager marks of man on them. In other instances, he leans toward the calligraphic which results in the abstract, highly colorful and infinitely complex. In these, he seems to relate to Mark Tobey; in his rendering of birds, the feeling is close to that of Morris Graves. It is significant that both these North-western American artists were strongly influenced by the Orient.

REAMS of pages would be required to describe the treasures from China, the beautiful carved jades, the prehistoric clay figures, the elegant glazed porcelains. There must be a hundred of these. Most striking are a flat, round, carved cinnabar box, two feet across, and two royal scepters. One is of ebony, inlaid with silver in fine characters with large discs of white jade emblazoned with jade, coral, and lapis lazuli. The other is of rose quartz, carnelian and jade in gilt bronze.

Wayne Long, director of the Otis Gallery, is a master in assembling exhibits of great beauty and significance from local collections. This one is no exception and is recommended most highly.

'Can-Can' next in Anaheim

Edie Adams and Chita Rivera star in Cole Porter's "Can-Can," which opens Tuesday at Melodyland Theater, Anaheim. "Camelot," starring Howard Keel, closes today.

Edie starred in "Wonderful Town," and "Li'l Abner" on Broadway, has appeared in half-a-dozen films and has done much television work.

Chita won fame with her role in "Bye Bye Birdie," and followed with "West Side Story," "Mr. Wonderful," and "Bajo," all on the New York musical stage.

Russell Arms, known for his years in television's "Hit Parade," is featured. "Can-Can" will run through Aug. 29.

In native tribal dress, Osapana captivates his audience with legends and dances.

WHEN HE says "good-bye," day campers return to their routine duties . . . housekeeping under a shady tree, chopping wood, carrying water, cooking over an open fire.

The menu of these young homemakers is by no means limited to hot dogs. Stew and dumplings is a favorite, and dessert could be cake or pie baked in a reflector oven . . . maybe even ice cream made by turning the crank of the old-fashioned freezer.

When household duties are completed, each group is free to participate in nature studies, Indian crafts, hikes, songs and games.

Campers can be found at Suanga in three age groups: Blue Birds (the youngest), who learn simple camping skills; Camp Fire Girls who are earning honors in Outdoors Craft or completing requirements of Fagot Finder and Trail Makers and Junior Hi Camp Fire Girls who have completed earlier requirements, and are in line to earn Gypsy awards by taking part in a special three-day trip to Cleveland National Forest Aug. 11-13.

Mrs. Robert Hayden, day camp director, is assisted by volunteer mothers from each group who are trained as counselors. Members of Horizon Club, of high school level, are also on hand to guide their younger Camp Fire sisters.

FLAG-RAISING ceremonies begin at 9:30 a. m. Monday through Wednesday during the one-week sessions—departure for home is at 3:30 p. m.

Thursday is the big day (or night!). Girls arrive in mid-afternoon to cook their evening meal, participate in skits, sleep under the stars, and return home after Friday morning breakfast.

Each week, day camp offers adventure and fun for these youngsters . . . although ending on a note of sadness. Camp Suanga's lodge and beautiful large trees will soon be lost to our growing network of freeways.

Ancient Chinese Art, Chann Works at Otis

By VIRGINIA LADDEY

One of the most exquisite and interesting exhibits I have ever seen is at the Otis Art Institute of Los Angeles County where it will remain until Aug. 29. The cool, spacious gallery at 2401 Wilshire Blvd. (just west of MacArthur Park) is open Tuesday through Sunday, from 12:30 to 5:30 p.m.

"Ancient Arts of China and the Modern Paintings of George Chann" is the title of the show which begins with objects from the Shang Dynasty (1766-1122 BC) and continues through the Manchu. These are in cases while the walls are hung with 54 watercolors and 46 oils by George Chann. The California-born and trained artist studied and worked in China. The blending of his paintings with the ancient works is magnificent.

CHANN is evidently schooled in the classic manner of Chinese ink-brush painting and projects the mysteries of mountains, water, atmosphere, and the meager marks of man on them. In other instances, he leans toward the calligraphic which results in the abstract, highly colorful and infinitely complex. In these, he seems to relate to Mark Tobey; in his rendering of birds, the feeling is close to that of Morris Graves. It is significant that both these North-western American artists were strongly influenced by the Orient.

REAMS of pages would be required to describe the treasures from China, the beautiful carved jades, the prehistoric clay figures, the elegant glazed porcelains. There must be a hundred of these. Most striking are a flat, round, carved cinnabar box, two feet across, and two royal scepters. One is of ebony, inlaid with silver in fine characters with large discs of white jade emblazoned with jade, coral, and lapis lazuli. The other is of rose quartz, carnelian and jade in gilt bronze.

Wayne Long, director of the Otis Gallery, is a master in assembling exhibits of great beauty and significance from local collections. This one is no exception and is recommended most highly.

'Can-Can' next in Anaheim

Edie Adams and Chita Rivera star in Cole Porter's "Can-Can," which opens Tuesday at Melodyland Theater, Anaheim. "Camelot," starring Howard Keel, closes today.

Edie starred in "Wonderful Town," and "Li'l Abner" on Broadway, has appeared in half-a-dozen films and has done much television work.

Chita won fame with her role in "Bye Bye Birdie," and followed with "West Side Story," "Mr. Wonderful," and "Bajo," all on the New York musical stage.

Russell Arms, known for his years in television's "Hit Parade," is featured. "Can-Can" will run through Aug. 29.

Sandy Kolak is ready to wed but can't decide between her very proper fiance, Harold Saxton (left), and an impetuous plumber, Boyce Gitzon. Scene is from "Invitation to a March," which will play tonight, Thursday, Friday, Saturday and next Sunday at 8:30 p. m. at Ports of Call Theater, San Pedro.

Roger Wagner joins UCI's fine arts staff

Roger Wagner, founder and director of the Roger Wagner Chorale, will join the fine arts staff at the University of California, Irvine, as director of the University Chorus.

He has conducted throughout the world, appearing in major European cities. This winter, in addition to his regular tour across the United States, he will conduct a special tour through Russia.

Dean Clayton Garrison also has announced two other appointments to the fine arts faculty, Maurice Allard and Tony DeLap.

ALLARD, concert baritone and faculty member at Pomona College and Claremont Graduate School, will work with Wagner as assistant conductor of the chorus. He has conducted the Chamber Singers at USC and is conductor of the summer concert series at Claremont Graduate School. He will assume his duties at Irvine when he returns from a six-week concert tour of Europe this summer.

DeLAP is joining UCI's department of art as assistant professor. He is a former commissioner of art in San Francisco and former faculty member at the Davis campus of the University of California. His works recently were exhibited in the "Responsive Eye" show at the Museum of Modern Art and in the "Contemporary American Art" exhibit at Whitney Museum, New York.

Exhibit reveals splendor of Iran

By ELISE EMERY
Arts Page Editor

An exhibit resplendent with jewelry, metalwork, ceramics, bronzes, paintings, textiles and sculpture, "7,000 Years of Iranian Art," will open in Lytton Gallery, Los Angeles County Museum of Art, Friday. It will remain through Sept. 26.

Representing all major periods of Iranian art from prehistory to the Islamic conquest, it is circulated in the United States by the Smithsonian Institution in cooperation with the State Department and the Government of Iran. It is the first exhibition in more than 20 years to display great Iranian treasures in this country.

Many of the objects have never before been shown outside of Iran and some have been excavated only recently. Spectacular items include the Hasanlu Gold Bowl of the 9th century,

B.C., which was discovered in 1958, and objects from Marlik and Amlash. More than 230 of the pieces, many of gold and silver, have been lent by the Archaeological Museum in Tehran. There is an admission fee of $1 for adults and 25 cents for children.

Los Angeles is one of eight cities in the United States scheduled for this exhibit. Others are Washington, D.C., Denver, Kansas City, Houston, Cleveland, and San Francisco.

A NEW SERIES of seascapes painted in the Palos Verdes area by Arden von Dewitz, member of the art department faculty at Marymount College, will be on display at the Century City Galleries in West Los Angeles from Friday to Sept. 10.

NEW acquisitions of work by English artists are on display in the Henry E. Huntington Art Gallery in San Marino. They include an informal type portrait done in 1748 by Arthur Devis. It represents Lord Lyttelton, a figure in political and literary circles of his time, with his brother and sister-in-law.

In different vein is an album of 65 sheets of studies by John Flaxman (1755-1826) collected during the late 19th century by an unknown connoisseur. Four other recently acquired paintings, drawings and water colors by John Linnell (1792-1882), are on exhibit. Linnell is best known as a close friend and patron of William Blake but also was an accomplished landscape and portrait artist.

Drawings by two major artists complete the exhibition: a lyrical landscape by Gainsborough and a view of Beaumaris Castle, Anglesey, by J. M. W. Turner.

"PHYSICS and Painting" is the current show at California Museum of Science and Industry in Exposition Park, Los Angeles.

This novel exhibit contrasts the artist's conception of mass, movement and light with the physicist's view of these same natural phenomena.

Conceived and prepared by Grose Evans, curator at the National Gallery of Art, the exhibit compares the medieval mind to that of the renaissance through the evolution of spatial conception.

In the early Middle Ages physics derived primarily from the ideas of Plato and Aristotle in which space, time and motion were only a part of the imperfect, earthly world.

In contrast, men of the 15th century were interested in the physical world, studying perspective and reducing space to geometric analysis, as shown by Botticelli's "Adoration of the Magi."

EVICTED: Beachcombers rush ...to ready their new center

You are needed!

BUT-- Friends are needed!

"We're putting out an SOS," says Margaret Cook, executive director of Beachcombers. "We've been ordered to leave our building on Redondo Avenue by Sept. 1. Our newly purchased center (1208 Mahanna Ave.) is far from ready. "We need volunteers to help bring it up to city standards. So far, the turnout has been marvelous—even 90-degree heat hasn't kept workers away—but there's so much more to be done." Beachcomber Center, a nonprofit organization, provides recreational outlet for 600 physically handicapped young people in the area. Now, with orders to move to new quarters, directors desperately need assistance to keep the program going—and growing. They need financial aid to make necessary additions... volunteers to help with the work... women to help staff the center's Treasure Chest Thrift Shop, their only fund-raising project... and they need items for the shop itself. Volunteers can reach Mrs. Cook at the present location, 1114 Redondo Ave., Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays.

Barry-Miller vows said Saturday

In an all-white ceremony Saturday morning at Wayfarers' Chapel, Portuguese Bend, Diana Marie Miller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Everett L. Miller, 4321 Greenbrier Road, became the bride of Michael Donovan Barry of Placentia. Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length sheath dress of silk organza with Alencon lace overblouse. Her veil of silk illusion was secured by a petal headpiece and she carried white roses. Her bridal attendants, also gowned in white, were Janet Hassell, maid of honor, Mmes. Steven E. Miller and Stephen J. Killian.

THE BRIDEGROOM, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gene Scott, Dayton, Ohio, was served by James Coleman, best man, Steven E. Miller, Stephen J. Killian, Craig A. Miller and Robert S. Kline III, ushers. A champagne luncheon for the 150 wedding guests followed in the home of the bride's parents. The couple, now honeymooning in La Jolla, will be at home after Aug. 21 in Garden Grove. The new Mrs. Barry was graduated from Lakewood High School and attended the University of Oregon, Eugene, and Long

DEAR CURIOUS: Not Don't pass snap judgments on the strength of a handshake. Generalizations are dangerous. The man with the firmest grip could have more up his sleeve than a strong arm. But I agree, it is disappointing to get a wishy-washy handshake when one expects a firmer one.

BUT-- Friends are needed!

"We're putting out an SOS," says Margaret Cook, executive director of Beachcombers. "We've been ordered to leave our building on Redondo Avenue by Sept. 1. Our newly purchased center (1208 Mahanna Ave.) is far from ready. "We need volunteers to help bring it up to city standards. So far, the turnout has been marvelous—even 90-degree heat hasn't kept workers away—but there's so much more to be done." Beachcomber Center, a nonprofit organization, provides recreational outlet for 600 physically handicapped young people in the area. Now, with orders to move to new quarters, directors desperately need assistance to keep the program going—and growing. They need financial aid to make necessary additions ... volunteers to help with the work ... women to help staff the center's Treasure Chest Thrift Shop, their only fund-raising project ... and they need items for the shop itself. Volunteers can reach Mrs. Cook at the present location, 1114 Redondo Ave., Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays.

Tall, straight as spear, light: that's the Masai

When Alitalia Airlines inaugurated DC8 jet service from Rome to Dar es Salaam, Tanzania, a few weeks ago, travel editor Fred Taylor Kraft was one of 56 journalists aboard. This concludes his series of articles on that trip.

By Fred Taylor Kraft
Travel Editor

ARUSHA, TANGANYIKA — Their light-skinned ancestors followed the Nile from Egypt down to this plateau hundreds of years ago, intermarried with the black natives and remained, according to one poetic writer whose name I cannot remember, "a people who dwell on the far side of distance and time."

They are the Masai, a tall slim and graceful race, and of lighter coloring than their assorted neighbors. Knowledgeable travelers proclaim them to be the most interesting tribe in all Africa.

They could easily be that. The men, and frequently the women, are startlingly handsome. Both keep their elaborate hair-do's in place with ochre-dyed clay and animal fat. They bedeck themselves extravagantly with earrings and ankle bracelets, and frequently with enormous necklaces. Some have ears slashed top and bottom and wear homemade, beaded rings, often so long that they reach the shoulders, in both openings.

THE YOUNG warriors are impressive as they go forth against the lion, a hated foe who decimates their cattle. (One guide told me that a Masai must kill a lion before he can marry.)

Straight as their long, steel-pointed spears, they wear a wrap-around garment with one shoulder bare — a costume to be envied by today's American woman seeking the ultra in styling. The usual accoutrements of bracelets, earrings and necklaces on head and feet are emphasized by striking red-and-black shields.

The herdsman, less colorful, is still impressive in the same wrap-around attire.

The Masai are a pastoral group with a passion for cattle. Wealth within the tribe is measured by the size of a herd. Seldom, I was told, will a Masai trade an animal to an agricultural neighbor for fruit or grain or other necessities of life until that animal is well past the prime of life.

AFTER seeing the people, it is a keen disappointment to see how they live. Their home is the kraal — a collection of low, round, flat-topped huts — built with a framework of woven branches plastered with cow dung and overlaid with hides to make them weather tight (see photo).

Kraals built in a circle become a boma. Inside the circle the Masai build their corrals of thorny native branches, and it is into these crude enclosures that the herdsmen drive their cattle for protection against marauding nocturnal beasts.

We stopped at one recently deserted kraal in Ngorongoro Crater. The huts were much too low to permit one to stand upright, and the stench and flies that came from them when we began poking around was all but unbearable.

SOMEHOW, we felt that it figured they lived crudely. In 900 miles of exciting wild animal photo safaris in Kenya and Tanzania with Alitalia Airlines as my host, I saw no evidence that the Masai, or any other tribe for that matter, had existed in this aimless land for centuries. There were no ruins to mark a ghost village, no burial places marked by stones, no hint whatever that other generations might have dwelled here.

But the Masai warrior left his mark in history. He has been feared since the time of the slave traders who skirted Masai country with their caravans to avoid being locked in fierce battle and possible extinction.

IT WAS THE white colonizer — German and then English — to whom they surrendered a considerable portion of their homeland, particularly important grazing lands to the north of Nairobi. But their domain is still vast, stretching through portions of Kenya and Tanganyika, particularly in the Mount Kilimanjaro and Ngorongoro Crater areas, and in such protected areas as Amboseli National Game Reserve — where they shouldn't be permitted if game is to be preserved.

But there they remain with their herds of a million or more animals, the warriors turned herdsmen standing tall and silent, gazing broodingly ahead.

Ship fares cut for High Holy Days

Vacationers wishing to visit Israel for the Jewish High Holy Days this fall can arrange for a 25% reduction off low thrift season one-way fares on the Greek Line's new flagship, Queen Anna Maria.

The reduced fare will be offered on a 30-day ashore round-trip excursion basis, and will be applicable to individuals, according to S.V.H. Upjohn, general sales manager of the Greek Line. Groups of 2 persons or more will be offered the same 25% discount, but can remain in Israel longer than the 30-day limitation for individual passengers. The discount brings minimum tourist class rates to $525 round trip.

The Jewish New Year, "Rosh Hashana," falls on Sept. 27, and the Day of Atonement, "Yom Kippur," follows on Oct. 6. Coordinated with the holidays, are the Queen Anna Marie's sailing from New York Sept. 3, arriving in Haifa Sept. 17, and her following return trip, departing Haifa Oct. 15 and arriving in New York Nov. 1.

The 26,300-ton Queen Anna Maria is the largest liner in regular service between New York and Israel.

Tourist Eden

Located directly between Japan and Hong Kong, Taiwan is becoming a favorite stopping place.

Sometimes known as Formosa, the name its Portuguese discoverers gave it, Taiwan, or the Republic of China as it also calls itself, has many things of interest to offer, including the best collection of Oriental art that anyone can see in a free country, or perhaps in any other. This alone makes a visit worthwhile, but the scenery is fine, the hotels excellent and shopping is mighty good, too.

Good morning!

The happy combination of location and height give to Mount Katahdin, Maine, the distinction of being the first place in the United States to greet the morning sun. United Air Lines serves the New England states with daily flights to Boston.

Plan excursion to Old Santa Fe

Phoenix, Grand Canyon and Old Santa Fe are on the itinerary of a "Southwest Adventure" excursion programmed by the Pacific Railroad Society for the Labor Day week-end, Sept. 3-6.

Departure from Los Angeles, with boarding stops at Pasadena, Pomona and San Bernardino, is scheduled for 8:30 p.m. (Daylight Time) Sept. 3. Sunday, Sept. 5, will be spent at Santa Fe, and Labor Day, Sept. 6, at Grand Canyon. The Santa Fe visit is timed to coincide with the city's traditional and world renowned "Fiesta."

Full information may be obtained from Pacific Railroad Society, Box 5279, Metropolitan Station, Los Angeles 55.

New link open to Buenos Aires

A special round-trip rate of $550 to link Miami, Buenos Aires and New York has been announced by Argentine Airlines.

The fare is valid for 11 months and includes stopovers in Lima, Buenos Aires, Rio de Janeiro and New York.

Regular Miami-Buenos round-trip fare is $495.

Miami offices are in the Bay Tower Bldg., 150 S. E. 2nd Ave.

New Peru ruins

Archaeologists in the Peruvian Andes are exploring three plateaus of moss-covered ruins northwest of Machu Picchu, the Inca city, discovered in 1911.

The region, known as the Plain of the Spirits, is reported to be strewn with crumbling walls and palaces, says Pan American Airways. Adventurous tourists, however, who hope to explore the site, must be prepared to slash their way through the jungle. There are no roads from Machu Picchu to this territory.

In 900 miles of exciting wild animal photo safaris in Kenya and Tanzania with Alitalia Airlines as my host, I saw no evidence that the Masai, or any other tribe for that matter, had existed in this aimless land for centuries. There were no ruins to mark a ghost village, no burial places marked by stones, no hint whatever that other generations might have dwelled here.

But the Masai warrior left his mark in history. He has been feared since the time of the slave traders who skirted Masai country with their caravans to avoid being locked in fierce battle and possible extinction.

IT WAS THE white colonizer — German and then English — to whom they surrendered a considerable portion of their homeland, particularly important grazing lands to the north of Nairobi. But their domain is still vast, stretching through portions of Kenya and Tanganyika, particularly in the Mount Kilimanjaro and Ngorongoro Crater areas, and in such protected areas as Amboseli National Game Reserve — where they shouldn't be permitted if game is to be preserved.

But there they remain with their herds of a million or more animals, the warriors turned herdsman standing tall and silent, gazing broodingly ahead.

Ship fares cut for High Holy Days

Vacationers wishing to visit Israel for the Jewish High Holy Days this fall can arrange for a 25% reduction off low thrift season one-way fares on the Greek Line's new flagship, Queen Anna Maria.

The reduced fare will be offered on a 30-day ashore round-trip excursion basis, and will be applicable to individuals, according to S.V.H. Upjohn, general sales manager of the Greek line. Groups of 2 persons or more will be offered the same 25% discount, but can remain in Israel longer than the 30-day limitation for individual passengers. The discount brings minimum tourist class rates to $525 round trip.

The Jewish New Year, "Rosh Hashana," falls on Sept. 27, and the Day of Atonement, "Yom Kippur," follows on Oct. 6. Coordinated with the holidays, are the Queen Anna Marie's sailing from New York Sept. 3, arriving in Haifa Sept. 17, and her following return trip, departing Haifa Oct. 15 and arriving in New York Nov. 1.

The 26,300-ton Queen Anna Maria is the largest liner in regular service between New York and Israel.

Tourist Eden

Located directly between Japan and Hong Kong, Taiwan is becoming a favorite stopping place.

Sometimes known as Formosa, the name its Portuguese discoverers gave it, Taiwan, or the Republic of China as it also calls itself, has many things of interest to offer, including the best collection of Oriental art that anyone can see in a free country, or perhaps in any other. This alone makes a visit worthwhile, but the scenery is fine, the hotels excellent and shopping is mighty good, too.

Good morning!

The happy combination of location and height give to Mount Katahdin, Maine, the distinction of being the first place in the United States to greet the morning sun. United Air Lines serves the New England states with daily flights to Boston.

Plan excursion to Old Santa Fe

Phoenix, Grand Canyon and Old Santa Fe are on the itinerary of a "Southwest Adventure" excursion programmed by the Pacific Railroad Society for the Labor Day week-end, Sept. 3-6.

Departure from Los Angeles, with boarding stops at Pasadena, Pomona and San Bernardino, is scheduled for 8:30 p.m. (Daylight Time) Sept. 3. Sunday, Sept. 5, will be spent at Santa Fe, and Labor Day, Sept. 6, at Grand Canyon. The Santa Fe visit is timed to coincide with the city's traditional and world renowned "Fiesta."

Full information may be obtained from Pacific Railroad Society, Box 5279, Metropolitan Station, Los Angeles 55.

New link open to Buenos Aires

A special round-trip rate of $550 to link Miami, Buenos Aires and New York has been announced by Argentine Airlines.

The fare is valid for 11 months and includes stopovers in Lima, Buenos Aires, Rio de Janeiro and New York.

Regular Miami-Buenos round-trip fare is $495. Miami offices are in the Bay Tower Bldg., 150 S. E. 2nd Ave.

New Peru ruins

Archaeologists in the Peruvian Andes are exploring three plateaus of moss-covered ruins northwest of Machu Picchu, the Inca city, discovered in 1911.

The region, known as the Plain of the Spirits, is reported to be strewn with crumbling walls and palaces, says Pan American Airways. Adventurous tourists, however, who hope to explore the site, must be prepared to slash their way through the jungle. There are no roads from Machu Picchu to this territory.

THERE'S NO MORE EXCITING TIME THAN OCTOBER THRU DECEMBER TO VISIT OUR MID-PACIFIC POLYNESIAN PARADISE.

IN OCTOBER, each of our five major islands stages its own highly-individual, highly-entertaining Aloha Week celebration. There are colorful parades, lavish balls, and historical pageantry.

IN NOVEMBER, the Winter harvest is feted with the All-Islands Makahiki Festival. Then there's the boisterous fun of the Lahaina Whaling Spree, a nine-day re-creation of a century ago when Lahaina was the whaling capital of the world. For golfing enthusiasts there's the $50,000 Hawaiian Open Invitational Golf Tournament, one of the final stops on the PGA annual tour.

IN DECEMBER, there are the elaborate festivities of Bodhi Day, marking the Buddhist Day of Enlightenment. The dazzling display of the Christmas Festival of Trees is a highlight of the holiday season. And as a thrilling climax to the year, there is the International Surfing Championships at Makaha Beach where 35-foot waves carry surfers on breathtaking rides.

Anyone for Timbuktu?

Anyone who wants to get away from it all without joining the Astronauts in Outer Space might well consider a trip to Timbuktu. This fabled outpost on the edge of the Sahara is still remote, but, thanks to the growth of air transport in West Africa, Timbuktu is now accessible.

Let us say in the interest of accuracy that a trip to Timbuktu no longer involves trudging miles across the searing sands or hacking your way through the tangled bush. It's simply a matter of taking the new paved road into Timbuktu from nearby Goundam, where an airstrip has been constructed.

Travelers can easily reach Goundam by air from Bamako, capital of the Republic of Mali. They can easily reach Bamako by Air Mali from Dakar in Senegal. And, they can easily reach Dakar from New York in a matter of just over seven hours.

ALTHOUGH Timbuktu is not the seat of culture and learning it was in the heyday of the old Mali Empire, traces of its bygone glory linger on. Now a tumbled town of 10,000, Timbuktu is still the terminal for camel caravans from the north. Its 14th century mosques still attract devout pilgrims, and its schools still teach Koranic scripture. The market at the edge of the Niger River bustles each morning with boatmen selling produce to the nomads in exchange for hides and salt from the mines up north. The dusty streets are filled with swarthy Arabs, turbaned Moors, Songhai and Bella Negroes, veiled and blue-tinted Tuaregs.

The Houses of the Explorers serve as a reminder that 19th century Europeans regarded Timbuktu as an El Dorado, flowing with riches from ivory, gold and slave trade. Among the explorers to reach this forbidden city were: Rene Caille, a Frenchman who arrived in 1828; Major Alexander Laing, a Scotsman who reached Timbuktu in 1826 but never lived to tell the tale; and Heinrich Barth, a German who turned up in 1853. Barth, so the records reveal, managed to stay on for eight months, and trace the history of Timbuktu back to its founding by Berber tribesmen in the 11th century.

Aside from the Houses of the Explorers and the mosques, the showplace of Timbuktu for foreigners is the market. Here, everything is for sale from pirogues (native canoes) to peanuts. Milling around the fringes is a Saharan circus of bawling camels, bleating goats, braying donkeys, rearing horses, scrawny dogs and chickens.

TRAVELERS to Timbuktu a few years ago stayed in a crude rest house built of baked mud. Today, there is the small but comfortable Hotel de Tombouctou, built by the French before they departed and now operated by the Mali Department of Tourism.

Space at this inn, however, must be booked well in advance. There are exactly seven rooms, two with private bath and five with common bath. Meals at the hotel are a mixture of French and Mali cuisine with a limited list of alcoholic and non-alcoholic beverages. While the Hotel de Tombouctou will never be mistaken for the Ritz, the hostelry is adequate and clean. What is more, prices are low—$7.50 a day for room and board.

Apart from the hotel, the 20th Century is manifesting itself in Timbuktu in other ways. Electricity, for example, is being brought in for the first time for residents who are willing to pay. There is talk, too, of paving streets and installing a sewage system.

CONSTRUCTION, however, is not being rushed.

RETAINING THE FLAVOR of the past is this West African open-air market, whose long tables are heaped high with everything from patent medicines to handcarved ivory and mahogany.—(Pan Am Photo)

Meanwhile, the people of Timbuktu live much as their ancestors did, when the settlement was founded 900 years ago. There is no piped water, roads are dusty and houses are made of mud. The mosques, despite their antiquity, are also constructed of mud with iron bars in their flanks and minarets up top.

It is perhaps superfluous to say that Timbuktu is not for the timid tourist or the traveler who insists on the comforts of home in faraway places. It is, however, a new adventure for the seasoned globetrotter who does not mind straying from the well-trodden path. It is, incidentally, a rare visitor who fails to drop in at the local police station and have the official Timbuktu seal stamped in his passport.

Dakar, the jumping off point for Timbuktu in Mali, is now served twice a week from New York by the Pan Am Jet Clippers. The 21-day economy fare is $556.50 roundtrip.

IMAGINE YOURSELF A SPACEMAN

Idaho's moon craters

By Al Krieg

CRATERS OF THE MOON, Idaho, Earth—One wouldn't be surprised to see a silver-suited astronaut pilver these craters. And if the observer were to see the spaceman casually heft a rock the size of a bushel basket as if it were a cream puff, he might certainly think he must somehow have been shanghaied aboard an Apollo flight for this landscape is as lunar as one could imagine.

But there the fantasy would end with his first try at a low gravity, soft-landing leap—moonstyle—he'd wind up on a jagged hunk of lava and he'd realize he was just a visitor, still earth-bound, in nature's weird, stony junkyard. For all their moonlike appearance, these sinister, tumbled heaps of basalt, cinders and craters are an earthly phenomenon, a national monument. Their hardened lava covers varying portions of eight Idaho counties north of the looping Snake River. It is a desert so dominated by the brown-black rock of such vicious texture that it resists habitation.

UNFRIENDLY as it is, part of it has been tamed and is one of the world's accessible and easily studied areas of volcanic activity. The monument comprises 83 square miles of the Snake River Lava Plain. Its central feature is the 16-mile Great Rift, in times past a series of 25-mile-deep fissures out of which time and again there spewed molten rock and fire—as recently as 1,600 years ago, some say. One needn't be a geologist to spend a worthwhile half day here on an excursion from nearby Sun Valley or while traveling, say, between Yellowstone Park and the coast. At most other volcanic sites heavy rainfall breaks down the lava formations. Here in these arid parts the chaotic shapes are preserved.

Aided by an introductory visit to the exhibits at the visitor center, and with the park service brochure in hand, the visitor along the drives and trails can quickly recognize the shrapnel-sharp and theropy flow-forms, AA (ah-ah) and Pahoe-hoe (pa-hoy-hoy). The Hawaiian words for these two types are accepted scientific lingo.

IN ADDITION to the sometimes cratered cones that dot the area, the most distinctive features are a pair of monoliths, once part of a crater wall, that are set on a forbidding base of AA. A few yards distant a frozen flow of iron-colored Pahoe-hoe looks as if it could be a photo negative of one of the cascades of white water to be found in the Pioneer

Photo Challenge

Shooting sea and landscape scenes is always a challenge to the artistic sense—and a graphic, storytelling method to record a vacation trip, too. Inject mood and depth into your scenic pictures by having someone stand in the foreground, facing out toward the horizon. Trees in the foreground also provide interest, and depth and frame the scene.

If you can also include reflections of trees or cliffs in the water be sure to do it. And always keep the horizon line level in your viewfinder.

mountains that loom to the north of the monument.

Trail markers point to the three kinds of cones that rise as high as 590 feet. Falling, hardening spray of lava froth from fire fountains formed the cinder cones on whose spongy surfaces grow dwarf buckwheat and limber pine. Less hospitable to plants are the spatter cones made up of clotted lava. Lava cones are low domes of smooth Pahoe-hoe that welled up out of the fissures. Lava "bombs"—some looking like crusty, overdone, round loaves—are seen near some cones from which they were hurled.

MOISTURE in trees enveloped during the eruptions was enough to cool the lava and leave molds of now long-rotted trunks and fallen tops. Most of these are found on Great Owl Cavern trail, a two-hour, four-mile walk. The cavern itself is a 40-foot high, 500-foot-long tunnel formed when the surface of a red-hot river of Pahoe-hoe cooled enough to become a hard shell while the rest of the lava drained away. There are a number of the natural ice boxes of bubbly lava insulating winter's frozen seepages from summer heat.

The explorer in these ice caves will find comfort in a warm sweater, but some day he may be better suited with asbestos underwear, for volcanologists won't promise that the Great Rift is forever healed and that lava won't come spouting up again.

IMAGINE YOURSELF A SPACEMAN

Idaho's moon craters

By Al Krieg

CRATERS OF THE MOON, Idaho, Earth—One wouldn't be surprised to see a silver-suited astronaut prowling these craters. And if the observer were to see the spaceman casually heft a rock the size of a bushel basket as if it were a cream puff, he might certainly think he must somehow have been shanghaied aboard an Apollo flight for this landscape is as lunar as one could imagine.

But there the fantasy would end with his first try at a low gravity, soft-landing leap—moonstyle—he'd wind up on a jagged hunk of lava and he'd realize he was just a visitor, still earth-bound, in nature's weird, stony junkyard.

For all their moonlike appearance, these sinister, tumbled heaps of basalt, cinders and craters are an earthly phenomenon, a national monument. Their hardened lava covers varying portions of eight Idaho counties north of the looping Snake River. It is a desert so dominated by the brown-black rock of such vicious texture that it resists habitation.

UNFRIENDLY as it is, part of it has been tamed and is one of the world's accessible and easily studied areas of volcanic activity. The monument comprises 83 square miles of the Snake River Lava Plain. Its central feature is the 16-mile Great Rift, in times past a series of 25-mile-deep fissures out of which time and again there spewed molten rock and fire—as recently as 1,600 years ago, some say. One needn't be a geologist to spend a worthwhile half day here on an excursion from nearby Sun Valley or while traveling, say, between Yellowstone Park and the coast. At most other volcanic sites heavy rainfall breaks down the lava formations. Here in these arid parts the chaotic shapes are preserved.

Aided by an introductory visit to the exhibits at the visitor center, and with the park service brochure in hand, the visitor along the drives and trails can quickly recognize the shrapnel-sharp and theropy flow-forms, AA (ah-ah) and Pahoe-hoe (pa-hoy-hoy). The Hawaiian words for these two types are accepted scientific lingo.

IN ADDITION to the sometimes cratered cones that dot the area, the most distinctive features are a pair of crater walls, once part of a crater wall, that are set on a forbidding base of AA. A few yards distant a frozen flow of iron-colored Pahoe-hoe looks as if it could be a photo negative of one of the cascades of white water to be found in the Pioneer

Shooting sea and landscape scenes is always a challenge to the artistic sense—and a graphic, storytelling method to record a vacation trip, too.

Inject mood and depth into your scenic pictures by having someone stand in the foreground, facing out toward the horizon. Trees in the foreground also provide interest, and depth and frame the scene.

If you can also include reflections of trees or cliffs in the water be sure to do it. And always keep the horizon line level in your viewfinder.

A whale of an outpost

Ever see a picket fence made of whale ribs? There is one at the Eskimo village of Pt. Hope, Alaska, where bones are more plentiful than wood.

Every able-bodied man and woman worked on it in 1910 when it was constructed around the local graveyard. It is estimated that there are 700 ribs in the fence. Some of the grave markers are 18-foot whale jaw bones.

For a traveler who wants to get off the beaten track and look at early Eskimo life, Pt. Hope is ideal. It is only a 150-mile flight from Kotzebue.

Whaling has been a way of life there for centuries. Today it is almost as important as it was in prehistoric times. The village, originally called Tigara, has been continually occupied for more than 1,000 years. Pt. Hope of today is an extension of the old site where archeological findings show 500 old bone and sod igloos believed to have had a population of 2,000 Eskimos. As the sea erodes the beach, more good artifact hunting grounds are exposed.

EVEN NOW, several of the old type of igloos are in use. There are underground deep freeze caches in the permafrost where the Eskimos store meat, wild fowl and fish.

The village is located on a long, grassy peninsula which juts out into the Arctic Ocean close to the migration routes of the small white whales; the huge 70-foot, 70-ton baleen whales, walrus, seals, and polar bears. This makes for good hunting which is the backbone of the Eskimo economy and the reason they have lived at this location for many centuries.

Pt. Hope is a closely-knit village with a strong community spirit. The elderly are respected and cared for. Old unwritten laws regarding the whale hunt and sharing of the kill are still observed.

Travels with Delaplane

"We will be three weeks in Hawaii. Would it be valuable to learn Hawaiian? And are there any Hawaiian language books?"

THERE ARE a couple of books all right. But you won't find anybody to speak Hawaiian to you—auwe! A number of Hawaiian words have worked into the island colloquial talk. So nearly everybody says "pau" for finished. Or "pilikia" for trouble. Or "haole" for a Caucasian as opposed to Hawaiian mixture or Oriental. "Wahine" for woman is used jokingly. But the language is English.

All the little one dollar guide books have a list of these with the pronunciation. So before you can get suntanned, you should be able to tell how you met this haole wahine on the beach. But she gave you so much pilikia, you were soon all pau.

"What are the best native presents to take home?"

STRAW hats woven from pandanus are island products. Monkeypod wood bowls are good looking. But I think too high-priced. Philippine hardwood bowls are competitively priced here and on the mainland. And I think they're better.

Most things for sale in the islands seem to come from other parts of the Pacific. Carved ivory from Hong Kong. Slippers from Japan. Straw hats (better than local) from Tahiti with shell bands.

The island sportswear for women is very good and inexpensive and there's a lot of choice. So pack light and buy here.

"Can we get rooms with kitchenette by the week?"

HAWAII Visitors Bureau, Honolulu, will send these listings. The Honolulu Advertiser, the morning newspaper, runs ads each day. Looks to me like they average about $14 a day near the beach. Monthly rentals are a little cheaper.

"We have been thinking of spending a year (with our two children) in Guadalajara, Mexico. Can this be done on $300 a month? Is it true you can get a house maid for $25 a month?"

ON A YEARLY rental, I think you can do this. Try a house in the suburbs. Maybe near Lake Chapala. Locals probably get maids at $25. But as a visitor you may have to pay a little more.

This $25 maid sounds like a good deal. But what happens if you need two maids—one of them is always visiting family. Or going to a village fiesta or something. They're a help. But it's not the greatest maid service in the world.

"If we take a car, should we hire a full-time driver?"

I DON'T. Many Mexicans do have drivers. But I think it's mainly for prestige. My experience with hired drivers has been all bad. One crashed a truck. The car was wrecked and I was lucky. One was so hungover I had to do all the driving. Most of them played with traffic as though they were matadors in the bull ring.

"Would it be possible for two boys to camp on a beach where there is good surf?"

PLENTY OF places. Here on the island of Kauai in Hawaii there's tremendous surf. Warm blue water. And if you shop the plantation town stores, not too expensive. Lot of surfing water and beaches in northern California from Mendocino south. Good surfing and cheap living in Lower California, Mexico. Lot in the Caribbean. But for surf, get on the Atlantic side of the islands.

Most of these places you cannot work. But you can fish—that helps. And in the warm countries, clothes are no problem.

"Could you give us some basic advice on planning a month's vacation anywhere abroad. Particularly on not spending much."

CHOOSE a place, not too far from home—transportation chews up your money. Find a headquarters and don't move around too much. Movement eats up your cash. Try to set up a place where you can cook for yourself—more fun, and you learn the country better. Or go in a guest house or pension. Hotels and eating out are the killers.

CHEF OF THE WEEK

Councilman votes in favor of chops
--barbecue style

By MILDRED K. FLANARY
I, P-T Food Editor

Meet the cooking councilman of Lakewood! Today's Chef of the Week, Woodrow (Woody) Smith, not only knows his pork chops, he knows the Lakewood area.

When Smith first arrived in Lakewood almost 16 years ago, it was a stretch of thriving corn fields and green pastures. Today, it's a teen-aging city of some 83,500 people—and it could well be said that Smith has been a big part of that team.

He was elected to the Lakewood City Council two years ago... has served on the board of Lakewood Rotary Club, the Chamber of Commerce and the Rose Float Association of Lakewood. He is past chairman of the Lakewood Real Estate Assn., also of the Long Beach District Board of Realtors.

Born in San Joaquin Valley, Calif., Smith came to Long Beach at the age of 10. He took the educational tour through Lincoln Elementary, Franklin Jr. and Wilson High Schools, and attended both Long Beach Junior College and UCLA.

SMITH'S first business venture was with Sears Roebuck & Co., eventually becoming advertising and merchandising manager for the Long Beach store. He left in 1945 for Culbertson, Mont., and for five years conducted his own department store and building firm there.

Returning to Long Beach, Smith became associated with the Lakewood Park Corp. as sales manager and escrow officer before opening the Lakewood Center Realty Co., of which he now is president.

Our "chef" and his wife, Nedra, have built their barbecue equipment right in their family room. What with four grandchildren—three boys and a girl, always with ready appetites—it needs to be handy. They are children of the Smith brothers, Gordon and Lowell.

CARS FOR RENT

Here's the way they go on distaff side of road

By JOLA MASTERSON
When a salesman is trying to sell a car to a lady, he'd better have the right color (no matter what's under the hood). Otherwise, he isn't about to make a sale.

But are women fussy about the color of the autos they hire from rent-a-car agencies?

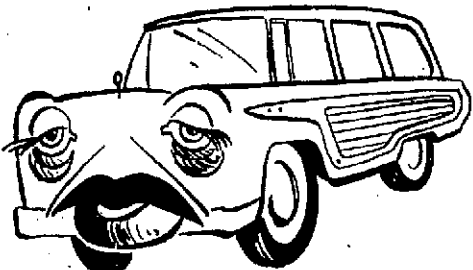

"No," chorused Bill Solberg, Long Beach Hertz licensee, and Mabel Dixon of Avis-Rent-a-Car.

Nor are they concerned about what's under the hood, said Solberg. Matter of fact, neither are the men. The women do, however, like to know whether they've rented a V-8 or a V-6, bless their cost-and-power-conscious hearts.

For her part, Mabel has found that the female species prefer Fords or Chevrolets. They're not mechanically minded, but they ARE more careful drivers, she said. Women bring in far fewer bumped and dented autos than men drivers.

ARE WOMEN forgetful, prone to leave personal property in the cars they return?

Not here—but according to Luella Kelley, manager for Hertz in Westwood Village, we must be the exception. Mrs. Kelley has made a study for her company and says the list of forgotten articles recovered and returned to rightful owners has run the gamut from baby bottles to roasting pans to mink coats and once even a pearl necklace (the real McCoy) with a diamond clasp as big as a humming bird's egg.

But the prize for big forgetters goes to the man who left a complete mimeograph machine in his hired car.

Locally, both Solberg and Mrs. Dixon said very few items are left in returned autos. Most commonly overlooked are dark glasses and gloves. What they don't leave in valuables they make up for in a plethora of peanut shells, potato chips and crumpled facial tissues.

Women are often apt to be jittery when first they take a strange car out. Often they need reassurance that the car is fully insured and that they'll be as efficient drivers in the new one as in what they've been used to. If this doesn't do the trick, the manager drives around a few blocks with them until they get the hang of how the car handles.

GETTING BACK to Mrs.

Kelley's report. Nationally, as here, women are practical. Most request full information on special lower rates before planning a car rental. They are careful to hire a car no larger than is required for their purpose.

While women are not too concerned about what's under the hood, most want power steering and power brakes.

There are occasional extremes, said Mrs. Kelley. Like the elderly lady who was applying for her first driver's license. She rented a different car every day for a week until she found the one easiest for her to park.

Women rent cars for a variety of reasons. Often those involved regularly in athletic activities—such as bowling or golf—team up so they can go to the golf course or alley together. Then, especially in one-car family neighborhoods, housewives will split the cost of a car rental for weekly marketing sorties and, at the same time, turning the chore into an enjoyable get-together.

"Many young mothers," Mrs. Kelley said, "pool their resources to rent a station wagon for a day to take the youngsters on safaris to such places as Disneyland or Marineland, finding it cheaper than to go by bus. And that's the way it is when you put a woman in the driver's seat."

So South is 'forced' into slam

"What sort of a six bid was that?" asked North, as he put down the dummy. "I'll let you know later," replied South. "I'm just tired of having my opponents put in non-vulnerable spade bids against my vulnerable heart contracts and I made up my mind this time that they could either let me play at four or defend against a slam."

As you can see from the bidding, South had tried his best to get to declarer at four hearts. He had passed over East's three spade bid in the hope that his partner might double that call. Instead, North went to four hearts and after East and South passed West continued to four spades.

AT THIS POINT North might well have doubled. Practically all North players in the duplicate game who got a chance to double four

He may be sorry someday!

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD: There is this girl at school who tells everyone how much she likes me. She has other people ask me if I like her—and I don't!

She is very fat and tall and bigger than I in all directions! She has long, fuzzy hair and she's just a big pain in the neck. She won't leave me alone and is always staring at me.

How can I get it across to her that I don't like her and I want her to leave me alone? BUGGED

DEAR BUGGED: Keep on ignoring her; she'll get over her crush sooner or later. Just as she will no doubt become a slender girl with beautiful hair one of these days.

Be careful—there may come a time when you won't think she's such a "pain in the neck" and you won't have a chance if she remembers how nasty you've been. M.M.

*****

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD: We are sick and tired of parents complaining about their teen-agers! Parents aren't perfect either. A few weeks ago we had an argument with Mom and Pop about their drinking and treating us like little kids.

They left us, thinking we would find out that we couldn't take care of ourselves (I'm 18, my sisters are 14 and 16). Well, we got news for them—I have two jobs and my sisters are doing a fine job of keeping house.

If and when our parents come back, we will have proved we are capable of taking care of ourselves and I'm not sure we even miss them. They're nice to have around if they would just treat us like human beings! —J.C.J.

DEAR J.C.J.:

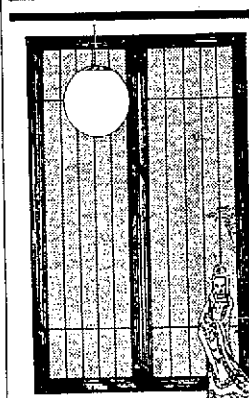

Of course, parents aren't perfect and many set very bad examples for their children. Drinking is one of them. I have seen many children grow up and completely avoid alcohol after seeing what it did to their homes.

As for taking care of yourselves, you seem to be doing all right, but can you handle trouble if it comes along? Yes, parents are nice to have around. Most of them come in mighty handy when trouble arises and you'd better believe it!—M.M.

Councilman votes in favor of chops --barbecue style

By MILDRED K. FLANARY
I.P.T. Food Editor

Meet the cooking councilman of Lakewood! Today's Chef of the Week, Woodrow (Woody) Smith, not only knows his pork chops, he knows the Lakewood area.

When Smith first arrived in Lakewood almost 16 years ago, it was a stretch of thriving corn fields and green pastures. Today, it's a teeming city of some 83,500 people—and it could well be said that Smith has been a big part of that team.

He was elected to the Lakewood City Council two years ago... has served on the board of Lakewood Rotary Club, the Chamber of Commerce and the Rose Float Association of Lakewood. He is past chairman of the Lakewood Real Estate Assn., also of the Long Beach District Board of Realtors.

Born in San Joaquin Valley, Calif., Smith came to Long Beach at the age of 10. He took the educational tour through Lincoln Elementary, Franklin Jr. and Wilson High Schools, and attended both Long Beach Junior College and UCLA.

Some of Genie's Magic Rubs Off on Barbara

By BERT RESNIK
TV and Radio Editor

A very expectant Barbara Eden, title star of NBC-TV's fall "I Dream of Jeannie" series, beamed and smilingly said:

"I thought I had picked up a bug somewhere."

So she went to the doctor and he told her it was no bug.

"We," said Barbara, "were pregnant."

The "we" includes actor-husband Michael Ansara whom Barbara wed in 1958.

(Barbara may be seen at 10 p.m. today in a "Rogues" repeat on channel 4. She has the role of Sally Cardew.)

"We let the first year go by," said Barbara, "but we've tried ever since."

"When we did get pregnant, we really didn't know that's what it was. We had sort of given up."

* * * *

BARBARA "picked up her bug" during the time the sample-pilot for "Jeannie" was being taped.

The series is about an astronaut (Larry Hagman) who finds a bottle out of which pops a genie.

Barbara feels that some of the magic of her genie role must have rubbed off on her.

But she was concerned about how Sidney Sheldon, creator of "Jeannie" would take the news of the magic reaction. For the sample-pilot, with Barbara as one of the principal reasons, had sold as a series.

She had no need to worry. "That's wonderful," said Sheldon when she informed him about the baby.

"Just wonderful. It's the most wonderful thing that ever happened to a person," he said, as if he had personally been through the experience.

* * * *

THE BABY is expected in September. Before his-her's presence became too evident, 11 segments of the series were taped. Barbara, who wears harem-girl attire, said:

"I wore veils on veils."

While she remembers what Sheldon said, she can't recall hubby Mike's first words upon hearing the news.

"All I remember is his silly look," she said. "He still gets it when he sees the baby kick."

She's not too sure she, also, doesn't have a perpetual silly look.

"It's a miracle, she said, "if you ever stop to think about it."

"Especially when the little leg gets under you and you rub it and you gently push it down."

She paused. She didn't look silly. There was a glow and only a woman who has been expecting a baby would be able to fittingly describe that glow.

Said Barbara:

Maggie Hayes Defends Soap Operas

NEW YORK (UPI)—Soap opera has its defenders and one of them is that fine actress, Maggie Hayes, who is the Roxanne of ABC-TV's "The Young Marrieds" and whose film and television credits give her voice unusual authority. Maggie has appeared in some 200 TV dramas. She was the memorable young teacher in a brilliant feature film, "Blackboard Jungle."

The point of all this is that Maggie does not have to lower her standards for a job (she is the well-to-do Mrs. Herbert Bayard Swope Jr. in private life) and her arguments on behalf of the daytime serial are not dictated by either economic fear or excessive loyalty to the ABC network.

"IT'S NOT ONLY the critics," Maggie said. "In some strange way actors, as well, seem to look down on the daytime serials. It's the hardest work I've ever done in my life and very satisfying. I find it closer than anything else on television to a Broadway play. For instance, you have a chance to evaluate relationships which cannot be done in a one-shot TV drama.

"Someone asked me what I was doing the other day and they were shocked when I told them. 'Daytime serial!' They said. 'You're too good for that!'" "I don't understand what they mean. If you're an actress, you act. If you're not acting, you're not an actress. Why, some of the actors I work with in the serials have starred in Broadway plays. And some of the writing is far superior to the nighttime stuff."

Maggie said viewers who sneer at the serials without watching them would be surprised at how absorbing they can be once the plot and characters become familiar.

"If the night shows had the time we have to develop character there might not be so much criticism of them," she said.

And she went back to studying her script.

"I'm up in the bedroom this week," she said, "fixing a shoulder strap that broke at a party."

W. B. EASTMAN SAYS:

On the subject of Sunday selling. We don't believe in it—do you? I feel my employees (including me) should have Sunday to themselves. I'll bet the majority of you feel the same way. We have tried to set an example in the community through the years by closing on Sunday. We tried Sunday selling several years ago and found in quizzing the people who made purchases on Sunday that the majority would have purchased during the week anyway. Why don't you do the same—we're open Monday and Fridays until 9:00 if you can't come in during the week.

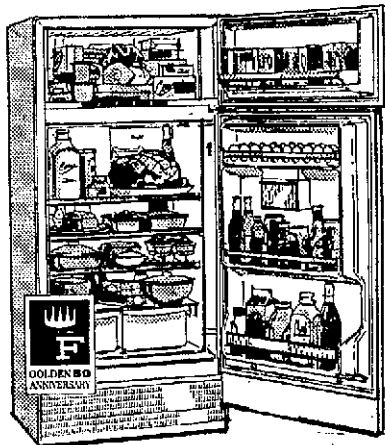

Now just a word on the products in this ad. These products are for sale—they're not bolted down. We won't try to sell you a higher priced model. We sell what we advertise. Our past customers tell us they like the way we do business. How about you finding out for yourself!

CRITIC'S CORNER

Program: Viet Nam: "The Decisions," aired last Monday on channel 2.

The sincerity and stability of two of this nation's leaders came across to viewers with forceful impetus under the provocative questioning of CBS newsmen.

The two leaders, Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara, at all times displayed presence of mind and an exhaustive knowledge of their subject.

Whether or not the viewer agreed, these are the main points the statesmen made:

America must stick by its alliances, including the one with South Viet Nam.

The South Vietnamese definitely want our aid, including supplemental military actions.

If Red China should prove that a policy of militancy—such as the one they are directing in Viet Nam—can be successful, then the dangers throughout the world would increase tremendously.

The world is watching to see if America honors its commitments.

The war in Viet Nam is not a civil war. An outside power, Red China, is attempting to use force to subvert the nation.

Our objective is only to assure that South Viet Nam has the right to control its own destiny.

The television program, in the final analysis, was clarifying, instructive and illustrative of the public service that can be performed in the video field.

Subsequent ratings reports, I'm sure, will disclose that the great bulk of the viewing public did not avail themselves of the instructive service.

For those who did not, it was their loss.

The sincerity and stability of two of this nation's leaders came across to viewers with forceful impetus under the provocative questioning of CBS newsmen.

The two leaders, Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara, at all times displayed presence of mind and an exhaustive knowledge of their subject.

Whether or not the televisioner agreed, these are the main points the statesmen made:

America must stick by its alliances, including the one with South Viet Nam.

The South Vietnamese definitely want our aid, including supplemental military actions.

If Red China should prove that a policy of militancy—such as the one they are directing in Viet Nam—can be successful, then the dangers throughout the world would increase tremendously.

The world is watching to see if America honors its commitments.

The war in Viet Nam is not a civil war. An outside power, Red China, is attempting to use force to subvert the nation.

Our objective is only to assure that South Viet Nam has the right to control its own destiny.

The television program, in the final analysis, was clarifying, instructive and illustrative of the public service that can be performed in the video field.

Subsequent ratings reports, I'm sure, will disclose that the great bulk of the viewing public did not avail themselves of the instructive service.

For those who did not, it was their loss.

Barbara Eden 'Jeannie' Star

vision actress, Elizabeth Montgomery, found herself in the same expectancy boat after the pilot for "Bewitched" had sold as a series.

The comparison doesn't end there.

There are those who contend "I Dream of Jeannie" sounds like a copy of "Bewitched."

Barbara takes issue with those contentions.

"Look," she said, "after they had sold 'Bewitched,' there were a lot of people who said it was a copy of 'My Favorite Martian.'"

"Somebody is always making comparisons without seeing what they're comparing. 'As far as 'Bewitched' and 'Jeannie' are concerned, we're night and day. We're simply different."

Whereby she proceeded to prove it.

She wrinkled her nose at Liz Montgomery's magic mannerisms in "Bewitched." Nothing happened.

Gemini Space TV Schedule

On the day the Gemini-Titan V space shot is launched—Thursday at the earliest—the three networks will begin coverage at 4 a.m. Actual launching lift-off is slated three hours later.

Regular programming of the three networks, channel 2, 4 and 7, will be pre-empted during the morning hours.

Bulletin-type coverage is planned thereafter with more extensive coverage emphasized on all news programs.

In addition, the possibility exists that regular evening programming may be pre-empted for special reports.

VOICE OF 'CHARLEY THE TUNA'

★ ★ ★ ★ ★
And Bernardi Also--Ho! Ho! Ho!--'Jolly Green Giant'

By JACK GAVER

NEW YORK (UPI)—One who doesn't scorn television and radio commercials is Herschel Bernardi. You can't blame him. He makes them.

And in the case the name Herschel Bernardi doesn't mean anything to you, you all know the voice of Charley the Tuna and that ho-ho-ho, Jolly Green Giant bit. That's Bernardi.

"I get Charley the Tuna fan mail," Bernardi said, "although most of those who write don't know that I am the voice of Charley. They just get a kick out of the character and the way he talks. I imagine Charley must be one of the most popular of all television's characters in commercials."

"I patterned Charley's voice after a friend of mine in Brooklyn. He is something of a beatnik in appearance but an educated man who can use the big words. But he uses them with a marked Brooklyn accent. Charley is a born loser with delusions of grandeur who never quite makes the grade to become one of this company's canned products."

BERNARDI'S COMMERCIAL work is only with the voice.

"I don't think an actor—well, at least. It isn't right for me—should have his face identified with a product," Bernardi said. "If nothing else, this, to be quite crass about it, restricts your work in this field. If you supply only voices for various animated characters, the field is unlimited."

Bernardi is best known to the television public in his own right as the understanding, efficient police lieutenant, Jacoby, in the highly popular "Peter Gunn" series of a few seasons back.

"I'm still getting an income from the series, which continues to play in various parts of the world," Bernardi said.

VOICE OF 'CHARLEY THE TUNA'

★ ★ ★ ★ ★
And Bernardi Also--Ho! Ho! Ho!--'Jolly Green Giant'

By JACK GAVER

NEW YORK (UPI)—One who doesn't scorn television and radio commercials is Herschel Bernardi. You can't blame him. He makes them.

And in the case the name Herschel Bernardi doesn't mean anything to you, you all know the voice of Charley the Tuna and that ho-ho-ho, Jolly Green Giant bit. That's Bernardi.

"I get Charley the Tuna fan mail," Bernardi said, "although most of those who write don't know that I am the voice of Charley. They just get a kick out of the character and the way he talks. I imagine Charley must be one of the most popular of all television's characters in commercials."

"I patterned Charley's voice after a friend of mine in Brooklyn. He is something of a heatnik in appearance but an educated man who can use the big words. But he uses them with a marked Brooklyn accent. Charley is a born loser with delusions of grandeur who never quite makes the grade to become one of this company's canned products."

BERNARDI'S COMMERCIAL work is only with the voice.

"I don't think an actor—well, at least, it isn't right for me—should have his face identified with a product," Bernardi said. "If nothing else, this, to be quite crass about it, restricts your work in this field. If you supply only voices for various animated characters, the field is unlimited."

Bernardi is best known to the television public in his own right as the understanding, efficient police lieutenant, Jacoby, in the highly popular "Peter Gunn" series a few seasons back.

"I'm still getting an income from the series, which continues to play in various parts of the world," Bernardi said.

USIA Programs Feature Video Entertainers

RAYMOND BURR

DANNY KAYE

DANNY THOMAS

By RICK DU BROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—"Television versus Reality" is the title of a U. S. Information Agency video discussion program made for distribution to Arabic-speaking nations, with Raymond Burr of CBS-TV's "Perry Mason" as the guest.

The program is one of a series of telecasts which has the overall title of "Experts Answer" and is "designed to provide audiences with forthright answers to questions on important aspects of American life and culture as voiced by credible United States sources."

This description of purpose is provided by Gordon Kelly, producer and director of the half-hour broadcasts, who adds:

"The programs are unrehearsed (except for some questions suggested to stimulate the panel) and spontaneous in the belief that this type of program is more credible, even with occasional adverse material, than other information sources."

THE MODERATOR of this particular "Experts Answer" series, which is produced in Arabic for 12 nations in the Near East, is Ismael Abdelrazik of the United Arab Republic.

Another "Experts Answer" series is being produced in English for nine countries in Africa, with African panelists.

CBS-TV's Danny Kaye is the guest for a program entitled "American Humor" for the African series. NBC-TV's Danny Thomas is the featured participant for a broadcast on "American Entertainment" in another of the shows aimed at the Arabic-speaking audience.

The "Television versus Reality" program is recorded at the University of California at Los Angeles.

TELEVIEWERS MAY FIND some interest in the nature of the USIA series. Herewith, then, some excerpts from the questioning of the panel and the answering by Burr:

QUESTION: Some critics say that the show you have been presenting . . . is giving an unrealistic picture of the courts of the United States. From your personal experiences, can you explain the responsibilities of television toward the realities of life?

ANSWER: We have 50 states in this union and the code is a little different in each state. On our particular program, we must remember first of all that it's entertainment and that's its first responsibility—to be good in that field. However, within the code of the State of California, we try to be as accurate as possible . . . work of whatever you're doing entertainment-wise.

Q: Is there no fear that criminals may learn from the methods you use to discover their crimes how to avoid their mistakes . . . ?

USIA Programs Feature Video Entertainers

DANNY KAYE

DANNY THOMAS

By RICK DU BROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—"Television versus Reality" is the title of a U. S. Information Agency video discussion program made for distribution to Arabic-speaking nations, with Raymond Burr of CBS-TV's "Perry Mason" as the guest.

The program is one of a series of telecasts which has the overall title of "Experts Answer" and is "designed to provide audiences with forthright answers to questions on important aspects of American life and culture as voiced by credible United States sources."

This description of purpose is provided by Gordon Kelly, producer and director of the half-hour broadcasts, who adds:

"The programs are unrehearsed (except for some questions suggested to stimulate the panel) and spontaneous in the belief that this type of program is more credible, even with occasional adverse material, than other information sources."

THE MODERATOR of this particular "Experts Answer" series, which is produced in Arabic for 12 nations in the Near East, is Ismael Abdelrazik of the United Arab Republic.

Another "Experts Answer" series is being produced in English for nine countries in Africa, with African panelists.

CBS-TV's Danny Kaye is the guest for a program entitled "American Humor" for the African series. NBC-TV's Danny Thomas is the featured participant for a broadcast on "American Entertainment" in another of the shows aimed at the Arabic-speaking audience.

The "Television versus Reality" program is recorded at the University of California at Los Angeles.

TELEVIEWERS MAY FIND some interest in the nature of the USIA series. Herewith, then, some excerpts from the questioning of the panel and the answering by Burr:

QUESTION: Some critics say that the show you have been presenting . . . is giving an unrealistic picture of the courts of the United States. From your personal experiences, can you explain the responsibilities of television toward the realities of life?

ANSWER: We have 50 states in this union and the code is a little different in each state. On our particular program, we must remember first of all that it's entertainment and that's its first responsibility—to be good in that field. However, within the code of the State of California, we try to be as accurate as possible . . . work of whatever you're doing entertainment-wise.

Q: Is there no fear that criminals may learn from the methods you use to discover their crimes how to avoid their mistakes . . . ?

A: I think probably that might be true. They also might learn enough that they will not commit the crime in the first place. (Laughter.)

Donna Kerr, Long Beach
His agent reports that Chad chose to retire from the group and concentrate his efforts on Broadway theater.

Please tell me the salary of the Action dancers on the program "Where the Action Is."

T. P. Henry, Long Beach
It's a military secret. People in the Dick Clark office won't talk. Too busy dancing.

We agree with everything you said about Joey Bishop because we have been one of his fans for a long time, but we do believe that Joey and Sammy Davis got a bit too mushy in expressing their friendship for each other.

The Frank Sinatra bit was somewhat overdone, as is

OUR COVER

The bright-hued swim cap that Greta Andersen is wearing is not merely a decoration for the benefit of the photograph, but an important piece of equipment in her coming challenge of the English Channel. The iridescent glow from the cap will be an added safety measure, for it will be her beacon in the night as she trails small boats across the near-22-mile Dover Strait in an attempt to be the first woman ever to make a round-trip swim of the stormy waters. "I wore an ordinary cap last time and the pilot boat nearly went off and left me in the darkness," she recalls. For the story of one of the world's most unique athletic endeavors, turn to Jerome Hall's report on "The Impossible Swim" on Page 7.

'FISH' WHO COULDN'T SWIM

Subsea Heroics in a Hard Hat

By Tim St. George

NOT ALL the fish from the sea can swim.

As a retired, hard-hat navy diver, Morris Hoffman, of San Diego can attest to that.

His navy buddies call him "Fish," a name well-earned considering the myriad of dangerous salvage jobs, including the recovery of 450 bodies, he performed during his service.

Happiest occasion, Fish recalls, was when he saved one man from drowning while he was a navy diver.

Fish's career spans naval history back to the time of the Great White Fleet through WWII and includes 42 letters of commendation for his hazardous work.

Fish became a diver because of an accident when a cargo net broke and dumped some ammunition in Boston harbor. At 18, it seemed right to volunteer and when the shells were recovered, he was a confirmed Navy diver and he never found time to learn how to swim.

FISH HAD BEEN a salvage diver for a number of years when in 1920 at Charleston, Mass., a street car smashed through a bridge guard rail and carried 72 people, including women and children, down with it.

There was no other diver in the area and Fish was detached to do the job, one which he still recalls with some horror. And one about which he still refuses to talk. His official records and letters prove that he refused a $500 bonus for the job.

At the end of his first hitch, Fish was made a chief torpedoman, among the first to receive such a rating and one he held all through his long naval career. His naval portfolio is stuffed, however, with letters of commendation and official praise from President Truman, Secretary of Navy Forrestal and a number of other high naval officials. Among other decorations, Fish received the Marine Corps Medal, highest non-combatant award.

Fish recalls the dangerous duty which brought him this award:

SEVEN San Diego-bound destroyers were stranded on the jagged Point Honda rocks, just north of Santa Barbara, one densely foggy night in September 1923. It was the Navy's greatest peacetime loss; 23 men died and seven fighting ships were lost.

Morris (Fish) Hoffman had a long and eventful Navy career but never learned to swim.

Fish was assigned to recovery duty, even though enormous seas still clutched at survivors and ships. He was able to locate 18 bodies then went onto the more dangerous aspects of the job. There were torpedoes to be freed from the stricken ships, despite the pounding of the waves. After close inspection, Fish decided the only way to get them loose was to set a small charge in the impulse mechanism and hit it with a hammer! Even if Fish wasn't immediately disintegrated, there was no way to calculate where the torpedoes would go.

"The job had to be done," Fish said. "And perfectly..."

TORPEDOES slithered into the seas and were recovered by demolition men. Not one exploded nor was lost! Forty-four of them!

Despite his almost unblemished record, Fish did fail—at least once. He admits he lost an anchor on the floor of the Boston Harbor and never found it.

Fish never bothered to learn to swim, even though he almost drowned after falling overboard off Trinidad. And he risked his life to save a Navy pilot whose plane had plunged into San Diego Bay. Fish leaped overboard and pulled the pilot from the craft before it sank, then waited until they were both rescued by the salvage ship from which he had been diving during the day's duty.

Fish retired then went back when WWII erupted, and made numerous recoveries, including some in the Salton Sea. He recalls one poignant event when a young flier had taken his collie up with him in the bombing run. Fish recovered the bodies with the flier still clasping his dog.

LATER, was almost disciplined for an act of bravery.

During the war, a bomber crashed carrying with it two 300-pound depth charges, set to explode at 25 feet. Navy charts showed San Diego Bay depths there ranged from 19 to 31 feet, making recovery extremely hazardous.

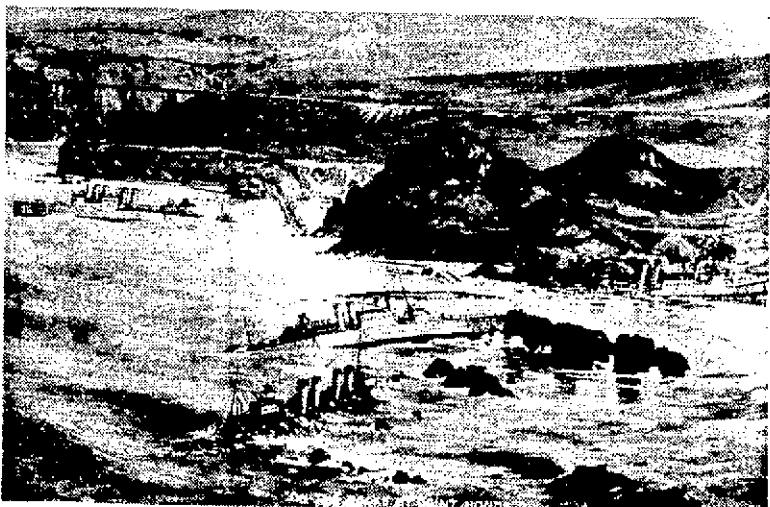

Fish volunteered and slipped into his gear, knowing that an error would be fatal. He located the explosives and rigged his lines with extra care because if the charges dipped in the sling, they might explode. When Fish returned to the dock, it was deserted.

No one wanted anything to do with those finicky depth charges, and bomb disposal experts finally deactivated them.

ONE OFFICER pointed out the risk to nearby ships, the piers, equipment and even to Fish, also government issue, and hinted at a court martial for the hard-hatted and hard-headed diver. But wiser judgment prevailed and Fish collected another commendation instead of a court martial.

Fish now retired, spends his days looking out to sea, leafing through his voluminous scrapbooks and thinking of the buddies who have sailed over the horizon.

Fish is a dry land sailor now so he still hasn't learned to swim.

Tragic scene on the rocks off Point Honda where Navy men and ships were lost in 1923. Hoffman was called into salvage action, a dangerous venture.

OUR COVER

The bright-hued swim cap that Greta Andersen is wearing is not merely a decoration for the benefit of the photograph, but an important piece of equipment in her coming challenge of the English Channel. The iridescent glow from the cap will be an added safety measure, for it will be her beacon in the night as she trails small boats across the near-22-mile Dover Strait in an attempt to be the first woman ever to make a round-trip swim of the stormy waters. "I wore an ordinary cap last time and the pilot boat nearly went off and left me in the darkness," she recalls. For the story of one of the world's most unique athletic endeavors, turn to Jerome Hall's report on "The Impossible Swim" on Page 7.

Impressive "grandevitrine" is an outstanding example of French marquetry by Andre Boule.

ANTIQUES

Artistry of Boule

By Helen L. Gillum

FRENCH marquetry, always admired for its great beauty and craftsmanship, reached a high level of perfection during the reign of Louis XIV in the late 17th and early 18th centuries, under the incredibly skilled hands of Andre Charles Boule. Boule (also Buhl or Boulle), who either invented or predicted the unique metal and tortoise shell inlay artistry known as "Boule" work, was appointed "ebeniste du Roi" in 1672, and from that time on he worked continually for the crown. He established a workshop of 20 assistants, who labored incessantly at helping him to create magnificent furniture for the new palace at Versailles.

Boule's PROCESS consisted of gluing (or clamping) sheets of tortoise shell to similar pieces of plain or engraved brass. He then cut out the design with a fine hand saw. (The pattern was previously set out on paper and pasted to the surface.) The ornamental figures were glued to the base structure in the form of veneer. Since the layers of metal and tortoise shell could be separated to make two distinct marquetrys, many combinations of color and design were achieved by adroit manipulation of the sections. Ingenious use of colored backgrounds, metal foil, mother-of-pearl and stained horn also enhanced Boule's decorative creations.

Genuine Boule is understandably dear and certainly difficult to obtain. Mrs. E. J. Wightman of Cooper Arms Apartments, succeeded in finding several pieces of authenticated Boule during recent European travels. These articles of furniture, richly decorated with Boule's handicraft, and heavy with ormolu caryatids and other elaborate mounts, are equally beautiful in their massive, yet symmetrical styling, and, of course, are as utilitarian as any modern furniture item of today.

Mrs. Wightman's "grandevitrine" (large cabinet with glass front), 6 feet high and 5 feet wide, is most impressive, and it is made further attractive with antique china and glass upon its shelves. Other Boule articles arranged about the spacious corner room high above Long Beach are a smaller glass-front china closet, a round-front commode, an elegant parlor table, and a small china cupboard with plain (not glassed) doors. Objets d'art from all over the world, including those of Sevres, Dresden and the Orient, carry out the atmosphere created by the Boule pieces.

A LONG BEACH MERMAID IS POISED FOR

The Impossible Swim

By JEROME HALL

THERE IS a certain breed of human being that flutters compulsively to the flame of challenge as a moth to a candle. There are those who attack near-impossible tasks and have no ready answer when people ask why.

Such is Greta Andersen, one of the world's remarkable athletes.

In the coming days the Long Beach mermaid will make news the world over by plunging into the frigid waters of the English Channel. She may gain worldwide renown as the first woman to make a two-way, nonstop swim across the Channel that is the premier challenge to marathon swimmers.

The attempt, to come some time during the next 15 days, depending on weather conditions, will mark the close of Miss Andersen's competitive career that spans more than 20 years and includes Olympic medals, citations from kings and potfuls of prize money.

THIS SWIM, however, is the most important of them all, for it is the quintessence of the Channel swimmer's guiding light—something long sought, long trained for and generally considered unattainable. Among the marathoners it is known as "the impossible swim."

Greta is the only woman who's ever attempted a two-way nonstop swim of the storm-plagued Channel, a feat accomplished only once in nearly a century of Channel challenges by Europeans, Asians and North and South Americans who annually converge on the Dover coast at this time for mass plunges into the chill sea.

Greta's prize, if she makes it, won't be measured in dollars, though she has collected a lot of those for her salt water escapades. There is no pot of gold at the end of this swim. She has no sponsor and is paying all her own expenses.

All she will win will be self-satisfaction and foreign renown, for in many countries marathon swimming is a immensely important endeavor.

THE ENGLISH CHANNEL is an old foe of Greta's. She has conquered it four times. But only Argentinian Antonio Bertondo has made the round-trip crossing. Greta tried it a year ago but after making it to the French coast she was victimized by an unforeseen cross current that first stopped all progress on the return trip and then sent her reeling backward through the high waves.

For weeks now Greta's entourage in England has been making arrangements for the challenge, for though it apparently is a one-woman show, as many as 20 persons play important roles as boatmen, navigators, trainer, medical personnel, etc. Even the weatherman is on her team, for Greta makes full use of British meteorology and marine technology that has been in continual development since the first man swam the English Channel in 1875, setting off one of the few truly worldwide sports.

Water temperatures, tides, winds and currents all have been catalogued in minute detail by European marathon swim associations, for the English and the French and the Italians are serious about Channel swimming. Greta's associates have been pouring over Admiralty Chart No. 1895 and No. 5059 to plot the most advisable route across the Straits of Dover that separates the British Isles from the continent, an expanse of swirling, churning, unpredictable water that is 21.8 miles at its narrowest point.

IT IS THE WORLD'S premier challenge to marathon swimmers because it is so unpredictable. "I have started out when the Channel was as smooth as a freeway," recalled Greta shortly before winging out of Southern California in recent hours. "And after a few hours I was in the middle of a raging storm."

She says, "If I have all the luck in the world on this swim the waves won't start rolling in big until the last part of the last leg of the swim. Then they might help me a little. But I really don't expect that kind of luck. I'll figure it's a big break if they don't push me halfway to Portugal."

If luck runs with her, she will make the first portion of the swim, to the continent, in about 15 hours. She will be allowed to stand ankle-deep on the French shore for 10 minutes before heading back. The France-to-England leg is easier because of currents, but it will take longer unless she gets swallowed up by a swirl of furious ocean that's headed in the opposite direction of the one that caught and defeated her last year.

THE NEAR-44-MILE route will not be the longest swim Greta has made. In 1962 she won the $10,000 grand prize for a 54-mile splash across Lake Michigan. (She has won about $90,000 since she was coaxed into trying her first marathon swim, a leisurely, warm 10-mile outing at Salton Sea, in 1956.)

After this Channel challenge—win or lose—she's going to forget marathon swimming to concentrate on teaching tots, tykes and teens at her swim school in Los Alamitos, where her students range from 3 months of age.

It will mark the end of a competitive career that includes hundreds of trophies, scores of championships and

Artistry of Boule

By Helen L. Gillum

FRENCH marquetry, always admired for its great beauty and craftsmanship, reached a high level of perfection during the reign of Louis XIV in the late 17th and early 18th centuries, under the incredibly skilled hands of Andre Charles Boule. Boule (also Buhl or Bouille), who either invented or predicted the unique metal and tortoise shell in-lay artistry known as "Boule" work, was appointed "ebeniste du Roi" in 1672, and from that time on he worked continually for the crown. He established a workshop of 20 assistants, who labored incessantly at helping him to create magnificent furniture for the new palace at Versailles.

BOULE'S PROCESS consisted of gluing (or clamping) sheets of tortoise shell to similar pieces of plain or engraved brass. He then cut out the design with a fine band saw. (The pattern was previously set out on paper and pasted to the surface.)
The ornamental figures were glued to the base structure in the form of veneer. Since the layers of metal and tortoise shell could be separated to make two distinct marqueteries, many combinations of color and design were achieved by adroit manipulation of the sections. Ingenious use of colored backgrounds, metal foil, mother-of-pearl and stained horn also enhanced Boule's decorative creations.

Mrs. Wightman's "grandevitrine" (large cabinet with glass front), 6 feet high and 5 feet wide, is most impressive, and it is made further attractive with antique china and glass upon its shelves.
Other Boule articles arranged about the spacious corner room high above Long Beach are a smaller glass-front china closet, a round-front commode, an elegant parlor table, and a small china cupboard with plain (not glassed) doors. Objets d'art from all over the world, including those of Sevres, Dresden and the Orient, carry out the atmosphere created by the Boule pieces.

Genuine Boule is understandably dear and certainly difficult to obtain. Mrs.

of authenticated Boule dur-

These articles of furniture, richly decorated with Boule's handicraft, and heavy with ormolu caryatids and other elaborate mounts, are equally beautiful in their massive, yet symmetrical styling, and,
of course, are as utilitarian as any modern furniture item of today.

Uncle Sam's Laboratory

Platinum-iridium kilogram (top photo) is national standard of weight. Lower photo, apparatus known as guarded hotbox measures heat flowing through simulated building panels, data of value in the building industry.

By FRANK L. REMINGTON

HOW MUCH does a wisp of smoke weigh?

How much can an ordinary house fly bend a rod of steel if it stands on the end of it?

How many times can a suitcase be picked up before the handle falls off?

The National Bureau of Standards (NBS), an agency of the United States Department of Commerce, can answer these questions and thousands of others, such as the weight of the dot above a penciled "i." The Bureau has established, for example, that a good suitcase can be picked up 25,000 times without the handle breaking.

Scientists at NBS, aptly termed Uncle Sam's Laboratory, have used the fleeting trails of meteors to bounce radio messages halfway across the country. They have turned graphite into diamonds and gold into mercury.

THESE FANTASTIC achievements represent only a small part of the scientific burrowings that makes the Bureau one of the world's important basic research centers. In its numerous laboratories, some 4,000 scientists work with perhaps the world's greatest collection of scientific apparatus. Their chief duty is to establish and maintain absolute standards of quality and quantity for America's manufacturers and consumers. Without the hundreds of standards developed by NBS in its 62-year history, mass production as we know it would be impossible. It is the standard-bearer of the nation for inches, pounds, volts, degrees, decibels, kilocycles, luminescence, soapiness, glossiness, glassiness and many others.

As early as 1821, President John Quincy Adams recognized the need for such standards. "A bushel basket in South Carolina," he said, "holds 68 cubic inches more than a bushel basket in New York. A pound of meat in Massachusetts is a quarter of an ounce lighter than a pound of meat in Maine." To standardize the units of quantity and quality, Congress in 1832 set up an Office of Weights and Measures. In 1901, this office became the National Bureau of Standards. Today there is virtually nothing in the world that NBS has not tested and set standards for. In addition, the Bureau conducts basic research in everything from atomic energy to zinc, develops new products for government and industry and tests the thousands of items purchased annually by Uncle Sam.

IN A CLOSELY guarded vault at its headquarters, a 550-acre rural tract near Gaithersburg, Md., NBS maintains a platinum-iridium cylinder as the absolute standard of weight. Periodically, laboratory and industrial weights are checked against this constant. To make sure the weight of the metal cylinder never varies, the Bureau takes great precautions. The vault insures that it will not be altered by temperature changes, moisture or dust, and when the cylinder is removed from the vault, the operator works by remote control behind a metal shield 10 feet away so his body heat will not affect it.

Measuring to an accuracy of one part in 10 million is equivalent to measuring the distance between Washington, D. C., and Philadelphia with an error of less than one inch! When such precision measurements are applied to small objects such as guidance gyroscopes and supercritical transistors, tolerances of a millionth of an inch are far too great. That margin of error in a moon rocket component, for instance, could cause the rocket to miss its mark by one thousand miles!

ROCKETS PROVIDE an excellent example of why such infinitesimal measurements are necessary. A space vehicle contains something more than a million individual components manufactured by 500 to 1,000 industrial plants scattered about the country. Unless each one uses the same yardstick of measurement, the chances of all the parts meshing together are nil.

Likewise, the production of automobile engines, television sets and thousands of other products are possible only because of precision measurements and exact standards. At NBS no factor is too slight and no labor too exacting in the establishment and maintenance of a standard. Indeed, the bureau never relaxes its efforts to establish more precise standards.

As the world's biggest buyer of commodities, Uncle Sam must know the durability and quality of his purchases. He, therefore, directs NBS to test everything from airplane engines and horseshoes to office equipment and automobile accessories. For example, more than 5,000 electric lamps, representative of those supplied for government use, are burned annually on the bureau's testing racks. The results assure the government that the lamps measure up to specifications and that Uncle Sam receives full value for his money.

IN ONE LABORATORY, bureau workers check some 125,000 clinical thermometer-smoothness of which never vary more than two-tenths of a degree are discarded. Numerous manufactured articles, such as electric irons, require smooth surfaces. NBS has established flatness standards the smoothness of which never vary more than a five-billionth of an inch.

At Uncle Sam's Laboratory it's routine to test how many launderings men's shirts can endure before they fall to shreds and how many miles a pair of shoes can be walked before the soles wear out. To carry on these tests the bureau constructs various contraptions, like an automatic walking machine that simulates several months of shoe service.

In a big wind tunnel bureau researchers conduct varied experiments that aid the efficient development and construction of automobiles, airplanes and even buildings. Before the erection of the Empire State Building a model of it was tested in this tunnel to find the effects high winds might have on it.

WORLD WAR II demonstrated the needless and tragic loss of life, time and money that results when the screw threads of one ally do not fit the bolts of another. NBS assisted England, Canada and the United States in standardizing nut and bolt threads. The costly lesson of World War II

They Fly a Plane on Four Ounces of Fuel

Granger Williams tunes up his World War I model of famed French fighter plane, the Nieuport, at Mile Square Airport, where club flies model aircraft.

GRANGER Williams scanned the sky over Fountain Valley and watched the windsock at Mile Square Airport as a southeast wind puffed it full of rushing air. Williams glanced over at his airplane, a bi-winged Nieuport with a candy striped nose. It shuddered in the wind even though it was parked on the runway.

Williams had already watched as Dick Riggs of Costa Mesa pulled back on the stick and lifted an all-metal delta-winged experimental aircraft off the asphalt runway. The aircraft had strained to get airborne, then went into a series of roller coaster dips and nose-dived into the brush. The shiny new aircraft was damaged extensively.

Granger Williams had $1,000 and five months work invested in his plane and knew that the wind would rip the silk fabric skin fitted tightly over the delicate wings. He didn't fly that day.

Others did, braving the wind and even a Marine helicopter hovering over Mile Square Airport on a photo reconnaissance mission on that Sunday afternoon. These civilian pilots had risked the wind before and after all the Marines did own the air strip.

THE PILOTS were more concerned that some youngster in the neighborhood might be playing with a toy walkie-talkie and use it to call for reinforcements in a play war at the same time their aircraft was in flight.

If the walkie-talkie got on the pilot's frequency, his aircraft would be in trouble. It would do two flips forward and one flip backwards, then go into a tail spin pulled rapidly downward toward the earth like a moth drawn to a flame.

If this happened, the pilot would fight the stick and hope the walkie-talkie broadcast would cease in time for him to regain control before the plunging aircraft pancaked against the earth. Radio interference could put the aircraft on a collision course because these pilots fly their planes with both feet planted solidly on the ground.

They are a new breed of barnstorming Sunday pilots in Orange County who get airborne thrills without leaving the ground.

Their excitement comes in getting their planes aloft for 10 or 15 minutes on four ounces of fuel.

THEY ARE members of the Garden Grove Radio Control Club. The planes they fly are radio-controlled models. The club, organized three years ago, has 128 members, and is one of the largest radio-control model airplane clubs in Southern California.

The club started with 10 members, all adults, and all with a mutual hobby—flying radio-controlled model aircraft. Members first took their noisy flights to neighborhood school grounds on the weekends but soon found out that the residents nearby lacked their enthusiasm for model flying.

"We kept promising to move," Louie Zienneker of Westminster, club president, recalls, "and we finally did as soon as the local police came around."

The nearest place the adults found for play with their toy airplanes and no complaints from neighbors was an abandoned airport in Chino. However, membership and interest in the club lagged with the long weekend drives to Chino.

A club member, Harold Crowl, an organ salesman when he isn't flying models, approached the Marines at El Toro and asked permission to use the Mile Square Airport—a Navy-abandoned air station built in World War II and now used as a practice field for Marine helicopters.

"SURPRISINGLY," Crowl relates, "the Marines said we could use the air strip on Sundays provided we obtained a $100,000 liability insurance policy. We didn't realize it at the time, but nobody had ever heard of such an insurance policy for toy airplanes."

The only company that would insure the club was Lloyd's of London. Even Lloyd's wondered about the authenticity of the request and thoroughly investigated the group to make sure it wasn't some sort of joke.

The club hasn't really established a firm beachhead on the Marines' air strip. "We are week-to-week tenants and must renew our request to use the strip every week," Zienneker says. "But don't get me wrong, the Marines have been extremely cooperative and this spot is secluded and ideal for our activities."

The big battle is still with the radio frequency the government has assigned radio-controlled aircraft.

THE GARDEN GROVE club is participating with radio control model airplane clubs from all over the United States in a lobby to convince the government to provide separate frequencies for radio-controlled flying. The clubs now share a Citizens Band frequency with everyone who has a radio, walkie-talkie or other communications instrument that isn't assigned to a "ham" or amateur licensed frequency. The results are sometimes disastrous when someone breaks in on the pilot's control of the aircraft.

The models these hobbyists fly are built from either commercial kits or from the modeler's own design. Most are constructed of balsa wood, covered with fine silk and doped for protection. Some of the club members have built models from fiberglass, styrofoam and even lightweight aluminum.

The models cost anywhere from $25 to $200 and even more if the owner wants to add the frills.

Three basic types of radio systems are used to fly models. They are:

Single Channel Control—The simplest form and requires only a transmitter and receiver. The transmitter puts out one signal each time the pilot presses a button. The receiver picks up the signal which operates either the rudder or the engine control. New equipment costs a model fan about $50.

Multi-Channel Control—A refinement of

He, therefore, directs NBS to test everything from airplane engines and horseshoes to office equipment and automobile accessories. For example, more than 5,000 electric lamps, representative of those supplied for government use, are burned annually on the bureau's testing racks. The results assure the government that the lamps measure up to specifications and that Uncle Sam receives full value for his money.

IN ONE LABORATORY, bureau workers check some 125,000 clinical thermometer-smoothness of which never vary more than two-tenths of a degree are discarded. Numerous manufactured articles, such as electric irons, require smooth surfaces. NBS has established flatness standards the smoothness of which never vary more than a five-billionth of an inch.

At Uncle Sam's Laboratory it's routine to test how many launderings men's shirts can endure before they fall to shreds and how many miles a pair of shoes can be walked before the soles wear out. To carry on these tests the bureau constructs various contraptions, like an automatic walking machine that simulates several months of shoe service.

WORLD WAR II demonstrated the needless and tragic loss of life, time and money that results when the screw threads of one ally do not fit the bolts of another. NBS assisted England, Canada and the United States in standardizing nut and bolt threads. The costly lesson of World War II

West's Drunkest Gun

By Bud Rosenthal

IT'S an oft-quoted axiom of show business that you're only as good as your last picture.

When a star is in a "blockbuster" (film industry jargon for a smash hit of gargantuan proportions) he rides the crest of world fame and acclaim; when his picture bombs, he wallows in the slough of despair.

A star, knowing the vicissitudes surrounding motion picture production, soon learns that the movie gods alternately smile and frown. Lee Marvin, who plays a dual role in Harold Hecht's "Cat Ballou," the wild, way-out Western that has been collecting rave notices and audience acclaim, is happily luxuriating in the swing of the movie wheel that currently sees him king of the hill. "Cat Ballou," a Columbia Pictures color release opening here shortly, also stars Jane Fonda, Michael Callan, Dwayne Hickman, Nat King Cole and Stubby Kaye.

DOUBLING UP in "Cat Ballou," the lean, growling-voiced star portrays Kid Shelleen, a comic, lovable, pathetic, broken-down desperado of the old frontier days who is only restored to his gunman's stature and sure-fire aim by sufficient swigs of alcohol, and Strawn, a black-hearted killer with a silver nose replacing his own which had been bitten off in a savage fight.

The double acting spree in "Cat Ballou" comes to Marvin on the heels of another colorful characterization, that of Bill Tenny, facing again all the mistakes of life from which he is trying to escape while a passenger on "Ship of Fools," Stanley Kramer's picturization of Katherine Anne Porter's celebrated best-selling novel, which Columbia will release this fall.

For Marvin, 1965 is the big year in his career; a year in which he appears in two extraordinary pictures back-to-back. His dual role in "Cat Ballou," for which he is collecting praise from coast to coast, has moved some Lee Marvin enthusiasts to predict an Academy Award in his future.

WITH ACCOLADES ringing in his ears, and "Cat Ballou" winning immense audience favor, Marvin, one of the most consistently-in-demand players in films and television, has finally hit full stride in his burgeoning career. Recognition has arrived slowly and quietly for Marvin, for which the actor is grateful.

"I wouldn't have had it any other way because I've had the opportunity to develop my craft," Marvin explained. "I feel that if I had come in slam, bang and made it immediately in movies and TV, I would have probably remained a frustrated one-type actor. But my anonymity of a sort in this business, simply being a working actor and getting on with it, has allowed me to experiment with a variety of roles."

"The slow growth for me into the big, big time was actually planned ahead. It was the idea of my agent, Meyer Mishkin. He believes in selectivity and, as far as I'm concerned, his taste is impeccable. Mishkin is one individual in the industry who knows how to read a script and discover its true potential. We functioned as a partnership in the choice of parts I eventually accepted. We talked everything over ahead. Often we argued when I was hot and vehement for a particular picture and Meyer didn't share my enthusiasm. He'd win me over and I'd discover that his perceptiveness was right."

MARVIN BELIEVES that the excitement of Hollywood creativity frequently suffers for the reason that many of the present era of stars and film makers have become too analytical.

"They over-examine everything to the point where the vital theatrical quality suffers that is so necessary to the well-being and success of a motion picture and its performances," Marvin went on. "Life is theatrical. Motion pictures therefore should be theatrical, as well as the people in them. Jack Lemmon, for one, has the correct idea when, at the start of every scene, as the camera is rolling, he says to himself: 'Magic time.' A great movie is magic entertainment, as is a great performance."

Marvin is practicing what he preaches.

They Fly a Plane on Four Ounces of Fuel

By BILL DUNCAN

GRANGER Williams scanned the sky over Fountain Valley and watched the wind-sock at Mile Square Airport as a southeast wind puffed it full of rushing air. Williams glanced over at his airplane, a bi-winged Nieuport with a candy striped nose. It shuddered in the wind even though it was parked on the runway.

Williams had already watched as Dick Riggs of Costa Mesa pulled back on the stick and lifted an all-metal delta-winged experimental aircraft off the asphalt runway. The aircraft had strained to get airborne, then went into a series of roller coaster dips and nose-dived into the brush. The shiny new aircraft was damaged extensively.

Granger Williams had $1,000 and five months work invested in his plane and knew that the wind would rip the silk fabric skin fitted tightly over the delicate wings. He didn't fly that day.

Others did, braving the wind and even a Marine helicopter hovering over Mile Square Airport on a photo reconnaissance mission on that Sunday afternoon. These civilian pilots had risked the wind before and after all the Marines did own the air strip.

THE PILOTS were more concerned that some youngster in the neighborhood might be playing with a toy walkie-talkie and use it to call for reinforcements in a play war at the same time their aircraft was in flight.

Flight line at Mile Square Airport where more than 100 model airplane pilots gather each Sunday to fly their radio-controlled miniature aircraft.

Sunday, August 15, 1965

Photos by the Author

Granger Williams tunes up his World War I model of famed French fighter plane, the Nieuport, at Mile Square Airport, where club flies model aircraft.

If the walkie-talkie got on the pilot's frequency, his aircraft would be in trouble. It would do two flips forward and one flip backwards, then go into a tail spin pulled rapidly downward toward the earth like a moth drawn to a flame.

If this happened, the pilot would fight the stick and hope the walkie-talkie broadcast would cease in time for him to regain control before the plunging aircraft pancaked against the earth. Radio interference could put the aircraft on a collision course because these pilots fly their planes with both feet planted solidly on the ground.

They are a new breed of barnstorming Sunday pilots in Orange County who get airborne thrills without leaving the ground.

Their excitement comes in getting their planes aloft for 10 or 15 minutes on four ounces of fuel.

THEY ARE members of the Garden Grove Radio Control Club. The planes they fly are radio-controlled models. The club, organized three years ago, has 128 members, and is one of the largest radio-control model airplane clubs in Southern California.

The club started with 10 members, all adults, and all with a mutual hobby—flying radio-controlled model aircraft. Members first took their noisy flights to neighborhood school grounds on the weekends but soon found out that the residents nearby lacked their enthusiasm for model flying.

"We kept promising to move," Louie Zienneker of Westminster, club president, recalls, "and we finally did as soon as the local police came around."

The nearest place the adults found for play with their toy airplanes and no complaints from neighbors was an abandoned airport in Chino. However, membership and interest in the club lagged with the long weekend drives to Chino.

A club member, Harold Crowl, an organ salesman when he isn't flying models, approached the Marines at El Toro and asked permission to use the Mile Square Airport—a Navy-abandoned air station built in World War II and now used as a practice field for Marine helicopters.

"SURPRISINGLY" Crowl relates, "the Marines said we could use the air strip on Sundays provided we obtained a $100,000 liability insurance policy. We didn't realize it at the time, but nobody had ever heard of such an insurance policy for toy airplanes."

The only company that would insure the club was Lloyd's of London. Even Lloyd's wondered about the authenticity of the request and thoroughly investigated the group to make sure it wasn't some sort of joke.

The club hasn't really established a firm beachhead on the Marines' air strip. "We are week-to-week tenants and must renew our request to use the strip every week," Zienneker says. "But don't get me wrong, the Marines have been extremely cooperative and this spot is secluded and ideal for our activities."

The big battle is still with the radio frequency the government has assigned radio-controlled aircraft.

THE GARDEN GROVE club is participating with radio control model airplane clubs from all over the United States in a lobby to convince the government to provide separate frequencies for radio-controlled flying. The clubs now share a Citizens' Band frequency with everyone who has a radio, walkie-talkie or other communications instrument that isn't assigned to a "ham" or amateur licensed frequency. The results are sometimes disastrous when someone breaks in on the pilot's control of the aircraft.

The models these hobbyists fly are built from either commercial kits or from the modeler's own design. Most are constructed of balsa wood, covered with fine silk and doped for protection. Some of the club members have built models from fiberglass, styrofoam and even lightweight aluminum.

The models cost anywhere from $25 to $200 and even more if the owner wants to add the frills.

Three basic types of radio systems are used to fly models. They are:

Single Channel Control—The simplest form and requires only a transmitter and receiver. The transmitter puts out one signal each time the pilot presses a button. The receiver picks up the signal which operates either the rudder or the engine control. New equipment costs a model fan about $50.

Multi-Channel Control—A refinement of

LINKING FORMAL elegance in some areas and complete informality in others, an atmosphere of happiness is built into the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Franks and family, 1052 Ladera Ave. The qualities of the dwelling obviously result from the personalities of the owners, but a big assist came from Stanley Goldin, the architect who designed the residence in keeping with the wishes of those who were to occupy it.

While approach to the home is intriguing, the entry intensifies the pleasure of a visit. The purpose is to lead the visitor straight ahead to the family room, but there is much to give pause for inspection, such as a Santa Maria rock planter and pillar, and a large mirror. The family room is the hub of activity, luxuriously and informally. There is plenty of room there, a walk-in bar with stools standing by, a fireplace, a player piano and an organ. TV rests behind a paneled wall where storage also is a feature. Rock from the hallway extends here to reach from floor to ceiling and provide for a cascade of water. One end of the room is of glass, doors opening to a carpeted outside patio.

An air of old-fashioned formality marks the dining room which is efficiently located in the over-all plan. The kitchen is an epic in thoughtful arrangement and adjoins both dining room and a large dinette. The back of the family room bar is in the dinette. Two large double doors, with shelves, open to a pantry. A service porch is large

Happiness Here
No Happenstance

Smooth and serene, there's nothing left to desire in this luxurious living room. While the many facets of this delightful home are evident, two stand out: Architectural design and interior planning.

By STELLA GEORGE

—Staff Photos by BDB SHUMWAY

According to season, the manzanita "tree" changes decoration. The view is from dining area across kitchen to family room.

LINKING FORMAL elegance in some areas and complete informality in others, an atmosphere of happiness is built into the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Franks and family, 1052 Ladera Ave. The qualities of the dwelling obviously result from the personalities of the owners, but a big assist came from Stanley Goldin, the architect who designed the residence in keeping with the wishes of those who were to occupy it.

While approach to the home is intriguing, the entry intensifies the pleasure of a visit. The purpose is to lead the visitor straight ahead to the family room, but there is much to give pause for inspection, such as a Santa Maria rock planter and pillar, and a large mirror. The family room is the hub of activity, luxuriously and informally. There is plenty of room there, a walk-in bar with stools standing by, a fireplace, a player piano and an organ. TV rests behind a paneled wall where storage also is a feature. Rock from the hallway extends here to reach from floor to ceiling and provide for a cascade of water. One end of the room is of glass, doors opening to a carpeted outside patio.

An air of old-fashioned formality marks the dining room which is efficiently located in the over-all plan. The kitchen is an epic in thoughtful arrangement and adjoins both dining room and a large dinette. The back of the family room bar is in the dinette. Two large double doors, with shelves, open to a pantry. A service porch is large

COIN ROUNDUP

Tokens of Value

By Maurice M. Gould

COIN COLLECTING, as we know it today, would be threatened if the Bible Bill, proposed by Sen. Alan Bible, D-Nev., and backed by four other Senators, became law.

Among the features of this bill are a $10,000 fine or jail sentence if coin collections are used as loan collateral, or if coins are bought, sold or traded, except at their original face value.

The only exception would be the rare coins listed by the government to be of numismatic value. Federal officials have been notoriously ignorant in the past, as shown by their selection of which foreign gold is of numismatic value. Some of their decisions have been downright ridiculous.

Coin collectors are now regulated in the importation or purchasing of gold coins, and it is the Office of Domestic Gold and Silver Operation which decides if coins are rare enough for importation. Even then a special license is required.

THE BIBLE BILL would also make it illegal to mail any coins or coin collections outside of the United States. And there is no doubt but that other countries would retaliate, ending an excellent international relationship of friendship through mutual hobby interests.

Sen. Bible blames coin collectors and dealers for coin shortages, but he does not take into account the tremendous increase in population, vending machines, sales taxes, pay telephones, etc., and the millions of dollars of American change which circulates across the Canadian border.

Obverse, reverse of 1820 Northwest token.

These are the culprits which are causing the coin shortages, and surveys have been made showing that this is the real reason for the dearth of small change.

A national group has been formed, named The United Coin Collectors Alliance, with Chester A. Krause, Iola, Wis., the director of communications. Literature and additional information may be obtained from him by writing directly. This group is represented by a Washington attorney.

This writer urges coin collectors to write your Senator and Congressman immediately about the Bible Bill (S-2912).

ONE OF THE rarest Tokens of interest to both Canadians and United States collectors alike, is the Northwest Company Token of 1820.

This company operated in an area covered by the Northwest States (U. S.) and the Southwest Area of Canada. The tokens were used by the company for the Indians, who brought their furs into the trading post.

These Tokens usually come holed, as the Indians would carry them on a string or leather thong. There is only one specimen known in perfect condition. They are extremely rare and are now listed in both the U. S. and Canadian catalogs.

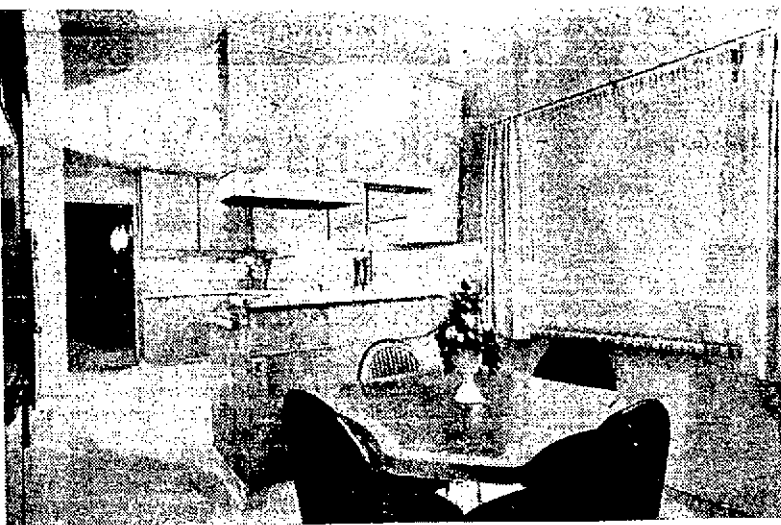

The obverse has the legend, TOKEN, 1820, with bust; the reverse says, NORTHWEST COMPANY, and depicts a beaver, which was common in the fur trade.

This token catalogs at $200 to $1,000, depending on condition.

To order the new "Coins of Special Value" booklet, send 50 cents to COIN ROUNDUP, in care of Southland Magazine, Independent, Press-Telegram, 604 Pine Ave., Long Beach, Calif. 90812. Please allow three weeks for delivery of the booklet.

enough to accommodate a desk and offers entry to a bath that serves swimmers from the pool or as a guest bath for the extra bedroom which boasts twin sofa beds.

A hallway leads from family room to the other bedrooms and is skylighted (with electric light at night). The master bedroom views patio and pool and has dressing room and bath.

Sons Freddie and Johnny have rooms adjoining a large bath.

COLLECT SCHOOL CLASSICS in COLOR

It's unlikely that anything can replace the classics when it comes to back-to-school wardrobe. Skirts and sweaters, pants of various lengths, warm coat are indispensable for students from grammar through graduate school. Does that mean that fashion-conscious ladies must look the same this year as they did last? Not at all! Color has come along in a big way to update the classics for Fall '65.

Plaids are brighter, bolder, and come in more striking, unusual colors. Sweaters to go with plaid skirts or pants are likely, this year, to pick up one of the more offbeat colors in the plaid.

Coats also take a long stride away from the ubiquitous classic colors—in the case of coats, not everything is camel's hair. The smooth fur-look piles and the long hair deep piles in emphatic colors are most likely to be worn by the most noticed girls on campus.

Not only are clothes themselves more colorful this year, but the accessories that go with them really turn on the brights. Wild, wonderful stockings are on their way to becoming classics in their own right, and they go with everything from Bermuda shorts to date dresses. Even the very youngest ladies choose their knee socks in shaggy textures and out-of-the-ordinary shades. Knit hats, gloves and mittens, too, are vividly making their contribution to any really new looking outfits.

Vitality sums up the look of this year's back-to-school classics. Colors are bright, unusual. Reds are deeply pinked cherry tones or rosy shades with a touch of blue. Blues are grayed to pastel subtlety or greened to peacock or turquoise brightness. Fabrics are wrinkle resistant and crisp looking. Here, two perennial classics are given new interpretations. Skirt and sweater by Newport Mills. Updated sailor dress by Sylvia White.

COIN ROUNDUP

Tokens of Value

By Maurice M. Gould

COIN COLLECTING, as we know it today, would be threatened if the Bible Bill, proposed by Sen. Alan Bible, D-NeV., and backed by four other Senators, became law.

Among the features of this bill are a $10,000 fine or jail sentence if coin collections are used as loan collateral, or if coins are bought, sold or traded, except at their original face value.

The only exception would be the rare coins listed by the government to be of numismatic value. Federal officials have been notoriously ignorant in the past, as shown by their selection of which foreign gold is of numismatic value. Some of their decisions have been downright ridiculous.

Coin collectors are now regulated in the importation or purchasing of gold coins, and it is the Office of Domestic Gold and Silver Operation which decides if coins are rare enough for importation. Even then a special license is required.

THE BIBLE BILL would also make it illegal to mail any coins or coin collections outside of the United States. And there is no doubt but that other countries would retaliate, ending an excellent international relationship of friendship through mutual hobby interests.

Sen. Bible blames coin collectors and dealers for coin shortages, but he does not take into account the tremendous increase in population, vending machines, sales taxes, pay telephones, etc., and the millions of dollars of American change which circulates across the Canadian border.

Obverse, reverse of 1820 Northwest token.

These are the culprits which are causing the coin shortages, and surveys have been made showing that this is the real reason for the dearth of small change.

A national group has been formed, named The United Coin Collectors Alliance, with Chester A. Krause, Iola, Wis., the director of communications. Literature and additional information may be obtained from him by writing directly. This group is represented by a Washington attorney.

This writer urges coin collectors to write your Senator and Congressman immediately about the Bible Bill (S-2912).

ONE OF THE rarest Tokens of interest to both Canadians and United States collectors alike, is the Northwest Company Token of 1820.

This company operated in an area covered by the Northwest States (U. S.) and the Southwest Area of Canada. The tokens were used by the company for the Indians, who brought their furs into the trading post.

These Tokens usually come holed, as the Indians would carry them on a string or leather thong. There is only one specimen known in perfect condition. They are extremely rare and are now listed in both the U. S. and Canadian catalogs.

The obverse has the legend, TOKEN, 1820, with bust; the reverse says, NORTHWEST COMPANY, and depicts a beaver, which was common in the fur trade. This token catalogs at $200 to $1,000, depending on condition.

To order the new "Coins of Special Value" booklet, send 50 cents to COIN ROUNDUP, in care of Southland Magazine, Independent, Press-Telegram, 604 Pine Ave., Long Beach, Calif. 90812. Please allow three weeks for delivery of the booklet.

Wine-Poached Trout

Trout, poached in wine and served with strawberries, mint and sour cream dressing, is delicious. How to make this interesting dish is told below.

By Mildred K. Flanary
Southland Magazine Home Economics Editor

WINE has a special talent for improving the flavor of fish. It modifies the strong flavor of some types, accents the bland flavor of others. Trout, mild and succulent, falls in the latter class. With it, a dry white wine, used both for cooking and serving, works miracles.

When fish is served cold, as this Wine Poached Trout should be, it needs plenty of seasoning to make it distinctive. Therefore, the trout is first poached in a wine and herb broth, then cooled and skinned. A light, flavorful wine such as Rhine wine, Sauterne or Chablis will be a good choice. The recommended dressing—sour cream, avocado, onion and lemon—is rich but delicate. Add a garnish of fresh mint and strawberries, and glasses of the same white wine, well chilled, for a delightful meal.

Wine Poached Trout

- 1 cup Rhine Wine or other white dinner wine
- 1 cup chicken broth
- 1/2 teaspoon dried dill
- 1 teaspoon seasoned salt
- 3 thin slices onion
- 1 sprig fresh mint or rosemary
- 1 sprig parsley
- 1 tablespoon wine vinegar
- 4 medium sized trout, heads removed
- Watercress
- Fresh strawberries and lemon garnish
- Sour cream dressing
- Measure wine, broth, dill, salt, onion, mint (or rosemary), parsley and vinegar into a pan large enough to hold the trout. Bring to a boil and simmer 3 or 4 minutes. Place trout in stock and poach gently 5 minutes or just until fish flakes easily. Let trout cool in liquid. Remove skin from trout, onion, mint and parsley from poaching liquid. Chill fish in liquid. Serve fish cold on bed of watercress with fresh strawberries and lemon garnish. Serve with Sour Cream Dressing. Serves 4.

Sour Cream Dressing

Soften 1 teaspoon plain gelatin in 1/4 cup white dinner wine; dissolve by placing over hot water. Cut 1 small avocado in half; remove seed and skin. Mash fruit, then blend with 1 cup dairy sour cream, 2 tablespoons finely chopped green onion, 2 teaspoons lemon juice and salt to taste. Cover and chill. Makes about 1 1/4 cups.

| White Part               |                      |
| 1 1/4 cup egg whites            | 1/2 cup flour        |
| 1 cup AND 2 tbsps. cream tartar | 1 tsp. vanilla       |
| Yellow Part              |                      |
| 6 egg yolks                     | 1/2 cup orange juice |
| 1/2 cup flour                   |                      |

Sift flour once, then measure and sift 4 times. Put egg whites on platter and beat until foamy, then add salt and cream tartar, then beat stiff, but not dry. Carefully fold in sugar. Divide whites into two parts. To one part fold in 1/2 cup cup flour and 1 teaspoon vanilla. To the other part fold in 6 beaten egg yolks and 1/2 cup flour and 1/2 teaspoon orange juice. Put by spoonful (in marble style) in an ungreased angel food pan. Bake 50 or 60 minutes in slow oven 300 degrees F. Invert pan and allow to cool 1 hour before removing. # COLLECT SCHOOL CLASSICS in COLOR

It's unlikely that anything can replace the classics when it comes to back-to-school wardrobe. Skirts and sweaters, pants of various lengths, warm coat are indispensable for students from grammar through graduate school. Does that mean that fashion-conscious ladies must look the same this year as they did last? Not at all! Color has come along in a big way to update the classics for Fall '65.

Plaids are brighter, bolder, and come in more striking, unusual colors. Sweaters to go with plaid skirts or pants are likely, this year, to pick up one of the more offbeat colors in the plaid.

Coats also take a long stride away from the ubiquitous classic colors—in the case of coats, not everything is camel's hair. The smooth fur-look piles and the long hair deep piles in emphatic colors are most likely to be worn by the most noticed girls on campus.

Not only are clothes themselves more colorful this year, but the accessories that go with them really turn on the brights. Wild, wonderful stockings are on their way to becoming classics in their own right, and they go with everything from Bermuda shorts to date dresses. Even the very youngest ladies choose their knee socks in shaggy textures and out-of-the-ordinary shades. Knit hats, gloves and mittens, too, are vividly making their contribution to any really new looking outfits.

Vitality sums up the look of this year's back-to-school classics. Colors are bright, unusual. Reds are deeply pinked cherry tones or rosy shades with a touch of blue. Blues are grayed to pastel subtlety or greened to peacock or turquoise brightness. Fabrics are wrinkle resistant and crisp looking. Here, two perennial classics are given new interpretations. Skirt and sweater by Newport Mills. Updated sailor dress by Sylvia White.

MISS RULE: Kindly inform us on FLINN, O'FLYNN — H. A., A.F., R.O., Long Beach.

FLINN and O'FLYNN names were initiated in Ireland as O'Flionn, translated from Gaelic as "sons of the red-haired one." Cork and Kerry branches of this clan are traced to Carbery Musc, the clan head in AD 158. This makes the O'Flionn among the first owners of a surname in western Europe. Other clan branches were in Roscommon and Antrim in old Ireland. O'Flionn was modernized to Flynn and Flinn in the 1500s. The family armorial shield is blue, emblazoned with three black stag deer heads on a silver stripe across the top.

MISS RULE: What is the background of GOHS? — C.H., Long Beach.

GOHS had its beginning in medieval Germany. The root word "Godisu" referred to "young, divinely inspired one."

MISS RULE: Please analyze McCULLOCH, McCULLOUGH, McCOULOUGH. — W.M., R.M., Long Beach; J.M., South Gate; J.M., Torrance.

McCULLOCH and the variations McCullough, McCoulough may be either Irish or Scottish. In Ireland the Gaelic source "MacColla" denoted "man with the large neck," an unusual personal description. In Scotland the origin was MacCullach, for "son of the man with a lion's strength." The Scottish coat-of-arms for these names has a pattern of narrow diagonal crossed red stripes on an ermine shield. Samuel McCullough or McCulloch owned 160 acres of land in York County, Pa., in 1765.

Museum of the Home

By Bob Loeffelbein

THE all-consuming hobby of 15 years has just been parlayed by Mrs. Pierina LoPiccolo into the only museum of its kind in the world—the Home and Family Life Museum in Burbank. It is full of items that today's children have never seen, such as flatirons, churns, water pumps and tin tubs—yet were in daily use only a generation and a half ago. It is this part of the U. S. history and culture, centering around the home life, that Mrs. LoPiccolo wants to perpetuate.

Authentic costumes of the period adorn mannikins in room containing early furnishings.

School groups are welcomed for guided tours, so these children may see how their predecessors lived, learning from sight recognition.

ONE ENTIRE ROOM has been set aside to highlight those items the pioneers brought west with them in the covered wagon era. Women's tools include spinning wheels, butter churns, foot-pedaled sewing machines. In one corner is a desk made in 1700, so heavy one person can hardly lift a corner of it. In another is a collection of fancy walking stick heads and cravat stickpins, neither of which the earlier day gentleman would be caught in public without.

Mural-sized reproductions of Remington paintings of the westward trek cover the Western Room's walls. Holding down a wall section in this room is also one of the original Pony Express route maps, and copies of articles telling of these earlyday mailmen. One clipping advertises for new recruits in this way: "Wanted! Young, skinny, wiry fellows not over 18. Must be expert riders, willing to risk death daily. Orphans preferred. Wages $25 a week."

the site of a famous battle in 1485. The Bosworth armorial shield is red, decorated with a fur-covered cross. Edward Bosworth and his wife came to America in 1634. He died upon reaching Boston; his widow and children lived at Hingham, Mass.

MISS RULE: Kindly inform us on F.L.I.N.N., O'FLYNN, — H. A., A.F., R.O., Long Beach.

FLINN and O'FLYNN names were initiated in Ireland as O'Flionn, translated from Gaelic as "sons of the red-haired one." Cork and Kerry branches of this clan are traced to Carbery Musc, the clan head in AD 158. This makes the O'Flionns among the first owners of a surname in western Europe. Other clan branches were in Roscommon and Antrim in old Ireland. O'Flionn was modernized to Flynn and Flinn in the 1500s. The family armorial shield is blue, emblazoned with three black stag deer heads on a silver stripe across the top.

MISS RULE: What is the background of GOHS? — C.H., Long Beach.

GOHS had its beginning in medieval Germany. The root word "Godin" referred to "young, divinely inspired one."

MISS RULE: Please analyze McCULLOCH, McCULLOUGH, McCOLLOUGH. — W.M., R.M., Long Beach; J.M., South Gate; J.M., Torrance.

McCULLOCH and the variations McCullough, McCoulough may be either Irish or Scottish. In Ireland the Gaelic source "MacColla" denoted "man with the large neck," an unusual personal description. In Scotland the origin was MacCullach, for "son of the man with a boar's strength." The Scottish coat-of-arms for these names has a pattern of narrow diagonal crossed red stripes on an ermine shield. Samuel McCullough or McCulloch owned 160 acres of land in York County, Pa., in 1765.

rescue his mother, and sentenced to life imprisonment.

There are accounts of drivers who crashed through the walls, escapees who leaped or swam to the West, and brutal slayings of fugitives by East Berlin police, but perhaps the most suspenseful episodes were in the tunnels, dug by idealists such as Seidel, or mercenaries who got high fees.

The wall was put up because more and more East Berliners "voted with their feet." It has been tightened and strengthened but the escapes continued because, as President Kennedy told West Berlin, "Freedom was indivisible. When one man was enslaved, who was free?"

PERTINENT information on requirements for the Peace Corps, and service in the Corps is contained in "OPPORTUNITIES IN THE PEACE CORPS, A Fact Booklet" by the public affairs staff of the Peace Corps., under the editorship of Dr. S. Norman Feingold, national director B'nai B'rith Vocational Service. (Copies may be obtained from B'nai B'rith Vocational Service 1640 Rhode Island Ave., N.W., Washington, D.C., 35 cents.)

"THE THIRD SIDE OF THE COIN" by Francis Clifford (Coward - McCann, $3.95) is a gripping novel of suspense about a man on the run. Tony Pascoe, teller in a London airport branch bank, steals 9,000 pounds, another man's passport and a new life.

TOM WOLFE, whom some readers consider to be the best contemporary writer in America, zeros in on new, exotic forms of status-seeking in "THE KANDY KOLORED TANGERINE FLAKE STREAMLINE BABY" (Farrar, Straus and Giroux, $5.50).

MULTI-DIMENSIONED F. Scott Fitzgerald is considered as a man and an artist—and at the same time a vivid portrait is presented of America in the first half of this century—in "F. SCOTT FITZGERALD: A Critical Portrait" by Henry Dan Piper (Holt, Rinehart and Winston, $9.50).

This work incorporates research done on Fitzgerald, re-evaluates all of his writings and places them in the context of his personal drama. His childhood motivations, the painful cultivation of his style, the inner conflicts that stemmed from his dual role as a serious and a popular writer are appraised. So are his years in Hollywood.

H. L. Mencken, Edmund Wilson, George Jean Nathan and Ring Lardner enrich the pages of the study.

PUBLICATION of "CLASSICAL GREECE" launches a major new Time-Life Books series called the "Great Ages of Man." Written by the Oxonian classicist C. M. Bowra, this initial volume examines Greek culture from 1200 B.C. to 323 B.C., with emphasis on the flourishing Sixth and Fifth Centuries. It has 130 full-color and black-and-white photographs. The series will run to 20 volumes, a new volume published every two months. (Time-Life Books, 540 N. Michigan Ave., Chicago, $3.95)

Other new Time-Life Books: "EASTERN EUROPE" by Godfrey Blunden ($2.95), compact history, informative guide and up-to-date appraisal of Poland, Czechoslovakia and Hungary, and "THE SCIENTIST" by Henry Margenau and David Bergamini ($3.95) the personality of the scientist, his style of inquiry, problems and his effect on the man of today and the future.

DAN LEVIN spent five years in research, much in the archives of the Soviet Union, to write "STORMY PETREL: The Life of Maxim Gorky" (Appleton-Century, $7.95), a biography and critical study which fills a serious gap in knowledge of the Russian writer and revolutionist (1868-1936). Gorky's name lives in literature as the author of "Foma Gordeyev," "The Mother," "Chelkash" and "The Lower Depths" and in history for his role in the Russian revolution.

OF THE countless heroes who risked their lives to help thousands of East Berliners escape to the West, Harry Seidel, who chose freedom rather than a place on the Communists' Olympic bicycle team, was the most renowned.

"THE BERLIN WALL" (Doubleday, $4.95) by Pierre Galante, is the history of hundreds of escapes and many failures but throughout the exciting pages is the story of Seidel, who became known as the Pimpernel of the Wall.

After his own escape, he brought his young wife and baby through one of the many tunnels he and his cohorts had dug but, eventually, was captured trying to

Museum of the Home

By Bob Loeffelbein

THE all-consuming hobby of 15 years has just been parlayed by Mrs. Pierina LoPiccolo into the only museum of its kind in the world—the Home and Family Life Museum in Burbank. It is full of items that today's children have never seen, such as flatirons, churns, water pumps and tin tubs—yet were in daily use only a generation and a half ago. It is this part of the U. S. history and culture, centering around the home life, that Mrs. LoPiccolo wants to perpetuate.

Authentic costumes of the period adorn mannikins in room containing early furnishings.

School groups are welcomed for guided tours, so these children may see how their predecessors lived, learning from sight recognition.

ONE ENTIRE ROOM has been set aside to highlight those items the pioneers brought west with them in the covered wagon era. Women's tools include spinning wheels, butter churns, foot-pedaled sewing machines. In one corner is a desk made in 1700, so heavy one person can hardly lift a corner of it. In another is a collection of fancy walking stick heads and cravat stickpins, neither of which the earlier day gentleman would be caught in public without.

Mural-sized reproductions of Remington paintings of the westward trek cover the Western Room's walls. Holding down a wall section in this room is also one of the original Pony Express route maps, and copies of articles telling of these earlyday mailmen. One clipping advertises for new recruits in this way: "Wanted! Young, skinny, wiry fellows not over 18. Must be expert riders, willing to risk death daily. Orphans preferred. Wages $25 a week."

Displays of early-day American family life fill the museum of Mrs. Pierina LoPiccolo.

Burbank's Home Museum

Another special room, called the Founder's Room, has been glassed off, and represents the city of Burbank's specific history. Enclosed is a complete scene, with manikins modeling fashions of the day, of a parlor at the time Burbank became a city. The furnishings of the room came from the Burbank family home.

SOME SPECIAL displays are so unique they may not even be seen in state-owned museums, such as the vintage 1700 collection of hand-wrought iron door and shelf handles, or the first pictures of movie making from 1914, or the complete early day chapel which has been rebuilt right inside the museum. The chapel is complete to stained glass doors, early Psalms books, old pews and the pump organ.

Other sections of this unique museum include the kitchen, the sewing room, the bedroom, the nursery and the living room, and each has been furnished completely as they would have been in the early 1800s. All the items—and there must be 15,000 individual items—were used by American forefathers to make their homes and families real units of love and living. History is carried back to 1607, with copies of letters tracing the first marriages at Jamestown.

Mrs. LoPiccolo's early life was spent in traveling back and forth across the United States as a professional singer. She became interested in collecting early Americana then. After that, it became only natural she would want to study up on her acquisitions and their histories. She started frequenting libraries during stops between train schedules and singing performances. Soon librarians all across the country got to know her and started helping her acquire and learn. Her Pony Express map came from one such source.

When the time came to stop her roaming life and gather all her historical pieces together, she found they overflowed her home from basement to attic, as well as the garage and several friends' homes and some borrowed storage places. The only thing left to do was to found her own museum! So she did.

Cracked Teeth

By Ben Zinser

Southland Magazine Medical-Science Writer

SOME PERSONS like to bite hard on food and thus are vulnerable to a condition called "cracked tooth syndrome."

For as teeth grow more brittle with age, they crack. Main symptom: discomfort to chewing pressure.

Many cracked teeth are sensitive to pressure, cold or heat. Some just ache.

Dr. Caryl E. Cameron of Northwestern University Dental School says such hard bite is "unnecessary. Yet he found many of these patients "took pleasure" in biting hard.

To prevent further cracking or possible pulp or nerve exposure, a crown must be placed on the cracked tooth, Dr. Cameron says in the Journal of the American Dental Association.

A MEDICAL newsletter distributed to physicians says doctors should think of the new experimental DMSO whenever they see unexplained skin injuries.

The Medical Letter reports that commercial-grade DMSO, a solvent, is being obtained by many non-medical persons and used to treat various ailments without medical supervision.

Drug-grade DMSO is still classed as an experimental medication and is not yet available for general prescription.

DMSO, short for dimethyl sulfoxide, is said to be highly effective in the treatment of bursitis and various other disorders because of its pain-killing and anti-inflammation properties.

The Medical Letter says that repeated topical application of DMSO can dehydrate and defat the skin to bring about dryness and flaking.

POISONING by wax crayons is uncommon because of their extreme indigestibility and consequent lack of absorption.

Yet certain crayons pose a hazard because they may contain the dyes parnitraniline or benzidine. Crayons which may contain these dyes are those which are orange, orange-red, yellow or violet.

A report in British Medical Journal says that children have been known to turn blue after eating such crayons. Other symptoms: headache, mental confusion, nausea and dizziness.

AN ORAL contraceptive pill, Enovid, has proved extremely effective in controlling the itching associated with a skin ailment known as Fox-Fordyce disease.

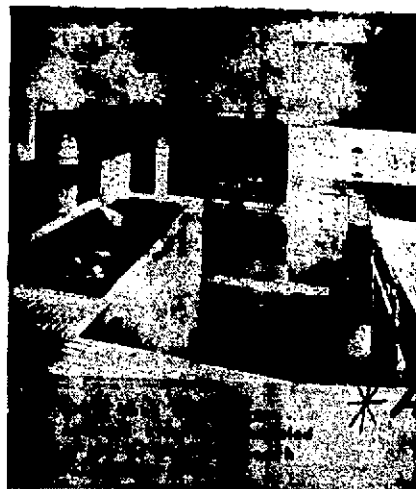

The ailment, for which no specific treatment is available, is that in which specialized sweat gland pores are closed, and normal secretions are retained in the skin. The retention usually involves the sweat glands in the underarm area.

Skin specialists at Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore, found that symptoms appeared connected to the reproductive cycle of female patients.

Symptoms, such as skin itching and skin eruptions, flared up during menstruation but practically disappeared during pregnancy.

Enovid was given to one patient for more than a year, during which time skin eruptions disappeared and the itchiness subsided completely.

(This column frequently reports advances in medical research and opinions of medical authorities not yet accepted in general practice.)

The chapel is complete to stained glass doors, early Psalms books, old pews and the pump organ.

Other sections of this unique museum include the kitchen, the sewing room, the bedroom, the nursery and the living room, and each has been furnished completely as they would have been in the early 1800s. All the items—and there must be 15,000 individual items—were used by American forefathers to make their homes and families real units of love and living. History is carried back to 1607, with copies of letters tracing the first marriages at Jamestown.

Mrs. LoPiccolo's early life was spent in traveling back and forth across the United States as a professional singer. She became interested in collecting early Americana then. After that, it became only natural she would want to study up on her acquisitions and their histories. She started frequenting libraries during stops between train schedules and singing performances. Soon librarians all across the country got to know her and started helping her acquire and learn. Her Pony Express map came from one such source.

When the time came to stop her roaming life and gather all her historical pieces together, she found they overflowed her home from basement to attic, as well as the garage and several friends' homes and some borrowed storage places. The only thing left to do was to found her own museum! So she did.

PET PARADE

Curiosity... That's a Cat!

By Eleanor Avery Price

THERE are those who do not believe in research using animals, but whether you do or not, you would still be interested in Senate Bill 1071 (called House Bill 5647), or the Clark and Cleveland Bill, because it is intended to halt any cruelty to animals used in laboratories, medical schools, and industrial research centers.

A great many researchers do meet a standard of humane treatment, but others violate it. Hence the need for guide rules. Proposed legislation includes these points:

—Unannounced inspection by qualified inspectors of animal laboratories, quarters and records of those using animals.

—Individual licensing by government authorities of any scientist wanting to use live, vertebrate animals.

—A provision that animals suffering enduring pain be mercifully and painlessly eliminated rather than being permitted to linger on or be used again.

—Absolute humane care and housing.

—A provision that student work must be painless. (I would also require that students could only study animals under the careful supervision of a qualified, humane scientist.)

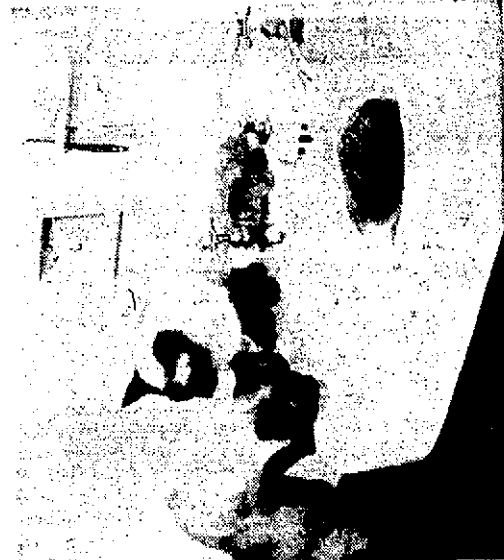

LEGISLATION similar to the above has been in effect in Great Britain since 1876, almost 90 years, and medical progress has not been affected. There can be no reason for an idealistic nation such as ours to condone suffering of animals.

Since animals cannot speak up for their rights, we must do it for them. Write to your congressman and senator urging passing of the humane bill. Also write to the Society for Animal Protective Legislation, 745 Fifth Ave., New York, N.Y. 10022.

Don't wait for this bill to pass, however, before you get down to thinking about your own pet. If you are painting, keep the pet away from the fumes, as they can make him very ill. Study insecticide labels used in the garden, as pets can get sick, even die, from poisoned soil on their feet. If you use a pet repellent to keep your pet or stray animals off your refuse barrels, use safe ones. Some people use bleach as they think the odor will keep animals away. Oddly enough, cats often are drawn to this odor.

will not be repeated in any future conflict.

The growth of the National Bureau of Standards has been phenomenal. At its inception in 1901, it maintained about two standards—the meter and the kilogram. Today the bureau maintains some 700 scientific standards. Fifty-five years ago NBS expended only $250,000 each year. Now its yearly expenditures run in the neighborhood of $40 million.

NBS expenditures, however, are small, indeed, compared to the rich dividends they pay in new developments and increased efficiency that mean a higher standard of living for the American people. Today there is scarcely a field of scientific investigation or a human activity that the bureau's work does not touch in one way or another.

PRACTICALLY every product from an automobile to a wristwatch is manufactured under NBS standards. The grocer and the druggist measure and weigh by standards maintained by the bureau. The filling of your teeth, the luggage you carry on a trip, the baseball your son plays with, and the paint you use on your house are among the items checked for you by NBS. Every time you set your watch, strike a match, flip a light switch, or perform a hundred other daily tasks, the work of NBS affects you directly or indirectly.

Whatever you do, wherever you go in the United States, NBS findings influence your life. The red and green "stop and go" lights, the chrome yellow school bus, the wait-hour meter used to measure your electric bill, safety devices in your car, in airplanes, in your home—all are based on tests, standards and discoveries made at Uncle Sam's Laboratory.

Cracked Teeth

By Ben Zinser

Southland Magazine Medical-Science Writer

SOME PERSONS like to bite hard on food and thus are vulnerable to a condition called "cracked tooth syndrome."

For as teeth grow more brittle with age, they crack. Main symptom: discomfort to chewing pressure.

Many cracked teeth are sensitive to pressure, cold or heat. Some just ache.

Dr. Caryl E. Cameron of Northwestern University Dental School says such hard bite is unnecessary. Yet he found many of these patients "took pleasure" in biting hard.

To prevent further cracking or possible pulp or nerve exposure, a crown must be placed on the cracked tooth, Dr. Cameron says in the Journal of the American Dental Association.

A MEDICAL newsletter distributed to physicians says doctors should think of the new experimental DMSO whenever they see unexplained skin injuries.

The Medical Letter reports that commercial-grade DMSO, a solvent, is being obtained by many non-medical persons and used to treat various ailments without medical supervision.

Drug-grade DMSO is still classed as an experimental medication and is not yet available for general prescription.

DMSO, short for dimethyl sulfoxide, is said to be highly effective in the treatment of bursitis and various other disorders because of its pain-killing and anti-inflammation properties.

The Medical Letter says that repeated topical application of DMSO can dehydrate and defat the skin to bring about dryness and flaking.

POISONING by wax crayons is uncommon because of their extreme indigestibility and consequent lack of absorption.

Yet certain crayons pose a hazard because they may contain the dyes paranitraniline or benzidine. Crayons which may contain these dyes are those which are orange, orange-red, yellow or violet.

A report in British Medical Journal says that children have been known to turn blue after eating such crayons. Other symptoms: headache, mental confusion, nausea and dizziness.

AN ORAL contraceptive pill, Enovid, has proved extremely effective in controlling the itching associated with a skin ailment known as Fox-Fordyce disease.

The ailment, for which no specific treatment is available, is that in which specialized sweat gland pores are closed, and normal secretions are retained in the skin. The retention usually involves the sweat glands in the underarm area.

Skin specialists at Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore, found that symptoms appeared connected to the reproductive cycle of female patients.

Symptoms, such as skin itching and skin eruptions, flared up during menstruation but practically disappeared during pregnancy.

Enovid was given to one patient for more than a year, during which time skin eruptions disappeared and the itchiness subsided completely.

(This column frequently reports advances in medical research and opinions of medical authorities not yet accepted in general practice.)

...Exciting!

Chairs You Can Make

Like chairs, one with webbing, other with pad, are shown by Anne Morell, NBC-TV actress.

By Steve Ellingson

REMEMBER back in the days of the lemonade party how summer furniture was designed primarily for the family front porch? At that time the principal piece was a porch swing that hung from the ceiling with two chains. Or if the porch was big enough some folks used a large glider swing where two couples could sit facing each other. Often times a rocker was brought out from the inside.

Today, the casual pieces which fall into the summer furniture classification may be informal or highly formal and may be found in dens, garden rooms, play rooms, patios, on pool decks or terraces and lawns. And it really isn't only summer furniture, in many localities it's used the year round, both indoors and out.

TWO SUCH versatile pieces are shown with this article. Actually, the two pieces are alike, the only difference is that one is upholstered with webbing while an outdoor furniture pad is used on the other. The wheels make them portable so you can follow the sun, and the fun, all around your property. If you have a sheltered area, you will perhaps use the furniture pad. If however, you have an unprotected terrace, then you will use the plastic upholstery webbing, which takes all kinds of weather and saves covering your chair or hauling it inside when it rains. And what is more, if it gets dusty a hose is all you need to clean it.

Either of these chairs is easy to build when you use the full size pattern. All you need do is trace the pattern parts on wood, then saw them out and finally put them together. The wood, pad and webbing are all stock items carried by your local dealer. Inexpensive too, when you do your own building.

TO OBTAIN the full size pattern No. 291 for building either (or both) of the chairs shown, send $1 in currency or check to Steve Ellingson, Southland Magazine Pattern Dept., Box 2383, Van Nuys, Calif. 91409.

Floribundas in the Landscape

By Joe Littlefield

FLORIBUNDA roses provide masses of flowers on one main branch and when the flower head has finished blooming, the branch should be cut off just above a single growth bud on the main cane. Cutting thus actually prunes the branch; more important, it forces the bud to develop a new branch for new flowers. This is the only correct way to shape floribunda roses each time a crop of flowers have finished blooming, or if you cut them fresh for table decoration.

A new floribunda is the 1966 All America Rose Apricot Nectar. It truly is a different color in floribunda roses. The large clusters of firm, attractive buds open into blossoms from four to five inches across, which means very large, double centered, clear apricot colored blooms with a fruity scent. It is one of few floribundas that is clothed almost from the ground up with rich, dark green, disease resistant foliage. Plants average about three-foot in height.

Floribundas are not limited to garden use only. Grow them as informal hedges bordering a driveway, a walk, back of a low fence in a front yard and even in shrubbery plantings around the house — of course, on the south or west side.

SOME HOME gardeners are under the impression rose foliage should never be wet. They think roses should only be irrigated. This thinking is wrong. Roses may be watered overhead every time a gardener wishes to do so, except when the weather is damp and overcast. Perhaps one of the sensible ways would be to irrigate the roses one time, next time water them overhead with a sprinkler attached to the garden hose, that throws the water up like a natural rain, watering thoroughly.

This type of overhead watering of an early morning during hot weather causes young foliage to look blue-green color, as if the roses had been fed, and the roses work that much more to bloom. Remember though, periodic feeding with a rose fertilizer makes them grow best.

Hibiscus 'on the Go'

If you look on your container plants as beautiful, portable props, your garden can never be dull. No matter what the season, there are always colorful plants in bloom, and movable pots, boxes and tubs give you the opportunity of featuring them in prominent spots.

Right now, for instance, you can bring in brilliant hibiscus shrubs in pink, yellow, red or white for sensational bloom throughout the rest of the summer.

Members of the California Association of Nurserymen recommend growing hibiscus in containers because this way you can insure the perfect drainage this shrub requires. Also, container planting gives you the advantage of being able to move the less hardy varieties to a very sheltered spot in winter. When growing hibiscus in tubs, use a mixture of equal parts of loam, sand, and either peat moss or ground bark, and feed them as often as twice a month.

You Make It

Endless uses may be found for this well-designed shelf and stool. Perfect for telephone and book. Below a mirror it makes a small dressing table. Also good for lamp, radio, bedside or utility stand. Pattern 387, which gives actual-size guides and directions for both pieces, is 35 cents. It also is one of four patterns in the Small Shelf and Stand Packet which costs $1. Send orders to: Pattern Dept., Southland Magazine, Independent Press - Telegram, Bedford Hills, N.Y.

Among outstanding floribunda roses is 1966 AARS Apricot Nectar, a true garden beauty.

Dormant Bulbs

Most of the popular garden varieties of bulbs go dormant in the summer, giving the grower and the gardener an opportunity to get them out of the ground and plant them before they start growing again. Some of these bulbs have a short period of dormancy — action must be taken before the customary fall planting season, according to the California Association of Nurserymen.

Most prominent among these are the bearded iris, and the bulbs are more properly called rhizomes. It is among the showiest of the large tribe of iris, available in a wide range of colors.

Chairs You Can Make

Like chairs, one with webbing, other with pad, are shown by Anne Morell, NBC-TV actress.

By Steve Ellingson

REMEMBER back in the days of the lemonade party how summer furniture was designed primarily for the family front porch? At that time the principal piece was a porch swing that hung from the ceiling with two chains. Or if the porch was big enough some folks used a large glider swing where two couples could sit facing each other. Often times a rocker was brought out from the inside.

Today, the casual pieces which fall into the summer furniture classification may be informal or highly formal and may be found in dens, garden rooms, play rooms, patios, on pool decks or terraces and lawns. And it really isn't only summer furniture, in many localities it's used the year round, both indoors and out.

TWO SUCH versatile pieces are shown with this article. Actually, the two pieces are alike, the only difference is that one is upholstered with webbing while an outdoor furniture pad is used on the other. The wheels make them portable so you can follow the sun, and the fun, all around your property. If you have a sheltered area, you will perhaps use the furniture pad. If however, you have an unprotected terrace, then you will use the plastic upholstery webbing, which takes all kinds of weather and saves covering your chair or hauling it inside when it rains. And what is more, if it gets dusty a hose is all you need to clean it.

Either of these chairs is easy to build when you use the full size pattern. All you need do is trace the pattern parts on wood, then saw them out and finally put them together. The wood, pad and webbing are all stock items carried by your local dealer. Inexpensive too, when you do your own building.

TO OBTAIN the full size pattern No. 291 for building either (or both) of the chairs shown, send $1 in currency or check to Steve Ellingson, Southland Magazine Pattern Dept., Box 2383, Van Nuys, Calif. 91409.

Grays in the Summer Garden

Snow-in-Summer is a creeping, mat-like plant of gray foliage and pure white, starry blooms.

By Murtha Hurley

WHO would ever believe that a modest, retiring color tone like gray could dramatize a garden scene! Yet many gardeners who have used gray-foliaged plants have found they play a distinctive double role in the garden. Peacemakers by day, gray- and silver-leaved plants seem to glow at night when all the bright colors have vanished. And, if there is night illumination their foliage reflects the light.

Summer is an excellent time to get acquainted with gray plants. They are cool, soft in color, restful, never monotonous or dull. Most of them have flowers in nearly every color. In addition they are plants of infinite variation in foliage contour, pattern and texture. Foliage varies from the strong gray silhouette of Yucca (Candle of the Lord) to the lacy fernlike cut leaves of blue, thistle-flowered Dusty Miller . . . then in dainty contrast the thin sword-like leaves of Dianthus and the neat small blue-gray leaves of English lavender, to list but a few of many gray plants.

IF YOU ARE a gardener who enjoys brilliant colors, try gray as an ally. You can be lavish with vivid red salvia, bright yellow and orange marigolds, gay colored zinnias, petunias, asters. Gray foliaged plants will keep them from clashing and help hold the planting design together.

Most all gray plants require full sun and good drainage. Several, however, prefer partial shade. Many are drought resistant.

Succulents are among the many interesting dwarf gray-foliaged plants. The many types of sempervivums with the magically-perfectly formed rosettes, popularly known as "hens-and-chickens," are excellent for bordering paths, rock gardens and walls. Another succulent, the Ghost Plant, a native of Paraguay, its silvery gray star-shaped petals tinged with pink, makes an ideal plant for hanging basket, pot or rockery. This one prefers a semi-shaded location.

Low-growing, gray-leaved, hardy perennials include Allysium saxatile, Convolvulus mauritanicus, Snow-in-Summer, all variations of Dianthus, carnations and pinks.

The fine blue-gray leaves of allysium saxatile are mantled with citron yellow flowers all through spring. Better use bedding plants for it, since seeds are quite difficult to germinate.

ONE PLANT of Convolvulus mauritanicus spreads in a season to three feet, its trailing stems covered with tiny bluish leaves and small viola-shaped blue flowers all through spring and summer.

Snow-in-Summer (cerasium tomentosum) is a sun-loving drought resistant ground cover that thrives with little care. Use it to contrast with a green carpet such as creeping thyme, or by itself. It forms a silvery leaved white-flowering carpet six inches high, looks like a drift of snow, is ideal for outlining walks. To keep it attractive, cut back heartily with hedge shears after it blooms. For extra diversion, weave it in and out of drifts of red verberna. It also makes a charming companion to succulents.

DUSTY MILLER (Centaurea candidissima) is very popular, grown chiefly for its thick deeply cut silvery leaves. There is a one-foot variety that makes a charming plant to edge a walk or to use in the foreground of a shrub bed, or a bed of bright red or pink geraniums. It gives a beautiful effect in the evening if planted with white geraniums or white nicotiana.

An entirely different Dusty Miller, though seldom called by this name is Centaurea gymnocarpa that grows higher—to three feet, makes a lovely bush of lacy fern-like foliage with lavender blue thistle-like blooms.

ANOTHER neat, rounding, gray-leaved perennial is Long Beach Parent Chapter, American Begonia Society, will hear a talk by Mrs. Jean Kerlin of Altadena at a meeting at 7:30 p.m. Thursday in the Community Room, 3901 Atlantic Ave. Plant table. Public invited.

Garden Tips

Garden tips for the week . . . Shade and fruit trees should have a deep watering about once a month until fall rains begin. Soak lawns until water penetrates at least six inches below soil surface.

Cut back clematis, violets, pinks and carnations now. Annuals that have bloomed should be cut back to get another crop. Be sure to remove sucker growth on grafted plants.

Continue to fertilize lawns once a month. If crabgrass is taking over, mow close and often and use one of the summertime crabgrass controls.

Trillium bulbs may be planted now for bloom in early spring. Give them a woody location in filtered shade. Effective with ferns and azaleas. It isn't too early to plant Madonna lilies. Place them 6 inches deep in well-drained soil.

This is the time to choose perennial phlox in bloom. See them in shades from pure white to rough red—from pastel pink to purple—and pick the colors to carry out your permanent late-summer color scheme. Give them part shade and plenty of moisture.

bushy Convolvulus cneorum. It is very compact in habit, likes a sunny location, seldom reaches beyond three feet, is not too fussy about soil, yet demands good drainage, even a gravelly soil.

Floribundas in the Landscape

By Joe Littlefield

FLORIBUNDA roses provide masses of flowers on one main branch and when the flower head has finished blooming, the branch should be cut off just above a single growth bud on the main cane. Cutting thus actually prunes the branch; more important, it forces the bud to develop a new branch for new flowers. This is the only correct way to shape floribunda roses each time a crop of flowers have finished blooming, or if you cut them fresh for table decoration.

numerous world records. Her foremost record, possibly, was her gold medal in the 1948 Olympic Games, competing for her native Denmark. She currently holds 18 world professional distance swim records, holds the women's world record for every distance swim she has ever undertaken in North America, South America and Europe and has swum an estimated 10,000 miles since her father first pushed her into a pool in Copenhagen.

IT IS A RECORD that eclipses those of Gertrude Ederle and Florence Chadwick combined and it is a record that, curiously, has caused Miss Andersen to be hailed into an English court-room.

A year ago while Greta was preparing for the English Channel challenge she was infuriated to see, in an American news magazine, Mary Margaret Revell described as the foremost woman distance swimmer in the United States. "I saw red," recalls Greta, who summoned British newspaper reporters to tell them Mary Margaret was, in Greta's words, a fake and a phony who almost never finishes a swim but talks a pretty good race.

So far the case hasn't come to trial. Mary Margaret, who was a Long Beach hotel lifeguard at the same time Greta was breaking in to the marathon swimming business by coursing up and down Alamitos Bay five hours a day, has been occupied in Australia on well-publicized short-distance ocean outings.

Though Greta soon may be confronted by the long black robes of British jurisprudence, the only trial that concerns her today is the 43-mile water journey across the English Channel.

the single channel, but instead of one button there are 4 to 12 channels with a double-acting lever to operate two channels. There can be two to six levers for the pilot to operate depending on how complex the system. Each lever operates an electrically driven motor inside the aircraft.

Using the multi-channel system, the ground-based pilot can send his aircraft into aerobatics. It is something like learning to play the piano—the trick is to hit the right note, in this case, the right lever, at the right time. The multi-channel system sells new for $400.

Proportional System—
 This is the newest on the market. It controls everything electronically and is considered by modelers as the most complicated system. However, once it is mastered it is the "only way to fly."

There are simple and more refined proportional systems, the basic difference being in the number of functions or commands that the transmitter sends and the receiver picks up. Instead of buttons or levers, all primary controls operate from a single stick much like a real airplane. Move the stick a little forward the aircraft pulls up proportionately. New, they cost $300 to $600, depending on the system.

And one crackle of interference from someone operating on the same frequency can send the aircraft crashing to the ground.

Grays in the Summer Garden

Snow-in-Summer is a creeping, mat-like plant of gray foliage and pure white, starry blooms.

By Murtha Hurley

WHO would ever believe that a modest, retiring color tone like gray could dramatize a garden scene! Yet many gardeners who have used gray-foliaged plants have found they play a distinctive double role in the garden. Peacemakers by day, gray- and silver-leaved plants seem to glow at night when all the bright colors have vanished. And, if there is night illumination their foliage reflects the light.

Summer is an excellent time to get acquainted with gray plants. They are cool, soft in color, restful, never monotonous or dull. Most of them have flowers in nearly every color. In addition they are plants of infinite variation in foliage contour, pattern and texture. Foliage varies from the strong gray silhouette of Yucca (Candle of the Lord) to the lacy fernlike cut leaves of blue, thistle-flowered Dusty Miller . . . then in dainty contrast the thin sword-like leaves of Dianthus and the neat small blue-gray leaves of English lavender, to list but a few of many gray plants.

IF YOU ARE a gardener who enjoys brilliant colors, try gray as an ally. You can be lavish with vivid red salvia, bright yellow and orange marigolds, gay colored zinnias, petunias, asters. Gray foliaged plants will keep them from clashing and help hold the planting design together.

Most all gray plants require full sun and good drainage. Several, however, prefer partial shade. Many are drought resistant.

Succulents are among the many interesting dwarf gray-foliaged plants. The many types of sempervivums with the magically-perfectly formed rosettes, popularly known as "hens-and-chickens," are excellent for bordering paths, rock gardens and walls. Another succulent, the Ghost Plant, a native of Paraguay, its silvery gray star-shaped petals tinged with pink, makes an ideal plant for hanging basket, pot or rockery. This one prefers a semi-shaded location.

Low-growing, gray-leaved, hardy perennials include Alyssum saxatile, Convolvulus mauritanicus, Snow-in-Summer, all variations of Dianthus, carnations and pinks.

The fine blue-gray leaves of alyssum saxatile are mantled with citron yellow flowers all through spring. Better use bedding plants for it, since seeds are quite difficult to germinate.

ONE PLANT of Convolvulus mauritanicus spreads in a season to three feet, its trailing stems covered with tiny bluish leaves and small viola-shaped blue flowers all through spring and summer.

Snow-in-Summer (cerastium tomentosum) is a sun-loving drought resistant ground cover that thrives with little care. Use it to contrast with a green carpet such as creeping thyme, or by itself. It forms a silvery leaved white-flowering carpet six inches high, looks like a drift of snow, is ideal for outlining walks. To keep it attractive, cut back heartily with hedge shears after it blooms. For extra diversion, weave it in and out of drifts of red verberna. It also makes a charming companion to succulents.

DUSTY MILLER (Centauria candidissima) is very popular, grown chiefly for its thick deeply cut silvery leaves. There is a one-foot variety that makes a charming plant to edge a walk or to use in the foreground of a shrub bed, or a bed of bright red or pink geraniums. It gives a beautiful effect in the evening if planted with white geraniums or white nicotiana.

An entirely different Dusty Miller, though seldom called by this name is Centaurea gymnocarpa that grows higher—to three feet, makes a lovely bush of lacy fern-like foliage with lavender blue thistle-like blooms.

ANOTHER neat, rounding, gray-leaved perennial is

Garden Clubs

Long Beach Parent Chapter, American Begonia Society, will hear a talk by Mrs. Jean Kerlin of Altadena at a meeting at 7:30 p.m. Thursday in the Community Room, 3901 Atlantic Ave. Plant table. Public invited.

Garden Tips

Garden tips for the week . . . Shade and fruit trees should have a deep watering about once a month until fall rains begin. Soak lawns until water penetrates at least six inches below soil surface.

Cut back clematis, violets, pinks and carnations now. Annuals that have bloomed should be cut back to get another crop. Be sure to remove sucker growth on grafted plants.

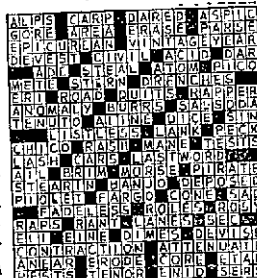

Continue to fertilize lawns once a month. If crabgrass is taking over, mow close and often and use one of the summertime crabgrass controls.

Trillium bulbs may be planted now for bloom in early spring. Give them a woody location in filtered shade. Effective with ferns and azaleas. It isn't too early to plant Madonna lilies. Place them 6 inches deep in well-drained soil.

This is the time to choose perennial phlox in bloom. See them in shades from pure white to rough red—from pastel pink to purple—and pick the colors to carry out your permanent late-summer color scheme. Give them part shade and plenty of moisture.

bushy Convolvulus cneorum. It is very compact in habit, likes a sunny location, seldom reaches beyond three feet, is not too fussy about soil, yet demands good drainage, even a gravelly soil.

THERE COMES a time in the dining-out life of every couple when they should treat themselves to that masterpiece of restaurant fare—the chateaubriand.

And I know just the place for this adventure. It's Wayfarer Restaurant, 2230 Pacific Coast Hwy., Long Beach, a select dining establishment owned by former Long Beach restaurateur Frank Jimmy Richmond. Jimmy is a charming, jovial host who has a small mustache and the courtly manners of a continental gentleman. His chateaubriand is a double filet mignon which serves two persons. Carved at the table, it is a perfect way to celebrate such special occasions as wedding anniversaries or birthdays.

The steak is a gorgeous affair cut from the center of a tenderloin, assuring tenderness and juiciness. It arrives on a gleaming silver platter bouquiere, which means it is surrounded by a bouquet of garden vegetables. Included are small golden Parisian potatoes, asparagus, broccoli and carrots. A sauce boat contains savory au jus while other containers bear hollandaise sauce for the vegetables and a rich bernaise sauce for the beef. Naturally the Wayfarer has a superb list of wines to complement those tempting flavors.

The chateaubriand is $14.50 for two persons, a reasonable tariff for such splendor. Because of its excellence, it has become the most popular of the Wayfar-er's special occasion entrees.
The restaurant, which seats
22 in luxurious comfort, has numerous table d'hote dinners in the moderate price

cluded are relish tray, soup

the entrees: chicken Jerusa-

$2.85; stuffed mushrooms,
$2.95; frog legs sauteed with almonds, $4, and veal picatta, $3.25. Sunday dinners are served from 4 to 11 p.m. The restaurant is closed Tuesdays.

SUNDAY TREAT—Burgundy is used to enhance the flavor of the delectable sauce which accompanies the beef brochette at the attractive Americana Restaurant, Bellflower Boulevard and Carson Street. The entree ($2.95) consists of chunks of top sirloin broiled on a skewer with fresh mushrooms, onions and green peppers. It includes soup or tossed salad and potato. This large restaurant and coffee shop also features entrees from $1.75.

numerous world records. Her foremost record, possibly, was her gold medal in the 1948 Olympic Games, competing for her native Denmark. She currently holds 18 world professional distance swim records, holds the women's world record for every distance swim she has ever undertaken in North America, South America and Europe and has swum an estimated 10,000 miles since her father first pushed her into a pool in Copenhagen.

IT IS A RECORD that eclipses those of Gertrude Ederle and Florence Chadwick combined and it is a record that, curiously, has caused Miss Andersen to be hailed into an English court-room.

A year ago while Greta was preparing for the English Channel challenge she was infuriated to see, in an American newsmagazine, Mary Margaret Revell described as the foremost woman distance swimmer in the United States. "I saw red," recalls Greta, who summoned British newspaper reporters to tell them Mary Margaret was, in Greta's words, a fake and a phony who almost never finishes a swim but talks a pretty good race.

So far the case hasn't come to trial. Mary Margaret, who was a Long Beach hotel lifeguard at the same time Greta was breaking in to the marathon swimming business by coursing up and down Alamitos Bay five hours a day, has been occupied in Australia on well-publicized short-distance ocean outings.

Though Greta soon may be confronted by the long black robes of British jurisprudence, the only trial that concerns her today is the 43-mile water journey across the English Channel.

the single channel, but instead of one button there are 4 to 12 channels with a double-acting lever to operate two channels. There can be two to six levers for the pilot to operate depending on how complex the system. Each lever operates an electrically driven motor inside the aircraft.

Using the multi-channel system, the ground-based pilot can send his aircraft into aerobatics. It is something like learning to play the piano—the trick is to hit the right note, in this case, the right lever, at the right time. This multi-channel system sells new for $400.

Proportional System— This is the newest on the market. It controls everything electronically and is considered by modelers as the most complicated system. However, once it is mastered it is the "only way to fly."

There are simple and more refined proportional systems, the basic difference being in the number of functions or commands that the transmitter sends and the receiver picks up. Instead of buttons or levers, all primary controls operate from a single stick much like a real airplane. Move the stick a little forward the aircraft pulls up proportionately. New, they cost $300 to $600, depending on the system.

And one crackle of interference from someone operating on the same frequency can send the aircraft crashing to the ground.

CLOSED SATURDAY—

Same Location

THERE COMES a time in the dining-out life of every couple when they should treat themselves to that masterpiece of restaurant fare—the chateaubriand.

And I know just the place for this adventure. It's Wayfarer Restaurant, 2230 Pacific Coast Hwy., Lomita, a select dining establishment owned by former Long Beach restaurateur Frank Jimmy Richmond. Jimmy is a charming, jovial host who has a small mustache and the courtly manners of a continental gentleman. His chateaubriand is a double filet mignon which serves two persons. Carved at the table, it is a perfect way to celebrate such special occasions as wedding anniversaries or birthdays.

The steak is a gorgeous affair cut from the center of a tenderloin, assuring tenderness and juiciness. It arrives on a gleaming silver platter bouquetiere, which means it is surrounded by a bouquet of garden vegetables. Included are small golden Parisian potatoes, asparagus, broccoli and carrots. A sauce boat contains savory au jus while other containers bear hollandaise sauce for the vegetables and a rich bernaïse sauce for the beef. Naturally the Wayfarer has a superb list of wines
to complement those tempting flavors.

The chateaubriand is $14.50 for two persons, a reasonable tariff for such splendor. Because of its excellence, it has become the most popular of the Wayfar-er's special occasion entrees.
The restaurant, which seats
22 in luxurious comfort, has numerous table d'hôte dinners in the moderate price range, starting at $2.85. Included are relish tray, soup

du jour, mixed green salad, beverage and dessert. Among the entrees: chicken Jerusalem, $3.25; eastern scallops, $2.85; stuffed mushrooms, $2.95; frog legs sauteed with almonds, $4, and veal picatta, $3.25. Sunday dinners are served from 4 to 11 p.m. The restaurant is closed Tuesdays.

SUNDAY TREAT—Burgundy is used to enhance the flavor of the delectable sauce which accompanies the beef brochette at the attractive Americana Restaurant, Bellflower Boulevard and Carson Street. The entree ($2.95) consists of chunks of top sirloin broiled on a skewer with fresh mushrooms, onions and green peppers. It includes soup or tossed salad and potato. This large restaurant and coffee shop also features entrees from $1.75.

Personality Parade

Want the facts? Want to spike rumors? Want to learn the truth about prominent personalities? Write Walter Scott, Parade, 733 Third Ave., New York, N.Y. 10017. Your full name will be used unless otherwise requested. Volume of mail received makes personal replies impossible.

Q. The rumor is that Elizabeth Taylor will do almost anything legitimate for money which is why she is writing her autobiography. Is Richard Burton writing the book for her? If not, who is?—D.R.R., Greenwich, Conn.

A. The book is being ghosted by Richard Meryman who is expanding a Life article he wrote on the actress some time ago.

Q. You made a serious error in your June 20th column when you reported that Madame Chiang Kai-shek attended and was graduated from Wellesley College. She attended and was graduated from Wesleyan College in Macon, Ga. Isn't that so?—Judith Caulfield, Orlando, Fla.

A. Not true. Mayling Soong, later Madame Chiang Kai-shek, was graduated from Wellesley—not Wesleyan—with an A.B. degree, class of 1917. When she was 12 years old she arrived in Macon, Ga., and according to W. Earl Strickland, president of Wesleyan, "was tutored through her high school work by Wesleyan faculty and completing her freshman year of college at Wesleyan." She then transferred to Wellesley of which college she regards herself an alumna. She regards Wesleyan with great warmth and respect. Her two sisters were graduated from there, but she considers Wellesley her collegiate alma mater.

Q. I would like to obtain some truth about the war in Vietnam. Is it a revolution, a civil war, a war of aggression? Is it true that all the Vietnamese both North and South hate the Americans? Do we have any definite policy for winning the war?—J.D. Schwartz, Brooklyn, N.Y.

A. The war in Vietnam is basically a revolution grounded in the discontent of peasants who have been cheated, exploited, and deprived of the primary necessities of life. The revolution is being abetted from the outside by the Communists of North Vietnam. It is a civil war, too, in that Vietnamese is pitted against Vietnamese. Americans are disliked by both North and South Vietnamese, because they are white and wealthy. At the present time we have no policy for winning the war, hope by the use of additional troops to develop a military stalemate which will lead to acceptable negotiated settlement. This, of course, is an oversimplification.

A. See right.

Q. How much did Henry Ford and his new wife, Cristina, pay for their new yacht, Shemara?—A. Jennings, Grosse Pointe, Mich.

A. Ford chartered the yacht, Shemara, for the summer from Sir Bernard and Lady Docker.

Q. Is it true a legitimate son was born to Brigitte Bardot a few years ago? If so, why has it been hushed up?—W.B.J., Patrick A.F.B., Fla.

A. It has not been hushed up. She poses with the boy occasionally, but tries to keep him out of the limelight.

Q. The late President Kennedy could speak no foreign languages. Yet one of his most memorable speeches was the one he gave in Germany in which he cried out, "Ich bin ein Berliner." My question is who wrote the speech for him and was it written phonetically?—Ed Henry, Cambridge, Mass.

A. Kennedy asked his speech-writers to draft a short message, to be spoken in German, after he finished his scheduled speech in Berlin. The writers suggested two sentences: "Ich freue mich in Berlin zu sein." (I am happy to be in Berlin) and "Ich bin dankbar fuer den herzlichen Empfang." (I am grateful for the cordial reception). Kennedy asked that these sentences be translated phonetically so that he, not knowing any German, could speak them. He then asked what they meant. When he was told, he quickly said, "I can't say that. It's trite and empty." Whereupon he sat down with McGeorge Bundy, one of his advisers. They began a new draft. Hastily in his almost illegible handwriting, the President scrawled, "I am a Berliner." The interpreters then wrote out the phonetic translation to fit Kennedy's Massachusetts accent: "Ish bin ine bear-Lean-ar." When Kennedy spoke that line in front of West Berlin's city hall, the crowd answered with a roaring ovation whereupon the President turned to his interpreter, smiled as if to say, "It went across O.K."

Q. Recently saw Sound of Music with Julie Andrews. Noticed that Marni Nixon who sang for Audrey Hepburn in My Fair Lady was also in the cast. What part did she perform?—Mrs. Max M., Salem, Ore.

A. One of the singing nuns.

Q. Has Fess Parker(r), ever played the movie role of Tarzan?—Judy Kleefisch, Alexandria, Va.

A. He has not.

Q. What is the basis of the feud between Lyndon Johnson and Bobby Kennedy?—S.T. Hunt, Ft. Worth, Tex.

A. Their personalities clash.

Q. Would you please describe the special Rolls-Royce that Beatle John Lennon has bought for himself? Thank you.—Amy Ford, Greencille, Ohio.

A. It boasts smoked windows which permit Lennon to look through them from the inside but prevents pedestrians on the outside from looking inside.

FREDDIE McEVoy

THE VANISHING PLAYBOYS

RUBIROSA, KHAN, FLYNN, PORTAGO, McEVoy—ALL ARE GONE

by LLOYD SHEARER

PARIS. Times are prosperous. Money is plentiful. Millionaires are more numerous than ever. Pleasure has become the pursuit of the masses. See the world before you leave it. Enjoy life while you can. Tomorrow is promised to no man. Live each day as if it were your last. Travel today, and pay tomorrow. Creature comforts are within everyone's grasp. Get your share now.

The prevailing philosophy is hedonic. Speed, spending, and sex occupy leading roles in today's scheme of enjoyment. Everywhere people are urged to gratify their desires and drives.

Under these conducive circumstances, how come contemporary society is generating fewer playboys than ever? Why is it that the playboy as we have known him is becoming a rapidly vanishing breed, is almost totally extinct? Why is the species disappearing?

Several months ago at Courcheval, a very chic French ski resort, I put these questions to the late playboy Porfirio Rubirosa who last month was killed when his Ferrari (a 250 GT cabriolet—1959 model; cost: $12,850) crashed into a tree in the Bois de Boulogne.

THE RUBIROSA CASE

One of the Big Dame Hunters of all time—he not only married Doris Duke and Barbara Hutton but succeeded in getting $1 million from each of them—Rubi wistfully explained to me: "There are so few men in the world today who are willing to devote themselves to making women happy. It is no longer fashionable. One must get involved in a cause to ease his conscience. And this is sad, believe me, amigo, because making women happy is a marvelous cause, a rewarding cause, una causa muy agradable (a very agreeable cause).

"It is also an art," he added. "Not one in which many of your countrymen have excelled, it is true, but nevertheless an art, like playing polo, a lost art."

If ever there was a man who enjoyed his art and made it pay—he co-authored with fellow playboy Gunther Sachs "The Seductor's Guide"—that man was Rubirosa.

Relatively short (5-feet-7½), bowlegged (too much polo), partially Negro (early in the game he had his nose narrowed by a plastic surgeon), undereducated (haphazard primary school in his native Dominican Republic and later in France)—Rubi in his prime was tinder that would set almost any woman to flame. "The Don Juan of 2,000 women" is how the French newspapers described him. He was smooth, suave, finely muscled, well-mannered, subtly perfumed, a naturally charming, good-natured man perfectly tuned to the female pitch.

ROMANCE WITH ZSA ZSA

I remember asking him in Las Vegas one time—he had just blackened Zsa Zsa Gabor's left eye in a quarrel, but of course, I didn't know that then—if he would reveal the masterful playboy artistry which had won him such fame, fortune, and admiration. "One must never be in a hurry," he kidded. "Women like to be pleased and treated tenderly."

Later, when I learned how tenderly Rubirosa had flattened Zsa Zsa with a short right jab, I asked him to explain the contradiction between his advice and his behavior.

"Why did you hit her?" I asked.

The Dominican diplomat smiled. "She hit me first. It was self-defense."

Zsa Zsa subsequently confided to me at The Last Frontier, a Vegas club she appeared in wearing a black eye patch, that Rubirosa had struck her because she refused to marry him. The other day we rehearsed the whole affair.

"I was afraid of him. I don't know why, because he was not 100 per cent man. He was tausend per cent man. He begged me to marry him. He said if I wouldn't Barbara Hutton would."

"I tink now," Zsa Zsa went on, "that I made a mistake in not marrying Rubi. I tell you he was a vunderful vunder, that man. You knew him, dollink. Men liked him just as much as vimmens."

I asked Zsa Zsa if she would disclose the Rubirosa technique with women.

"It was no technique, dollink. It was his style. Ven he was vit me, he wanted only me. All the time looking at me, talking to me. I was his whole vorl. He was the sort of man who would tear down the walls vit his bare hands to get at me. He made me feel I was the moon and the stars, everytink. He had a joie de vivre that was contagious. He made vimmens feel alive. And no matter vat they say about him. He was sincere. He said he would come back to me no matter vat. And he kept his vorl. You remember vat happened in Arizona."

A day after Rubirosa was married to Woolworth heiress Barbara Hutton, he took the plane she had given him as a wedding gift and flew to Phoenix, Ariz., where Zsa Zsa Gabor was then working in a film, appropriately titled, Three-Ring Circus.

Rubi moved into the house of a friend in near-by Scottsdale. While his bride was in Palm Beach, Fla., almost 3,000 miles away, recovering from a sprained ankle, Rubi and Zsa Zsa staged a daily summit conference.

For Barbara Hutton this was indeed a strange honeymoon. After 73 days of marriage, she called it quits. She let Rubi keep the plane, gave him a million bucks for his kindnesses, then filed for divorce.

In discussing this marriage, his fourth, Rubi was ever sad. "There was nothing I could do," he confessed, "to pep Barbara up. She was filled with a certain tristesse in those days. I tried and tried, but I could do nothing. It was pathetic. I failed."

Rubirosa's first three marriages, as most of his fans well know, involved as brides Flor Trujillo, daughter of the cruel Dominican dictator; French film star Danielle Darrieux with whom the Don Juan lived in Paris during the war years; and Doris Duke, heiress to the tobacco millions and reputedly America's wealthiest woman.

From wife number one, Rubi got money, status, and position as a Dominican diplomat. From wife number two he garnered the world-wide publicity which comes from marrying a beautiful film star. From wife number three he got a well-furnished house in Paris and enough of an expense account to throw a series of endless parties—he called them "parandas"—and to indulge his taste for fast cars, tailored clothes, top polo ponies, well-stocked wine cellars, and of course, well-stacked girls.

"MARRIED TO A JAZZ PIANO"

He was not a man to talk freely of his marriages, nor was his conversation ever well-sprinkled with wit or epigrams. He said after his misalliance with Barbara Hutton, "It's been my experience that marriage adds nothing to a friendship." And of his marriage to Doris Duke, he once confided in me, "It was like being married to a jazz piano."

Years later when Miss Duke took an option on Mexican jazz pianist Joe Castro, with whom she has subsequently lived for years in a legally disputatious marriage, I recalled that line of Rubi's.

In 1957 Rubirosa took as his fifth wife a 19-year-old French actress, Odile Robin, 30 years his junior. She had no money, a switch for him, but great beauty. His jet society friends gave the marriage less than a year. But Odile was infinitely more resourceful and influential than they knew.

Ironically enough she talked him into giving up motor car racing. "Look at your friends," she said. "Portago, Aly Khan, Harry Schell—all dead at the wheel. You don't have to follow them."

Rubi listened to the warning until one morning last month. At 5:30 A.M. he stopped off at Los Calvados for a ham sandwich and an Amstel beer. A few more drinks with celebrating Americans, and he climbed into his silver Ferrari and headed for home. At 7:30 A.M., speeding through the winding Bois, he side-swiped a parked car, smashed headlong into a chestnut tree less than half a mile from the spot where his fellow playboy, Aly Khan, had crashed in 1960. En route to the hospital Porfirio Rubirosa died. His wife gave his age as 56. He was nearer 60 although well-preserved.

Paris newspapers accorded his death wide play. He was buried in a simple pine coffin at Marnes La Coquette. Only a handful of his closest friends stood at the graveside in heavy rain. There were no religious rites as he belonged to no church. As the coffin was lowered into the grave his last wife—none of her predecessors were present—burst into tears. Wet-eyed also were Mrs. Jean Smith and Mrs. Pat Lawford, sisters of the late President John F. Kennedy and friends of the deceased.

Rubi would not have liked that. Over and over again he used to tell the girls, "Life is for love and laughter. The trouble with most women is that when happiness comes within their grasp, they run away from it."

Overhearing this line on one occasion, I later asked

Rubi if he didn't think life was also meant for work and solid achievement.

"It's impossible for me to work," he explained. "I don't have the time."

PLAYBOYS OF YESTERYEAR

When the French police closed the books on Rubi's death, officially listing it as an accident, many reporters wrote that his demise marked the passing of the last international playboy.

Many of these girl-collectors have been consumed by their passion for fast living in the past decade, but several still survive. Of the deceased, outstanding in the playboy ranks were Aly Khan who died in a car accident; the Marquis de Portago, handsome scion of a leading Portuguese family who was killed when his racing car overturned during the Italian Mille Miglia; Errol Flynn, the Hollywood film star who died a narcotics addict in the company of Beverly Aadland, then a 15-year-old traveling companion. Another who met an untimely death was Freddie McEvoy, an Australian pal of Flynn's. McEvoy who specialized in tennis, yachting, bobsledding and skiing, used to hang out with Flynn at the old West Side Tennis Club in Hollywood. McEvoy used to date Barbara Hutton but couldn't land her for matrimony. He did, however, marry two oil heiresses, Beatrice Cartwright and Irene Wrightsman. Freddie and Irene McEvoy both drowned when their yacht sank in a storm off the Moroccan coast. McEvoy tried to save his wife by lashing her

RUBIROSA, KHAN, FLYNN, PORTAGO, McEVOY—ALL ARE GONE

Times are prosperous. Money is plentiful. Millionaires are more numerous than ever. Pleasure has become the pursuit of the masses. See the world before you leave it. Enjoy life while you can. Tomorrow is promised to no man. Live each day as if it were your last. Travel today, and pay tomorrow. Creature comforts are within everyone's grasp. Get your share now.

The prevailing philosophy is hedonic. Speed, spending, and sex occupy leading roles in today's scheme of enjoyment. Everywhere people are urged to gratify their desires and drives.

Under these conducive circumstances, how come contemporary society is generating fewer playboys than ever? Why is it that the playboy as we have known him is becoming a rapidly vanishing breed, is almost totally extinct? Why is the species disappearing?

Several months ago at Courcheval, a very chic French ski resort, I put these questions to the late playboy Porfirio Rubirosa who last month was killed when his Ferrari (a 250 GT cabriolet—1959 model; cost: $12,850) crashed into a tree in the Bois de Bonlogne.

THE RUBIROSA CASE

One of the Big Dame Hunters of all time—he not only married Doris Duke and Barbara Hutton but succeeded in getting $1 million from each of them—Rubi wistfully explained to me: "There are so few men in the world today who are willing to devote themselves to making women happy. It is no longer fashionable. One must get involved in a cause to ease his conscience. And this is sad, believe me, amigo, because making women happy is a marvelous cause, a rewarding cause, una causa muy agradable (a very agreeable cause).

"It is also an art," he added. "Not one in which many of your countrymen have excelled, it is true, but nevertheless an art, like playing polo, a lost art."

If ever there was a man who enjoyed his art and made it pay—he co-authored with fellow playboy Gunther Sachs "The Seductor's Guide"—that man was Rubirosa.

Relatively short (5-feet-7½), bowlegged (too much polo), partially Negro (early in the game he had his nose narrowed by a plastic surgeon), undereducated (haphazard primary school in his native Dominican Republic and later in France)—Rubi in his prime was tinder that would set almost any woman to flame. "The Don Juan of 2,000 women" is how the French newspapers described him. He was smooth, suave, finely muscled, well-mannered, subtly perfumed, a naturally charming, good-natured man perfectly tuned to the female pitch.

"I tink now," Zsa Zsa went on, "that I made a mistake in not marrying Rubi. I tell you he was a vonderful vonder, that man. You knew him, dollink. Men liked him just as much as vimmen."

I asked Zsa Zsa if she would disclose the Rubirosa technique with women.

"It was no technique, dollink. It was his style. Ven he was vit me, he wanted only me. All the time looking at me, talking to me. I was his whole vorl. He was the sort of man who would tear down the valls vit his bare hands to get at me. He made me feel I was the moon and the stars, everytink. He had a joie de vivre that was contagious. to the mast, but she, too, went down. Later, her equally attractive sister, Charlene Wrightsman, married to Igor Cassini, committed suicide when Cassini was indicted as an unregistered lobbyist for Trujillo's Dominican Republic. The Wrightsmans were close friends of the Joseph P. Kennedy family in Palm Beach.

Of the playboys now in the running for Rubirosa's title as King of the Playboys, the two most prominent contenders are Francisco "Baby" Pignatari, 48, tall (6-feet-3), handsome, Brazilian millionaire with wavy, brown hair and brown, melting eyes, and Rafael "Ramfis" Trujillo, Jr., son of the assassinated Dominican ruler and Rubirosa's one-time brother-in-law.

Both now do most of their girl-collecting in Europe. Compared to their past, their current acquisitions are almost secretive.

Until recently, Pignatari was married to Princess Ira von Furstenberg Hohenlohe. As a child of 15, Ira married Prince Alfonso Hohenlohe in Venice, subsequently gave birth to a pair of lovely children. Five years ago she found her Prince a magnificent bore but moved with him to Mexico City. Presently "Baby" Pignatari showed up and was flushed out of the Princess' apartment by the local police. They had been called by her irate husband who insisted that "Baby" was paying his wife's bills and doing everything possible to prevent him from obtaining custody of his two children. "Baby" said it was all nonsense. He was in Mexico City on a diplomatic mission. He had no romantic interest whatever in the Princess. She was, in fact, an old friend of his mother's.

When the Princess obtained her divorce, however, he quickly married her. Beautiful Ira has now returned to her original Prince, because friends say, "it is the only way she can be near her children. She had to make a choice: her children or 'Baby,' and she chose her children."

AVOIDING HEADLINES

As for Ramfis Trujillo, he is playing it cool these days. In 31 years his father stole an estimated $300 million from the Dominican Republic and sequestered much of it in European banks. Ramfis, his heir, reportedly has $60 million on deposit in Spain. His brothers and sisters, both legitimate and illegitimate, want a piece of it. Their lawyer, former Vice-President Richard Nixon, is trying to get it for them. So for the time being, Ramfis is staying away from entangling female alliances, especially those which lead to headlines dictator Franco of Spain might not approve of.

In 1958 when his corrupt father was still in power, Ramfis turned up in Hollywood, romanced Kim Novak, Lita Milan, and a few other starlets, arranged for one to meet him in Santo Domingo where he had a wife and six children. No Phi Beta Kappa, Miss Novak was overwhelmed by Trujillo's gifts of flowers, clothes, and an $8,400 Mercedes. Before accepting these gifts she had not bothered to ask about her swain's marital status.

Later, when reporters asked if she had returned the Mercedes to her married suitor, Kim explained, "I've had my agent give it to a worthy charity in town."

Playboys are still with us, but they aren't what they used to be—garish, flamboyant, ostentatious, headline-hunting, convention-defying—because as Porfirio Rubirosa said, "It is no longer fashionable for a man to devote his whole life to making women happy." AN ON-THE-SPOT REPORT

PROBLEMS OF A VIETNAMESE

Victims of a conflict they don't understand, Madame Muoi, daughter (r.) and relatives struggle to stay alive. How can she be helped to live through—and repair—the ravages of war?

FROM the gay and gaudy streets of Saigon to the tiny hamlet of Binh Quang in South Vietnam is only 30 miles—but they are a world apart. For this is Viet Cong country, a land of fear and near-famine where each day seems more hopeless than the last. It is also a land where few young men are seen. They have gone to the war, leaving behind the old men, women and children to toil without cease in the rice paddies, trying to stay alive until peace comes again.

It was to find out what is happening to these little people, the peasants caught in the middle, that PARADE sent this reporter to Vietnam.

It is a pathetic and tragic story, vivid in its stark simplicity. Terror and hunger have become a way of life. The war of the headlines, of mass troop movements, bomber strikes and the wranglings between world capitals has no meaning for the people of Binh Quang and the hamlets like it. Rival slogans of Communism and freedom are largely incomprehensible. All the people of Binh Quang know is that their soil is being fought over, and they seem to fear as much from one side as the other.

Not too long ago the Binh Quang area was overrun by the Viet Cong guerrillas. They have since been driven back. But nobody knows, not even the generals in Saigon, when they may return. Then, once again, the villagers will be murdered, children kidnaped and held hostage and slender food stores pillaged.

Should rescue come, it is likely to be a mixed blessing. Precious rice paddies will be churned up in the fighting, land will be mined, leaving less soil to till. And so Binh Quang will go hungrier than ever. More important, since the people of Binh Quang do not live by bread alone, the graves of revered ancestors may be disturbed or defiled.

WAR VICTIMS

It's a 20-minute trip by helicopter from Saigon to the outskirts of Binh Quang, then a two-mile trudge along a muddy jungle path to the bamboo hut of a typical villager, Madame Nguyen Thi Muoi. She shares the 1-room hut with a 12-year-old daughter and 7 other relatives, all victims of the war. Madame Muoi is only 45, but war and drudgery, fear and starvation have aged her 30 years. She has never read a newspaper, because she cannot read. She has never heard a radio broadcast. She has never visited Saigon, her country's capital. Nor have any of her neighbors. She has only two thoughts—how to put food on the palm leaves that serve as plates and how to raise 3g for the bus ride to the near-by provincial capital of Tan An and its market place. A trip to Saigon is as remote for Madame Muoi as a trip to the moon.

Unlike most widows of the village, Madame Muoi lost her husband 10 years ago, not to the war but to tuberculosis. By local standards, she was a modestly prosperous widow with two sons and two daughters. She owned her home and her rice paddy of about 300 square meters—.07 acre.

With the help of her sons, she raised rice, eggplant and cucumbers. With fish from the rice paddy, there was always enough to eat and even some left over to sell in the Tan An market for cash to buy other necessities and small luxuries.

MOTHER

by OPAL GINN

nothing home. Her oldest daughter has also married and moved away.

So Madame Muoi must struggle on to keep herself and her young daughter alive. The relatives who share her house cannot pay her any rent because they have no money either. The young daughter cannot go to school because she has to work.

Madame Muoi managed to survive the Viet Cong terror in Binh Quang. When the guerrillas were driven out, along came provincial officials who confiscated part of her land to put a barbed wire enclosure around the hamlet. They promised to pay her, but she has never collected a piaster. She doesn't even know how much she should be paid for her land, because of course she couldn't read the paper which the officials gave her to sign.

With her paddy cut down, last year Madame Muoi and her daughter, working from dawn until dusk, were able to harvest only 40 liters of rice—slightly over a bushel. To work the paddy, she had to borrow a neighbor's water buffalo. Growing on the edge of the paddy, when she took me to see it, were four eggplants and half a dozen cucumber plants. These, with an occasional fish from the paddy, were her entire food supply for as far into the future as she could see. But for Madame Muoi the future is only as far away as tomorrow.

She would be worse off if she had not received American aid, but she is unaware of her benefactors. In a large, clean cement sty outside her hut is an American-bought sow, rooting for a few grains of corn. Nine months ago, Madame Muoi was given three pigs by the U.S. Operations Mission, and each month she has received a sack of corn for their feed. She was allowed to sell two of the pigs when they reached market growth but was required to keep the sow for breeding stock. When the sow farrows, one of the litter must be returned to the USOM to be given to another peasant family in need. The idea is to produce a chain litter.

Last month the sack of feed did not arrive. Madame Muoi was distressed because the sow was hungry and she could spare no food for it. She didn't realize she could still get the feed by going into Tan An and picking it up herself. Nobody had told her.

This reporter was the first American woman Madame Muoi had ever seen. When I asked her if she knew that the American people were trying to help her and her neighbors, she looked puzzled.

She had heard of Americans, but was far from sure what kind of people they were. She was grateful for the pigs, but the USOM brand on their back had meant nothing to her. She could not read it, much less comprehend what the program was all about.

She smiled shyly, showing teeth stained scarlet with betel nut, tucked her black smock around her thin, scarred legs, then said mournfully: "No government can help the poor people of the countryside. We live one day at a time."

When she needs cash, she borrows from her "richer" neighbors. I asked her, "If you don't have money and don't expect to get any, how do you repay your debts?" She could only shrug.

Yet, desperately poor though she is, Madame Muoi still has pride. She hesitated a long time before accepting the 200 piasters—$2—which I offered her. Then only after it had been explained that I was not offering her charity but paying her for the time I had kept her from her work would she take it. It was more cash than she had ever seen at once in her entire life.

THEY DON'T UNDERSTAND

Obviously, Madame Muoi and her neighbors don't understand the conflict raging over their paddies, don't realize how the outcome will affect them, don't know that the U.S. is fighting for their freedom. There has been a breakdown in communication and education. The Viet Cong spend hours indoctrinating villagers with Communist propaganda. Occasionally we distribute propaganda leaflets, which most of the villagers can't read anyhow.

What can be done for the Madame Muois of Vietnam? As the war becomes more savage, the numbers of old men, women and children trying to live through it will increase every day. Is it possible to help them, or must these innocents of war be left to fend for themselves?

For them, hunger and ignorance are the real enemies. Bombs and bullets alone will not save them. Giving pigs and corn away also is not enough.

The people of Binh Quang need understanding and advice to make use of the help that is available to them. They are whirling in the vortex of war. What is needed in Vietnam today is a greater Peace Corps to follow the armies. For only by works of peace can the havoc of the armies be repaired and the values of freedom be established.

AN ON-THE-SPOT REPORT

PROBLEMS OF A VIETNAMESE

Victims of a conflict they don't understand, Madame Muoi, daughter (r.) and relatives struggle to stay alive. How can she be helped to live through—and repair—the ravages of war?

FROM the gay and gaudy streets of Saigon to the tiny hamlet of Binh Quang in South Vietnam is only 30 miles—but they are a world apart. For this is Viet Cong country, a land of fear and near-famine where each day seems more hopeless than the last. It is also a land where few young men are seen. They have gone to the war, leaving behind the old men, women and children to toil without cease in the rice paddies, trying to stay alive until peace comes again.

It was to find out what is happening to these little people, the peasants caught in the middle, that PARADE sent this reporter to Vietnam.

It is a pathetic and tragic story, vivid in its stark simplicity. Terror and hunger have become a way of life. One hears so much about money nowadays. "You can't take it with you," they say. But my question is, "Where can you go without it?"

You hear about the traveling salesman who was stranded in an Iowa village? He asked one of the locals if there was a movie in town. "No, sir," came the answer.

"Any poolrooms?"

"No, sir."

"Any bowling alleys?"

"No, sir."

"There must be some type of amusement in this community," the salesman declared. "Surely you can suggest something."

The villager thought for a moment. "Why'n't you come down to the drug-store?" he suggested. "There's a freshman home from college."

A Las Vegas gambler on his deathbed was asked to confess his sins before he passed to the great beyond.

"You know," he began, "that I was a gambler, a big gambler. And I must confess that once in a while I did cheat but only for high stakes. I also told lies, big and small lies. I guess I was a pretty miserable human being."

The minister smiled understandingly. "Are you now prepared," he asked, "to renounce the devil?"

"Hold it a second," the gambler cried, lifting himself up. "This is no time for me to antagonize anybody."

THE SECRET LIFE OF MARGARET & TONY

by RENÉ LECLER

Forty miles from London the road winds into the Sussex hills and into a small village of cottages with thatched roofs and bow windows. It then becomes a rough farm track, snaking into the woods that crown the South Downs, past a pond and ending abruptly in a small clearing in front of a cottage.

The place is primitive in the extreme. There is no piped water supply—only a hand pump in the stone-flagged kitchen. Oil lamps light the living room and old Wedgwood plates line the walls.

Officially the cottage belongs to a prominent London fashion photographer. But, once every two weeks or so, its real owner arrives with his wife and parks his white Mini behind the house. The wife—Her Royal Highness Princess Margaret of England—gets down to cooking bacon and eggs on the old-fashioned gas range or toasting muffins by the log fire. The husband—Antony Armstrong-Jones, Earl of Snowdon—takes nature pictures in the two surrounding acres of woodland.

Tony bought the Sussex cottage for $1,800 when he was still working in his Chelsea studio, and Princess Margaret first visited it during their honeymoon.

To date, no one in England knows about Margaret and Tony's secret life. During their weekends the callers at Kensington Palace are told that Princess Margaret is resting and cannot be disturbed. No one is ever invited to the cottage except the photographer friend. There is no telephone and no mail delivery. Only the village policeman has a vague suspicion about the identity of the weekenders.

FRIENDS OF ARTISTS

Margaret and Tony, whose first official U.S. visit takes place this fall, are the strangest and the most interesting Royals England has ever had. By the standards of ordinary people they are simple enough, intelligent, gay and gregarious. But by Royal standards; they have broken every rule in the book.

Both of them would much rather have 1 artist as a friend than 20 ineffectual bluebloods. They'd rather give an after-theater party for people they have only just met than attend 10 court banquets. And because they are intrinsically nice people they have got away with what passes for eccentricity and had more influence on the Royal Family than anyone save the Queen herself.

Their own influence on the Queen has been remarkable. Tony has introduced both his wife and his sister-in-law to pastimes from spearfishing to art classes. Last summer, when Margaret and Tony joined the Queen at Balmoral in Scotland, the latter said that she would like to visit a remote part of her vast Highland estates, but that the journey was too much for a single day. Tony said he had a friend in Edinburgh with a trailer and suggested, "Why don't we go for two or three days?" The Queen did not bat an eyelid, and for the first time in her life spent a night under the stars in an 18 by 9 trailer.

Both Margaret and Tony have strong opinions and are not afraid to air them. A close friend of Margaret's, Iris Blake, says: "Marriage to a man like Tony was the best thing that could have happened to her. When she was younger, she used to shock people—mostly because she wasn't sure of herself. Now, with Tony, she has gained in personal stature. He has encouraged her to be herself first and a Princess second."

Last spring, for example, a friend asked Tony Armstrong-Jones if he would advise on the production of a new West End musical. Tony replied: "It's my wife you want to ask—she is the one who knows about the theater!" He arranged a meeting, and Princess Margaret's advice was so professional that producer David Merlin asked her if she would take over the complete casting of the show. "For a month," says a friend, "Margaret was in seventh heaven. The whole thing was unofficial of course, and she made all the approaches through a private secretary." Unfortunately the show, Summer Glory, failed to take off because of financial difficulties. Latest news is that the project might be revived next winter.

Tony, artistically gifted, is one of the strongest influences in the world of de-

Herewith some of Melody's favorite funnies as he told them recently in Baltimore:

This sure has become a funny country. We prohibit praying in schools, but we put Bibles in school libraries.

I've got the meanest wife in the world. No kidding. If Moses had ever met her, he would have written another commandment.

My wife is so dumb she thinks manual labor is the name of a Mexican worker.

I heard a marvelous definition of a pseudo-liberal the other day. A pseudo-liberal is one who marches only when it doesn't rain.

One hears so much about money nowadays. "You can't take it with you," they say. But my question is, "Where can you go without it?"

You hear about the traveling salesman who was stranded in an Iowa village? He asked one of the locals if there was a movie in town. "No, sir," came the answer.

"Any poolrooms?"

"No, sir."

"Any bowling alleys?"

"No, sir."

"There must be some type of amusement in this community," the salesman declared. "Surely you can suggest something."

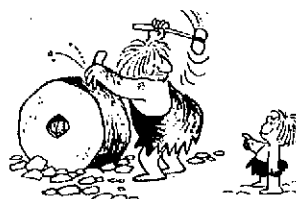

The villager thought for a moment. "Whyn't you come down to the drugstore?" he suggested. "There's a freshman home from college."

A Las Vegas gambler on his deathbed was asked to confess his sins before he passed to the great beyond.

"You know," he began, "that I was a gambler, a big gambler. And I must confess that once in a while I did cheat but only for high stakes. I also told lies, big and small lies. I guess I was a pretty miserable human being."

The minister smiled understandingly. "Are you now prepared," he asked, "to renounce the devil?"

"Hold it a second," the gambler cried, lifting himself up. "This is no time for me to antagonize anybody."

anecdote of the week

■ Rex Harrison, the actor, is considered one of the great lovers of the age. He specializes in tact and thoughtfulness. In his Italian villa at Portofino he has two kitchens, one for his wife, Rachel Roberts, and one for his ace Italian chef. They both like to cook and diplomat Harrison refuses to take sides. ■ sign in Britain today. He sponsors competitions, sits on the board of three art schools and was recently approached by Jennie Lee, Britain's new Minister of Leisure, for his views on provincial activities in the arts. Last fall, when he designed a new and very futuristic aviary for the London Zoo, newspapers snidely remarked that, as a Royal husband, he might be the first exhibit. Recently, when the aviary was formally opened, experts described the work as architecturally exciting and functionally excellent.

Margaret and Tony have also brought innovations into their private life. Margaret, once the center of a "set," is now the most sought-after hostess in London. Her small dinner parties, usually for six to eight people, are known for their shop talk, and anybody who is anybody in the creative field prizes an invitation.

The Queen, who holds weekly "work" lunches at which she meets generally distinguished members of the public, relies on the Tony-Margaret grapevine about whom she should invite. Not long ago she told a friend: "If it is industrialists or businessmen, then Philip's the best source—he knows everybody. But when it comes to artists, actors and writers, I get my news from Kensington Palace."

One of Tony's unofficial jobs, which has never been disclosed, is to supply the Queen with a monthly digest of information about the world of the arts in Britain; he adds a lot of personal comments—many of them acid. Recently, when the Queen asked him whether she should invite a certain well-known portrait painter to a "work" lunch, Tony's advice was: "I wouldn't. The only thing he really knows about painting is the check he gets for it." He has also guided the Queen in her choice of modern art—she has lately acquired two Mirós, two Juan Gris and a sketch by Calder—the first time British royalty has patronized living artists privately for more than a century.

Margaret and Tony have also filled their private lives with activities which have always been frowned upon. Any summer Sunday morning might find them waterskiing near the riverside cabin they have built themselves at the far end of Windsor Great Park. The cabin has a glassed-in terrace with a barbecue pit and a river frontage which is kept private by high fences. A few months ago, however, this did not prevent two sneak photographers from crawling into the long grass and snapping Margaret donning her rubber suit and the Queen, in a summer frock and white sandals, rescuing a dog from the water. When the pictures were published they created quite an uproar, and the Press Council, watchdog of propriety in the British press, asked the Queen whether she would like to make a case of it. Both she and Margaret were for forgetting the whole thing. Tony had different views: "If you were an ordinary woman sunbathing in your suburban garden," he asked his sister-in-law, "what would you do about trespassers who kept peeping at you?" The Queen agreed that she would probably call the police. "You have as many rights as this woman," Tony said. "Use them." The Press Council investigated and rapped the two indiscreet reporters over the knuckles.

Margaret and her husband go to a show at least twice a week and almost every time bring friends back to Kensington Palace for a snack. Guests sit on the floor or on cushions, hunt for ash trays, play records and talk into the small hours.

IMPROMPTU RUMBA

Both husband and wife are night-birds by choice, and both like impromptu parties. Quite often, late in the evening, Tony rings up a few friends, brings out his Triumph TR4 and takes his wife dancing at Annabel's, the smart discotheque in Berkeley Square. Recently a young American student named Bill Connolly, not recognizing Margaret, asked her to dance. Royal ladies never dance with anyone unless it is by prior arrangement. Margaret looked at her husband; he looked away. The manager approached, but Margaret stopped him, got up and danced a rumba with the young American. To this day he probably does not know the identity of his partner.

On quiet evenings at home, Margaret and Tony each have their own pastimes. Tony spends hours in the well-equipped dark room he has installed at Kensington Palace. Margaret telephones everybody and anybody; one night last June she made two calls to the U. S. lasting a total of 1 hour and 50 minutes—one to old friend Danny Kaye and the other to new friend Sammy Davis, Jr.

Many might say that there is nothing very extraordinary in all this—but they forget the secretive, glum, stiff-upper-lip lives led by members of Britain's Royal Family in past decades. Margaret and Tony, vital, interesting people, have rendered an old institution a great service by breaking taboos with a smile. They are the first to prove, without fuss or bother, that Royals are human, too.

By being themselves first and a Royal couple second, Margaret and Tony have set a new example in British life and gained for themselves a rewarding and unconventional life.

THEY'LL VISIT U.S. IN THE FALL

THE SECRET LIFE OF MARGARET & TONY

by RENÉ LECLER

Forty miles from London the road winds into the Sussex hills and into a small village of cottages with thatched roofs and bow windows. It then becomes a rough farm track, snaking into the woods that crown the South Downs, past a pond and ending abruptly in a small clearing in front of a cottage.

The place is primitive in the extreme. There is no piped water supply—only a hand pump in the stone-flagged kitchen. Oil lamps light the living room and old Wedgwood plates line the walls.

Officially the cottage belongs to a prominent London fashion photographer. But, once every two weeks or so, its real owner arrives with his wife and parks his white Mini behind the house. The wife—Her Royal Highness Princess Margaret of England—gets down to cooking bacon and eggs on the old-fashioned gas range or toasting muffins by the log fire. The husband—Anthony Armstrong-Jones, Earl of Snowdon—takes nature pictures in the two surrounding acres of woodland.

Tony bought the Sussex cottage for $1,800 when he was still working in his Chelsea studio, and Princess Margaret first visited it during their honeymoon.

To date, no one in England knows about Margaret and Tony's secret life. During their weekends the callers at Kensington Palace are told that Princess Margaret is resting and cannot be disturbed. No one is ever invited to the cottage except the photographer friend. There is no telephone and no mail delivery. Only the village policeman has a vague suspicion about the identity of the weekenders.

FRIENDS OF ARTISTS

Margaret and Tony, whose first official U.S. visit takes place this fall, are the strangest and the most interesting Royals England has ever had. By the standards of ordinary people they are simple enough, intelligent, gay and gregarious. But by Royal standards; they have broken every rule in the book.

Both of them would much rather have 1 artist as a friend than 20 ineffectual bluebloods. They'd rather give an after-theater party for people they have only just met than attend 10 court banquets. And because they are intrinsically nice people they have got away with what passes for eccentricity and had more influence on the Royal Family than anyone save the Queen herself.

Their own influence on the Queen has been remarkable. Tony has introduced both his wife and his sister-in-law to pastimes from spearfishing to art classes. Last summer, when Margaret and Tony joined the Queen at Balmoral in Scotland, the latter said that she would like to visit a remote part of her vast Highland estates, but that the journey was too much for a single day. Tony said he had a friend in Edinburgh with a trailer and suggested, "Why don't we go for two or three days?" The Queen did not bat an eyelid, and for the first time in her life spent a night under the stars in an 18 by 9 trailer.

Both Margaret and Tony have strong opinions and are not afraid to air them. A close friend of Margaret's, Iris Blake, says: "Marriage to a man like Tony was the best thing that could have happened to her. When she was younger, she used to shock people—mostly because she wasn't sure of herself. Now, with Tony, she has gained in personal stature. He has encouraged her to be herself first and a Princess second."

Last spring, for example, a friend asked Tony Armstrong-Jones if he would advise on the production of a new West End musical. Tony replied: "It's my wife you want to ask—she is the one who knows about the theater!" He arranged a meeting, and Princess Margaret's advice was so professional that producer David Merlin asked her if she would take over the complete casting of the show. "For a month," says a friend, "Margaret was in seventh heaven. The whole thing was unofficial of course, and she made all the approaches through a private secretary." Unfortunately the show, Summer Glory, failed to take off because of financial difficulties. Latest news is that the project might be revived next winter.

Tony, artistically gifted, is one of the strongest influences in the world of de-

BECAUSE OF VOLUME OF MAIL RECEIVED, PARADE REGRETS IT CANNOT ANSWER QUERIES ABOUT THIS COLUMN.

GROWING UP FAST. At what age do American girls begin wearing lipstick and using perfume? A survey by the Girl Guides reports by age 13, 7 out of 10 have been hooked.

HOSPITAL REPRIEVE. President Johnson is not immune to Congressional pressure. Last January he ordered the closing of 11 Veterans Administration hospitals. The House Veterans Affairs Committee went to work on him. Presently the President assigned to Administrator of Veterans Affairs William J. Driver the job of announcing the Johnson reversal: Five of the hospitals will be kept operating; six will be phased out. To remain open: Castle Point, N.Y.; Bath, N.Y.; Lincoln, Neb.; Grand Junction, Colo.; Miles City, Mont.; to be closed: Tupper Lake, N.Y.; Dwight, Ill.; Rutland Heights, Mass.; Ft. Bayard, N. Mex.; Brecksville, Ohio; McKinney, Tex.

OLD GOLD. When the Allies moved into Germany after World War II, they captured 280 tons of Nazi gold, bullion the Nazis had seized from private and public holdings throughout Europe. In 1946 the British, Americans, and French set up a commission to deal with the gold. It was called the "Tripartite Commission for the Restitution of Monetary Gold," and headquartered in Brussels. Since then the Commission has issued no report, and apparently few people know what's happened to one of the world's great gold reserves.

ABORTION DEATHS. More than 40,000 women die in Italy each year because of abortions. A million illegal abortions are performed in Italy each year. These shocking figures were recently revealed at a press conference in Rome by Luigi de Marchi, secretary of the Italian Association for Demographic Education.

WOMEN & DIAMONDS. Japanese housewives who once invested heavily in the stock market before it turned down, have found a new investment craze. They're buying up diamonds -- so many of them that Tokyo jewelry shops report a nationwide rush on the gems. At first the diamond craze centered on cheap stones in the $50-$150 range. Now it's up to the $3,000-$15,000 category. Japanese jewelry dealers say the housewives have switched to diamonds because there is little possibility of diamonds declining in price in the foreseeable future. Many were burned badly in cheap-priced speculative stocks.

PRESIDENT NASSER'S DAUGHTER HODA, 19, PASSED MACHINEGUN TRAINING COURSE WITH HIGH HONORS.

SHARPSHOOTER. Hoda Abdel Nasser, 19, the daughter of Egypt's President Nasser and a student at Cairo University majoring in home economics, has passed with honors a course in machinegun shooting. All Egyptian girls in their teens and early 20's must enroll for 52 hours of military training with the National Guard. Hoda is married and her husband, Hatem Sadik, 24, is currently serving an 18-month stretch with the Egyptian army.

AFRICA—U.S.S.R. To establish closer ties with the entire African continent, the Soviet government is opening new airline service between Moscow and the Congo, is seeking landing concessions in Uganda, Kenya, and Tanzania. One propaganda advantage of a government-owned airline is that it can operate year in and year out at a staggering loss without going bankrupt. The people support it through taxes.

The story of a new kind of health insurance that says "you must collect... sick or well!"

MORE than 149,000,000 Americans now carry health insurance. But with the cost of modern medical care still rising, most people no longer have enough protection to pay the bills.

Look at the facts. Hospital room rates have more than doubled since 1952... the cost of one day's stay has jumped from \$18.35 to \$38.91. Last year, nearly  $\frac{3}{4}$  of all medical expenses were paid out-of-pocket... not by health insurance.

Now there's a wonderful answer for the 7 out of 8 who urgently need more protection. The company whose White Cross emblem means protection plus to thousands of California families now has a policy that says you must collect. Health insurance that pays money when you're sick or hurt, money back if you stay well!

Like ordinary health insurance, this plan pays generous cash benefits for covered sickness or off-the-job accidents. Cash paid directly to you, over and above everything you get from other insurance, including any form of Medicare enacted by the government.

But... here is the tremendous difference. With this plan you don't have to get sick or hurt to collect. If you stay healthy, you get a cash refund when the policy matures. You've actually built an extra savings... money to use as you wish.

Even if you use part of the benefits for hospital room, doctor bills or surgeon's fees, you still get money back. In other words, the policy must pay off. What you don't receive in benefits, you get back in cash. You just can't lose.

Money back health insurance (Policy NC-701) is offered only by Certified Life Insurance Company of California as part of their famous White Cross Plan. A special booklet, the "BLUE BOOK" tells the entire story and explains the many unusual and valuable features of this new kind of policy.

Parade readers can get a copy of the BLUE BOOK simply by mailing the postage-paid reply card attached to this page. No cost or obligation for this service.

BECAUSE OF VOLUME OF MAIL RECEIVED, PARADE REGRETS IT CANNOT ANSWER QUERIES ABOUT THIS COLUMN.

GROWING UP FAST. At what age do American girls begin wearing lipstick and using perfume? A survey by the Girl Guides reports by age 13, 7 out of 10 have been hooked.

HOSPITAL REPRIEVE. President Johnson is not immune to Congressional pressure. Last January he ordered the closing of 11 Veterans Administration hospitals. The House Veterans Affairs Committee went to work on him. Presently the President assigned to Administrator of Veterans Affairs William J. Driver the job of announcing the Johnson reversal: Five of the hospitals will be kept operating; six will be phased out. To remain open: Castle Point, N.Y.; Bath, N.Y.; Lincoln, Neb.; Grand Junction, Colo.; Miles City, Mont.; to be closed: Tupper Lake, N.Y.; Dwight, Ill.; Rutland Heights, Mass.; Ft. Bayard, N. Mex.; Brecksville, Ohio; McKinney, Tex.

OLD GOLD. When the Allies moved into Germany after World War II, they captured 280 tons of Nazi gold, bullion the Nazis had seized from private and public holdings throughout Europe. In 1946 the British, Americans, and French set up a commission to deal with the gold. It was called the "Tripartite Commission for the Restitution of Monetary Gold," and headquartered in Brussels. Since then the Commission has issued no report, and apparently few people know what's happened to one of the world's great gold reserves.

ABORTION DEATHS. More than 40,000 women die in Italy each year because of abortions. A million illegal abortions are performed in Italy each year. These shocking figures were recently revealed at a press conference in Rome by Luigi de Marchi, secretary of the Italian Association for Demographic Education.

WOMEN & DIAMONDS. Japanese housewives who once invested heavily in the stock market before it turned down, have found a new investment craze. They're buying up diamonds -- so many of them that Tokyo jewelry shops report a nationwide rush on the gems. At first the diamond craze centered on cheap stones in the $50-$150 range. Now it's up to the $3,000-$15,000 category. Japanese jewelry dealers say the housewives have switched to diamonds because there is little possibility of diamonds declining in price in the foreseeable future. Many were burned badly in cheap-priced speculative stocks.

PRESIDENT MASSER'S DAUGHTER HODA, 19, PASSED MACHINEGUN TRAINING COURSE WITH HIGH HONORS.

SHARPSHOOTER. Hoda Abdel Nasser, 19, the daughter of Egypt's President Nasser and a student at Cairo University majoring in home economics, has passed with honors a course in machinegun shooting. All Egyptian girls in their teens and early 20's must enroll for 52 hours of military training with the National Guard. Hoda is married and her husband, Hatem Sadik, 24, is currently serving an 18-month stretch with the Egyptian army.

AFRICA—U.S.S.R. To establish closer ties with the entire African continent, the Soviet government is opening new airline service between Moscow and the Congo, is seeking landing concessions in Uganda, Kenya, and Tanzania. One propaganda advantage of a government-owned airline is that it can operate year in and year out at a staggering loss without going bankrupt. The people support it through taxes.

What's so different about summer colds?

Are they really runnier, sneezier, snifflier, stuffier? Do they really last longer? That's what a lot of people say.

One thing is sure: they come at the wrong time. Just when you want to be out enjoying the sun and the fun of summer. That's when a cold can turn you into a drip.

Well, you don't have to let it get you down. One Contac® capsule in the morning, another at night, and soggy sniffles go away. You can breathe freely again. Have fun again.

It's all because of those more-than-600 tiny "time pills" in every Contac capsule. They're timed to keep relieving your cold symptoms for up to 12 hours. They dry your sniffles, check sneezes and clear your stuffy nose all day or all night. When you take Contac you don't care whether a summer cold is the worst kind or not. You hardly know you have a cold at all!

Get Contac at your pharmacy.
